Two Engineers.
Metalized Milk.
The Five Greatest.
The Pendulum Swings.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 17.

In his introduction to the writings of George Washington prepared for next year's two hundredth anniversary, President Hoover says Washington's engineering ability has never been fully appreciated.

Washington's methods were surprisingly modern.

He reclaimed the Dismal Swamp in Virginia, was adviser and engineer on the Potomac and James River Canal and first to advise a combined highway and waterway from the Atlantic Coast to the Ohio River.

George Washington was the first engineer to occupy the White House. President Hoover is the second.

A war with bootleggers interferes with Hoover's.

DR. McGEEHEE, chemist at Emory University, Atlanta, says copper and iron in milk will correct anaemic conditions because those two metals, "taken in metalized milk, regenerate hemoglobin."

For a long time doctors have known that red blood corpuscles, consisting chiefly of iron, contain also a trace of copper.

This was long thought to be more or less accidental and unimportant. Now it is known to be necessary. Every plumber can tell the doctors what active results ensue when you put copper and iron together, as in attaching brass pipes to an iron furnace.

WASHINGTON reports that Lincoln's birthday was celebrated this year "more generally than ever." Great men are like great mountain peaks, the farther away you are, the more powerful they seem, little men and mountains having vanished.

The five greatest names in history, Aristotle, Archimedes, Michael Angelo, Newton and Shakespeare, are greater today than ever before. Which name, by the way, would you select as sixth?

CIVILIZATION expresses horror at the treatment of religious fundamentalists in Turkey. They want their old Mohammedan religion restored, veils on women's faces, fez on men's heads.

Twenty-seven of these religious protesters were hanged recently and it is expected they will be hanged as rapidly as they are caught. Mustapha Kemal does not believe in half way measures.

THUS THE pendulum swings the other way. Old-fashioned religions have killed, burned, boiled, tortured hundreds of thousands under the most revolting conditions, as when Dr. S. Servetus was burned by order of Calvin in Switzerland. Damp wood was used to make the fire burn slowly and prolong the agony. Probably the plan miscarried, since damp wood, producing much smoke, would suffocate the victim before burning really began.

TODAY PAUL BLOCK, who changes newspaper properties into gold mines, takes charge officially of his newest property, the Los Angeles Express.

He publishes fine portraits of Andrew W. Mellon and Alfred E. Smith, with letters wishing him all success.

Block will have the success wished him. You would believe it, if you had seen him working in his new office this morning.

An enormous fortune, an income much greater than a million dollars a year, does not diminish Block's ambition.

He cares no more about money than a whale does about ice cream, but is intensely interested in making newspapers successful and useful.

AFTER A "DAY of silence" Gandhi, the leader of 300,000,000 Hindus, goes to New Delhi to discuss freedom with the British viceroy.

The "day of silence" devoted to reflection and introspection, was a day unknown to great Asiatic conquerors of the past. Genghis Khan, Tamerlaine and Attila had no days of silence, every day was active.

THE DEPARTMENT of Commerce says this country has 22,731 moving picture theaters, almost as many as in all Europe. That means entertainment and education.

This nation has 25,000,000 automobiles, the number constantly increasing, also meaning entertainment, education and united families.

REBEL GUNS THREATEN MADRID

King's Former Guard Chief Seen as New Dictator; Army Officers Revolt

MADRID, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—As King Alfonso strove today to give Spain a responsible government all indications were that a new military dictatorship would be set up.

Long range guns were trained ominously on the city and machine guns had been placed strategically in preparation for any eventuality. Persistent reports gained credence that Gen. Leopold Saro, former chief of the King's palace guards, would be the new dictator.

Censorship was again established tonight.

OFFICERS REVOLT

A group of high army officers, reported to be disgusted because the King seemed to be yielding to the Left, were reported preparing to seize the power and repeat the coup by which Primo de Rivera seized the dictatorship.

Faced with the failure of Jose Antonio Sanchez Guerra to form a cabinet to replace that of Damaso Berenguer, King Alfonso today called in a number of important party leaders in an effort to solve the crisis.

First to arrive was Melquiades Alvarez, chief of the Reformist party and one of the most powerful partisan leaders in Spain, but he, too, declined the task of forming a ministry in view of Sanchez Guerra's failure.

LIBERAL CHIEFS

Next came the two heads of the Liberal party, the Count of Romanones and the Marquis of Alhucemas. These two were considered principally responsible for the overthrow of Premier Berenguer last week when they repudiated his plan for the holding of elections in March.

The situation remained extremely confused and various reports were circulated. Neither the Count of Romanones nor the Marquis Alhucemas would discuss their visit, but Romanones declared that Sanchez Guerra had failed to form a cabinet because certain left wing factions refused him their support.

Noted Psychic Tries To Communicate With Dead Rudy Valentino

Scott Records Results of Experiment Carried On Through Medium.

By R. T. M. SCOTT,
Chairman New York Section, American Society for Psychical Research.

Is it possible to communicate with Rudolph Valentino? What does a man do when he dies? Thousands of readers wish to know the answers to these questions.

Others may smile and shrug their shoulders. Men smiled and laughed outright when Columbus maintained that the world was round, but today the Empire State Building, man's highest monument, stands in New York on another side of the world from where Columbus made his declaration.

New ideas are born amid smiles. But the smiles die! Is it possible to communicate with Valentino? Why not?

Of course communication with the dead is not a new idea to many people. Today many trained minds are intent upon psychic research. There are numbers of men and women in the world who claim to have familiar spirits, which are now called spirit guides, and amazing phenomena occur in the presence of these unusual men and women.

BUTTER AND EGG MEN ASSAIL SUCCOP

Ask Recognition of Own Inspector; Chicago Firms Have Advantage of Bids

The Pittsburgh Butter and Egg Exchange today demanded that the city department of supplies, under fire in the food probe, give local dealers a better opportunity to bid on goods for city institutions.

At a meeting in the Fruit Auction Building, Twenty-first and Pike streets, members of the exchange voted to ask Council to see that the city in purchasing butter and eggs recognize the exchange inspector's stamp of approval as equally valid with that of the government inspectors.

U. S. CERTIFICATES

At present, dealers asserted, a government certificate is required. There is no government inspector here, they pointed out, thus virtually eliminating local firms from bidding on an equal footing with dealers in Chicago where inspectors are stationed.

W. G. Yost, former president of the Exchange, said:

"The city owes that much to local merchants. They should accept the inspection of the Butter and Egg Exchange rather than government inspection."

The meeting was called by E. Wayne Stoker, president of the exchange, after a conference with a number of leaders in the butter and egg business in Pittsburgh.

"TOO-LOW" BIDS WIN

An opposite policy to that employed in buying canned goods is followed by the city in contracting for eggs and dairy products, Mr. Stoker declared. The Succop theory of giving contracts to the highest bidder for the sake of quality, does not follow through in the butter and egg field. There the low bidder consistently wins, and at figures which make competitors marvel at how such a

HOUSE VOTES SEPARATE INQUIRY

Governor Given Committee With Wide Authority; 3 Public Representatives

By E. W. PRENDERGAST,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 17.—The House today gave Gov. Pinchot what he has wanted—a probing committee with full powers and unlimited scope to investigate the public utilities and the Public Service Commission from every angle.

Representative D. Glenn Moore, administration floor leader, brought the enabling resolution for the House investigation to the floor, and the surging votes of the administration members trampled opposition, 129 to 65.

PUBLIC REPRESENTATIVES

Moore said that the investigation members, seven House and three representing the public, would be named during the week-end, and that action would begin as soon as preliminary details were made.

Beginning next week, there will be two separate investigations. One, the Earnest inquiry now being conducted at the behest of the Senate, the other by the House.

Representative Turner offered an amendment to the Moore resolution to chop out the three "representatives of the people." A standing count, making unnecessary a roll call, resulted in the defeat, 115 to 50.

An appeal to defeat the Moore resolution on the basis that the investor should be and is not represented on the seven-and-three committee, was made by Rep. Adams. In a defense by Rep. Kernan, he asked why the anti-administration had not brought charges against the Public Service Commission, a body by which

EX-GRID COACH, DR. WEIBLE, DIES

Dr. John A. Weible, former football star at Notre Dame and assistant coach at Duquesne University in 1927, died in Mercy Hospital this morning from the effects of an emergency operation for the removal of his appendix, which was performed last week.

Dr. Weible

Weible was graduated in medicine from Vanderbilt University last spring, and was serving his interneship at Mercy. He was stricken suddenly while leaving the hospital to keep a social engagement last Tuesday.

The formed grid star and coach, son of Dr. John A. Weible, of Erie, matriculated at Notre Dame in 1922 and played varsity football in '23, '24 and '25. He attended Vanderbilt in 1926, where he took his first year of medical work and came to Duquesne as line coach under Elmer Layden in 1927.

Weible returned to Vanderbilt in 1928 and was graduated last spring. He served as an assistant coach at the southern institution in 1929 and 1930.

While a player at Notre Dame, Weible was a member of the teams that boasted the famous "Four Horsemen"—Layden, Miller, Crowley and Stuhldreher.

JOB PLAN HERE DECLARED BEST

Pierce Williams, field representative of the Hoover Emergency Committee, here to study the employment stabilization plan of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, commended the Pittsburgh relief project at a meeting of the operating committee of the association, today.

Mr. Williams, who is associated with the National Bureau of Economic Research, told members of the committee that the Pittsburgh plan is the most valuable method he has found in the entire country.

City officials are preparing for immediate use of the labor to be supplied by the association for work on public improvements.

The support of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association and the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company has been pledged.

City Council has before it an ordinance presented by Director Edward G. Lang, of the Public Works Department, providing for the purchase of tools and equipment to be used by the new workers. Provision is made also for

Donnie Brings Sunshine for Mother, Facing Death In Electric Chair

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 17.—Up the hill to the grim Lawrence County Jail trudges 5-year-old Donnie Schroeder today bearing birthday greetings to his mother, who within a week must pay her debt to society with her life unless the State Board of Pardons grants her plea for clemency.

He wants his "mamma" to come home.

He doesn't know that soon she may go away, never to return.

His "mamma" hasn't told him.

Irene Schroeder, 22 years old today, is calm in the face of death. So is Walter Glenn Dague, erstwhile Wheeling salesman and Irene's gunman companion in a life of crime which spread almost from coast to coast. Apparently they are not worrying at all over preparations the commonwealth is making to claim their lives for the life of State Highway Patrolman Brady Paul. It was Paul whom they left dying as they streaked out of New Castle on a flight which ended in the desert wastes of Arizona more than a year ago.

These two, who lived and now face death for each other, are subsisting on hope—hope that the Board of Pardons, which meets in Harrisburg tomorrow, will look with favor on their pleas for commutation of the death penalty.

GIRL GAGGED BY BURGLARS

Investigating a noise outside her bedroom, Helen Kocay, 15-year-old domestic, was bound and gagged by two burglars in the home of J. A. Meyers, 220 Hastings street, last night.

Returning home an hour later, Mr. and Mrs. Meyers found the girl removed her gag and cut her bonds. The Meyers' baby, unharmed, was sleeping in an adjoining room.

MAGAZINE SALE HELD LEGAL

The right to sell magazines on the streets without a city permit was upheld today by Judge Thomas C. Jones in County Court.

Judge Jones reversed Magistrate Leo Rothenberg, who had fined Blanchard Wright, of 1400 Federal street, $50, following his arrest on the charge of violating a city ordinance.

Wright was arrested January 15 while selling the magazine "Unemployed" downtown for 10 cents a copy, making a nickel profit. An appeal was taken in his behalf by the League of Industrial Democracy, publisher of the magazine, on the ground that the city ordinance forbidding selling articles on the streets, without a permit, did not apply to newspapers and magazines. Such an interpretation, the league held, was a violation of constitutional rights. No opinion was filed with the court's decision.

Lillian Leitzel to Rest In California She Loved

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Lillian Leitzel, internationally-known circus performer who died of injuries received in a fall when her apparatus broke, is to be buried in California where she had hoped to spend the last years of her life.

Alfred Codona, her husband—himself a famous trapeze star—will leave here next Friday with Miss Leitzel's ashes. Heartbroken, he has canceled all his contracts, and there is a possibility that he may never appear on a trapeze again.

He and Miss Leitzel and her mother, it was said, had agreed that the two would work for two years more, then all three would go together to California to live.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Tribute will be paid to Lillian Leitzel, noted circus performer, tonight at Madison Square Garden.

Before the start of the New York Rangers-Ottawa hockey match, the bands will play "Auld Lang Syne" and then the drums will sound the roll that lasted all through Miss Leitzel's famed whirling act. She was killed in Copenhagen when she fell from a broken trapeze.

P. & W. Va. Overhead Urged As 'Point' Traffic Link

Extension of the new traffic artery provided by the Wabash bridge and tunnel was urged today by County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern proposing the county acquire the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad over head from the Wabash Building to Duquesne way.

Not alone would ramps be dropped to Duquesne way under the McGovern plan, but property would be purchased along that thoroughfare to permit an overhead highway construction to connect with the Point and Manchester bridges. The minority commissioner cited that property could be acquired at reasonable prices.

Both County Commissioners Joseph Armstrong and E. V. Babcock appeared favorable to the proposal. Armstrong declared the suggestion was commendable and the commissioners ordered the county engineers to study the proposed project.

N. W. Nethken, vice president of the P. & W. Va., appeared before the commissioners to assure the officials that the sale of the railroad property would be taken before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mr. Stoker said:

"Very few of our members are interested in bidding on the city contracts on account of the complications connected with them. A government certificate is required with the first shipment, and this must be obtained from Chicago. There is no government inspector in Pittsburgh."

Mr. Stoker then raised the question of why a rigid government inspection should be required on the first delivery and waived for the greater part of the order. He said:

"The Butter and Egg Exchange employs a local inspector, and would be able to furnish an impartial and complete inspection of the goods. The aid of our inspector has never been requested in this matter."

CARLOAD LOTS

Butter and eggs are ordered by the carload for the city home at Mayview. A special refrigeration plant is being operated there to take care of these products.

The butter and egg requirements of the city are large orders. At one time there was considerable bidding for this business among numerous wholesalers. This has been considerably reduced. At present the bulk of the business goes to two firms dealers say.

With Mayor Kline and City Controller Kerr "too busy" to report in Council what they had discovered about the way food contracts were handled in the Department of Supplies, the man who made charges against that method today said he would wait until Council had been informed what was wrong before making formal demand for a public hearing.

City Council in regular session yesterday laid on the table a motion made by Councilman Robert Garland to grant John D. Houston president of the James W. HOUSTON WAITS

Informed of Council's action Houston said today:

"The fact that Council tabled Mr. Garland's motion isn't adverse to our cause. I'll make formal demand for the public hearing just as soon as the Mayor's and Controller Kerr's findings from their 'secret investigation' are presented. If the Mayor finds anything wrong, you know he may remove the director."

Both city officials said they had intended making their report public yesterday, but shortly before the meeting of Council began they said they hadn't time to complete it. No indication was given as to when it would be ready, but next Monday was intimated.

New Insulation Perfected Here

A new insulation method for electric wires today was expected to save the electrical industry over a million dollars yearly as it was being worked out at the East Pittsburgh works of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. The innovation which was given its first practical test yesterday consists in the application of a new insulation material, called solventless varnish according to J. T. Goff, who developed it.

DONATE DAY'S PAYROLL

The men are to be employed on street repair, paving, grading and curbing work, and are to be paid regular daily wages by the Emergency Association. Director Lang has numerous other projects in mind on which the men may work. Labor appropriations were not provided for these projects in the 1931 budget.

The association will pay the wages from donations made by large industrialists and manufacturers as relief for the unemployment situation. Each manufacturer is donating, it is said, the equivalent to a day's payroll of an average 1929 work day to the cause.

BANKS' AID URGED

A resolution was passed in City Council yesterday praising the Emergency Association and Edgar J. Kaufmann, a member of the committee, for the work being done in unemployment relief. President John S. Herron introduced the measure and requested a copy be embossed and sent to Mr. Kaufmann.

The Clearing House Association, meeting yesterday afternoon with R. B. Mellon presiding, recommended all banks in Allegheny County support the Pittsburgh plan by contributing the aggregate one day's payroll, and by procuring contributions of one day's pay from each employe.

Arthur E. Braun, chairman of the association, explained the plan to the bank representatives, after which a motion to support the plan was passed unanimously. A number of bank presidents who attended the meeting announced that they had taken steps toward support of the plan and had forwarded their contributions to Roy A. Hunt, treasurer of the association.

COMMITTEE NAMED

A committee to co-operate with various bank officials in the county was named. The members are A. S. Beyner, president of Keystone National Bank; Harrison Nesbit, president of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A.; Lloyd W. Smith, president of the Union National Bank; Frank F. Brooks, president of the First National Bank, and George E. Benson, president of the Monongahela National Bank.

A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, in a letter to Chairman Braun, commended the plan and said his company would send a check representing a day's payroll of the company.

APPLE SELLER ADMITS PLOT

Floyd Raines, 28, of 418 Arch street, an apple seller, charged along with Victor Sutey, 25, another apple seller of the same address, with being a suspicious person, told Magistrate Leo Rothenberg:

"I am glad I was arrested, for I would have got into serious trouble. The only thing that prevented me from robbery was that a likely looking prospect didn't show up."

Patrolman William Warnock testified he found a loaded revolver on Raines after he had arrested him and Sutey at Sixth street and Penn avenue because they looked suspicious. Sutey denied knowledge of a contemplated holdup. The two were held over.

The bride was given away by her brother, Romer Zane Grey, and was attended by Mrs. Romer Grey. James Carney, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Members of the families and a few friends attended.

The novelist was not present, having gone to Tahiti several weeks ago. The young couple will sail February 22 aboard the Grey yacht, Fisherman II, for Tahiti, where they will be joined by Zane Grey on an 18-month hunting and fishing cruise of the South Seas.

WELFARE FUND TAKES RELIEF BURDEN

Private Agencies to Act Until County Emergency Plans Become Operative

Relief for needy cases today was being given by the Welfare Fund through its private family service organizations until the Allegheny County Emergency Committee plans become operative, Wilbur F. Maxwell, executive secretary announced.

Seven members were elected to the fund board at the annual Council meeting yesterday in William Penn Hotel. Elected to three-year terms were G. G. Coolidge, Howard Heinz, F. C. Irish, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, F. A. Leovy, William S. Moorhead and A. K. Oliver. E. W. Smith, first vice president, presided.

Review of the three months during which the welfare agencies administered public appropriations for unemployment relief was given by Maxwell. He termed the work an example of fine co-operative between private organizations and public authorities in meeting an emergency situation. Maxwell pointed out:

"It should be understood that the entire expense of the added staff necessary to handle the overwhelming load of city cases was provided by the private organizations, including the loan of workers to the city Department of Welfare. Every cent of the city fund was expended for food, fuel, clothing, rent, gas and light. Bills for this relief were paid by the city after careful check by the city controller."

Reviewing the 1930 financial statement, he said:

"Fortunately we began with a surplus of $31,896 from 1929 and an over-subscription of $6,780 above the campaign goal. Our interest earnings amounted to $15,734, so that we had, during 1930, income and surplus of $1,155,935 in place of $1,112,055 as anticipated in our budget. The butgets of the 31 member agencies totaled $1,045,213, as presented in the campaign, but by the end of 1930 these had reached the total of $1,114,581, an increase of $71,368. We closed the year with a surplus of $4,433."

Weather Conditions.

Low pressure is influencing the weather over much the greater portion of the country this morning, as a result there is much cloudiness and rainfall over large sections. A center of disturbance is located over the Lower Ohio Valley, and covers most of the country east of the Rocky Mountains. It caused rain everywhere from the foothills of the Rockies to the Atlantic Coast. The rainfall was light generally but sufficient over large areas to materially benefit the water supply. The disturbance is moving northeastward and will produce rain over this section this afternoon and tonight. Another disturbance is moving in over British Columbia. Temperature changes were slight. Towards rising over the eastern states and towards cooler over the northern plains. Temperature is still well above the seasonal normal.

POOLS MAY TRY NEW 'NUMBER'

"Numbers" men looked today to the official totals of the New York Curb Market to provide them with a number that will help them find their way out of the confusion into which they were thrown when the New York Stock Exchange banned daily sales figures following similar action by the New York Clearing House.

For the present, the racketeers are basing their play on various systems. Some favor the 10-sided dice, some like the unofficial totals of the New York Stock Exchange, and some, a small minority, use the U. S. Treasury figures as printed daily.

The announcement yesterday that the New York Curb Market would publish its total daily transactions came as a welcome surprise to the pools.

It will be some days before the racketeers make any decision. But if they discover in the curb totals a good number, they will adopt it without much debate.

Flood Committee Lauds Thompson

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Mayor Thompson, of Chicago, was complimented today by the House Flood Control Committee for his "outstanding leadership" in the waterways and flood control conference held in Chicago last January. A resolution thanking the Mayor "for his praiseworthy services" and expressing the hope that "he will continue his efforts to awaken public sentiment in order that a comprehensive flood control bill may be finally passed," was adopted.

Buck, Boy Flier, Reaches Havana

HAVANA, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Robert Buck, 17-year-old American trans-continental flier, was here today after completing a flight from Miami in approximately two hours.

Buck arrived over the Cuban capital at dusk, heading for Gen. Machadon Airport. He mistook the lights of Columbia Airfield for his destination and landed there by mistake. Lacking permission to land there, he took off again and shortly landed at the proper destination.

Death Rate Lower During Slump, Records Show

Fewer people die during years of depression than when times are good. This is borne out by death-rate statistics, by the records of undertakers and doctors, and by the sales records of casket companies.

W. S. Newcomer, secretary of the Allegheny County Funeral Directors' Association, explains his theory of low death rate during hard times:

"During depression people live at a slower pace. Working men live more economically. They dissipate less in appetite and pleasure. They spend their leisure in quiet pursuits and get more sleep. Consequently they live longer."

Doctors report they are not so busy in times of depression. People seem to take better care of their health. Fewer industrial accidents with machinery are reported. In prosperous times rush orders in factories tend toward hurry and carelessness among workers.

Statistics show a greater death rate from heart trouble during prosperity than in hard times. Excitement and over-eating of rich foods, fatigue and run-down condition of the body which results from lack of sleep and general rapid pace of living when money is plentiful probably contribute to an increase in death from heart trouble.

In 1929 the death rate from heart trouble in Pittsburgh decreased to 1,681. In 1930, considered a depression year, deaths from heart trouble dropped to 1,141, the lowest rate since about 1923.

4 HERE AWAIT RACE WINNINGS

Four Pittsburghers today were awaiting definite information on their reported winnings in the Canadian Army and Navy sweepstakes in Havana last Sunday, in which hundreds of thousands of dollars were won by holders of tickets in many parts of the world.

They were Anton Raspolim, of 119 Fountain street, North Side; Rasho Linns, W. E. Nelson and Harry Cortsandy, the latter of Bellevue.

Awaiting more definite information regarding his winnings, Corstandy said:

"I took a $1 ticket for charity and had forgotten about it until I received a telegram telling me that I had won. I'm going to bank the money."

Arrest Ohio Banker In $31,500 Theft

HILLSBORO, O., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Acting on instructions from the United States marshal's office at Cincinnati, county officials arrested Charles Murphy, former cashier of the Hillsboro Bank and Savings Company, who confessed last week he had embezzled $31,500 in bank funds.

REPEAL PLAN URGED BY WAGNER

New York Senator Sees Prohibition Doomed; Against Saloon Return

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Asserting the Wickersham report was "the beginning of the end" of prohibition, Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, today proposed a plan for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, calculated to prevent return of the saloon.

The New Yorker, in a carefully prepared speech to the Senate, advocated repeal of the prohibition amendment with concurrent action by non-prohibition states "to insure the conservation of the one achievement of national prohibition"—abolition of the saloon.

He said his plan, a brand new proposal for solution of the liquor problem, would meet every ultimate requirement laid down by the Wickersham Commission and would remove the law enforcement group's single objection to outright repeal.

CONFLICT IN PARTY

Wagner's speech, coming on the heels of a warm debate on prohibition among Democratic senators, emphasized the conflicting views within the party, which may come to a head when it attempts to adopt a platform for next year's presidential race.

Wagner said:

"Repeal is the order of the day. It is too late for revision. Public opinion has already passed that post. It is now headed straight for repeal.

"I have listened with patience to the repeated assertions upon this floor of the doctrine of impossibility. You tell me repeal is impossible. I answer you it is inevitable. You tell me that a small minority of the states can prevent it. I know they can, but I am sure they will not.

"The same succession of events, the same common sense which have persuaded 11,000,000 voters that national prohibition is a mistake will have their effect on the rest of our people."

"MUST FACE ISSUE"

Wagner said the issue must be faced under "courageous leadership." He declared:

"That, unfortunately, we can not expect from our President. "With the report of the Wickersham Commission in his hand, Mr. Hoover had a rare opportunity to exercise his prerogative and lead a grateful people out of the morass of criminality, corruption and hypocrisy in which we have been bogged for 11 years.

"He has thrown it away. He made haste to disown the commission he had himself so hopefully created. It is fairly plain that, irrespective of the avenue of approach the President used, he did not accurately report the views of the commission in his message to the Congress."

Wagner said the Wickersham commission would have recommended outright repeal, if it had followed its own logic, except for fear of the saloon's return.

Assurance that this would not happen could be given, he said, by constitutional amendments in the anti-dry states barring that form of liquor sale or by other similar methods, he outlined. This, he held, would clear the way for outright repeal.

Red Cross Workers Report $267,485

Pittsburgh's contributions to the Red Cross drought relief fund reached a total of $267,485 today. Citizens in charge of the local appeal called attention to the fact that there will not be any house-to-house canvass, and urged all to send their contributions to the Red Cross, 402 Chamber of Commerce Building, Pittsburgh.

Coolidge Sees Immense World Trade for Future

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Feb. 17.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

No one would be rash enough to try to estimate the probabilities of future world trade. But it is easy to see from past development that it has possibilities that are very great. Only about one-fourth of the two billion people of the world have yet reached the standard of living that characterizes western civilization. Transportation and communication are sure to penetrate among those who are living on the lower scale. Both their wants and their power to satisfy them will be increased.

Calvin Coolidge

Japan illustrates what may happen. In 1870 her imports were worth less than seventeen million dollars. In 50 years they had risen to over a billion dollars. Yet the per capita imports of Canada are six times greater. The Philippine Islands imports are about three times what they were 15 years ago. If China were raised to the level of Japan her imports would be nearly eight billion dollars.

Yet probably among high living standard people most expansion can be expected. United States foreign trade is about four times what it was 25 years ago. The more it is examined the more nearly inexhaustible appears the opportunity for world production and exchange.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

SENATE MOVES TO BLOCK 'POCKET VETO' OF BONUS

VOTE FRIDAY SOUGHT FOR LOAN BILL

Move to Dismiss Measure From Finance Committee Brings Tilt on Floor

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—In order to block a pocket veto by President Hoover, advocates of the new soldiers' loan bill launched a drive today to enact it into law by Friday.

This maneuver would force the President to either sign or veto the measure by March 4. If he vetoed it, this plan would give Congress an opportunity to enact it over his disapproval before adjourning.

The first step was a motion offered by Senator Ashurst (Dem.), of Arizona, after a tumultuous debate, to discharge the Senate Finance Committee from further consideration of the meaure. Under the Senate rules, action on the motion was postponed for one day, but Ashurst served notice he would force a vote on it as soon as the Senate convenes tomorrow.

SENATORS JOIN

Supporters of the measure gave notice they would seek to reduce the interest rate and to eliminate the "compound interest" provision, written into the bill by the House. Senators Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, and Dill (Dem.), of Washington, suggested slashing the interest rate to be paid by soldiers on their loans from 4½ to 4 per cent, while Senator Barkley (Dem.), of Kentucky, suggested eliminating the compond interest feature.

There was a lively episode when Ashurst moved to discharge the Finance Committee. Senator Smoot (Rep.), of Utah, committee chairman, objected to immediate action on the motion and declared Ashurst had "insulted" the committee.

DENIES "INSULT"

The Arizona senator in thundering tones denied the accusation to the amusement of the Senate and those in the galleries. He declared:

"No insult was intended. The senator from Utah is the last man I would insult or offend."

Then Ashurst shouted:

"But if I had to insult every member of the committee I would be willing to do so to prevent suffering among the men who went through the storm of war and are now languishing in hospitals to die in the richest of all nations. I would proudly insult the committee members to their faces a thousand times over before I would let one soldier suffer an hour."

SMOOT FOR SPEED

Smoot said the committee probably would report the bill favorably tomorrow and insisted it only desired to consider the measure a few hours. Then Dill explained that under the Senate rules if the bill were reported favorably tomorrow a single objection would prevent action on it until Thursday. But Smoot protested he "wasn't willing to play politics with this bill."

Senator Black (Dem.), of Alabama, provoked the flurry by charging it was the purpose of administration leaders to jam through all the necessary appropriation bills, holding up action on the bonus so that the President could kill it by a pocket veto after Congress adjourns, March 4.

His brother, Ludwig, 34, fellow-worker, was lowered on ropes, dove several times, but failed to locate the body, unseen after the fall until rowers in the tiny boat found it not far away.

STARS DODGE FRIDAY 13 'JINX'

Halt Marriage Until Saturday Morning to Let 'Unlucky' Day Pass; Sailing Tonight

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Secretly married three days, Charles Farrell and Virginia Valli, screen stars, leave tonight on the liner Augustus for a European honeymoon. They were married in Yonkers, N. Y., shortly after midnight Saturday.

With the traditional superstition of actor folk, Miss Valli balked at being married on Friday the thirteenth, even if it meant two trips to Yonkers and a midnight wedding to dodge the "jinx."

Farrell and Miss Valli went to Yonkers Friday, arriving after the usual closing hour of the marriage license bureau, but William Corbalis, the clerk, had been informed of their coming and was waiting.

BALKS AT 'JINX'

They had planned to be married at once, but, after the license had been made out Miss Valli suddenly recalled that it was Friday the thirteenth.

The couple and their party returned to New York to await the passing of the jinx. After a few telephone calls they got in touch with the Rev. Ralph Houston, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church at Yonkers, who consented to perform the ceremony after midnight.

Another trip to Yonkers, and the marriage was performed at the parsonage about 12:30 a. m. Saturday, the fourteenth.

The witnesses included Mrs. John J. Regan, who was formerly Alice Joyce; Blanche Sweet, Carlton Hockstra, Farrell's manager, and Albert Scott, a friend of Farrell.

FOUR-YEAR ROMANCE

Farrell explained to friends that his reason for the elaborate secrecy was that he wished to be aboard the liner on his honeymoon before news of his marriage reached Hollywood.

The romance dates back about four years to Hollywood's lots. Miss Valli already was a featured player in Universal pictures. Farrell was just beginning his career. Under her tutelage he climbed the heights rapidly, sealing his success with Janet Gaynor in a series of popular pictures. His latest was "The Man Who Came Back."

The bride is a native of Chicago, where she was born Virginia Sweeney. The groom hails from New England. It is her second marriage, she having divorced Demarest Lamson several years ago. It is his first venture.

HYMIE MUST GO TO CLEVELAND

Gov. Gifford Pinchot today signed extradition papers for the removal of "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin to Cleveland, where he is wanted in connection with the murder of William E. Potter, former councilman. His signing was in line with the recommendation of Deputy Attorney General James W. Shull, at a hearing in Harrisburg yesterday. Immediately afterwrd Cleveland officers took the papers to Pittsburgh.

Martin's "double" was introduced at the hearing by the suspect's counsel, Attorney Samuel S. Rosenberg, to prove that Hymie's arrest as the occupant of the apartment in which Potter's body was found, was a case of mistaken identity. According to news dispatches, the man who strongly resembled Hymie was identified later as a younger brother of the suspect.

The extradition proceedings will not interfere with a hearing tomorrow before Judge Joseph Stadtfeld in Common Pleas Court on petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

NEWSPAPER ADS HELD BEST

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Newspapers are the best advertising medium for trust companies, said Charles H. McMahon, assistant vice president of the First National Bank of Detroit, at the opening session today of the mid-winter trust conference now being held here. He said:

"For the purpose of educating the public to the idea of corporate trust service, newspapers are ideal. They reach more than 95 per cent of all persons in the will-making class. They carry many educational features and are depended upon by many readers for instruction as well as news."

Habit, said McMahon, is one of the greatest forces in human activities, and the daily newspaper reading is an outstanding habit of the American people. He added:

"A financial advertiser has assurance that today he can reach the literate population of any or all communities by advertising in the newspapers. Newspaper advertising duplicates the influence of all other advertising and touches, in addition, fields that are exclusively its own."

College Romance Fails, Wife Sues

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Alleging failure to support, Mrs. Evelyn K. Leonard, 21, of Chicago, seeks final separation from Howard B. Leonard in a divorce bill filed yesterday, designed to end a short-lived college romance. Both said they were students at Ohio Wesleyan when married February 6, 1930, at Moundsville, W. Va.

New Device Saves Lives of 5 Babies

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The use of a new artificial respiration machine designed especially for infants, has saved the lives of five new-born babies, when all other means of resuscitation had failed, it was said today by authorities at the Michael Reese Hospital.

Tribute for Poland Presented by Legion

WASHINGTON, Fev. 17.—(INS.)—The Polish ambassador, Tytus Filipowicz, today received for his government from the American Legion, an engrossed resolution paying tribute to the memory of Dr. Paul Fitzsimmons Eve, an American, who served in the Polish struggle for independence of 1830-31. The presentation was made by Legionnaire Nathaniel Spear, Jr., of Pittsburgh.

HEIRESS' CODE CAUSED RAID

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—An injunction hearing before Master in Chancery James P. Harold was awaited today to furnish new light in the court contest between W. Perkins Bull, K. C. of London and Toronto, and Dr. John Streeter Sidley, of Racine, Wis. Hearing is scheduled for tomorrow.

The petition, brought by Dr. Sidley, estranged husband of Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley, heiress to the Horlick millions, asks that Bull be enjoined from setting private detectives on Sidley's trail. Dr. Sidley has brought suit for $250,000 against Bull because of the alleged use of the operatives.

Federal officers who took both Bull and Mrs. Sidley in custody Saturday following raids on their hotel suites said today that they were misled by a code that was used between the two to discuss Mrs. Sidley's pending divorce action. The wealthy Canadian is acting as Mrs. Sidley's counsel.

Extra! Armstrong And McGovern Agree!!

County Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and Charles C. McGovern agreed today.

When a letter from the Chamber of Commerce was read today to County Commissioners suggesting a method for operation of the county airport, Commissioner McGovern said:

"I move that letter be filed in the cellar."

Commissioner Armstrong spoke up promptly:

"I second that motion."

The letter suggested organization of an airport commission or an air board to operate the airport. Attached was a copy of a report from the Chamber's Aeronautic Committee, of which Ray M. Marlier is chairman.

WICKERSHAM'S BOARD MUM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The law enforcement commission returned today to the almost complete silence that characterized the days preceding its prohibition report.

Chairman Wickersham declined to answer all questions as to when, how, or if the commission would comply with the Senate resolution adopted yesterday, requesting all the non-secret testimony and data upon which the now historic prohibition report was based.

The opinion was expressed at commission headquarters, however, that it would be difficult to submit the data until the commission had an opportunity to rearrange it.

The commission does not meet again until March 4. Congress hopes to end its session on that date.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Official decision was expected today in the investigation of arrest of the crew of 11 of the Canadian power boat, Algie. The men were taken in custody after they sent a call for help to coast guardsmen when their craft foundered off Long Island. Coast guardsmen claimed the boat was loaded with liquor.

GANDHI PARLEY 'SATISFACTORY'

NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Mahatma Gandhi, emerging from a four-hour conference with Viceroy Lord Irwin this afternoon, made the most cheerful pronouncement regarding the prospects for eventual agreement in India that he has made in months. The little brown man said:

"I'm satisfied, even optimistic."

He added that he will talk again with the viceroy tomorrow.

The negotiations were delayed that Gandhi might finish his spinning, a rite he carries out daily to symbolize he necessity of the boycott against British-made cloth.

Viceroy Lord Irwin hoped in the negotiations to persuade Gandhi to call off the civil disobedience campaign and collaborate in the working out of a federation and dominion status for India in pursuance of the plans evolved at the Indian round table conference.

Helen Hayes' Babe Year Old; Capone Shuns Party

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Miss Mary MacArthur, in public life "The Act of God," had a birthday party Sunday, but Al Capone wasn't there.

Mary's father said Al was going to be there. He sent out invitations which read:

"To meet Al Capone."

Mary wasn't there either. She was fast asleep upstairs in her own apartment.

The baby who closed "Coquette" is now one year old, weighs 23 pounds, has six teeth and can say "Papa" and three words in French.

She has never been inside a theater. And if her mother—Miss Helen Hayes in the theater, Mrs. Charles MacArthur at home—has anything to say about it, she won't be an actress.

"She is more beautiful than Brooklyn Bridge."

Her mother adds:

"I hope she won't go in for a career. I'd like her to be rather a useless citizen. And I hope she marries young."

"I hope that I'll never hear her say:

" 'Father, I do wish you'd stop using such outrageous language. I get so embarrassed before company.' "

Suspect Denied Bail In Kidnaping of Girl

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Charged with the kidnaping of Rose Yasso, 10, Anthony Cutrone, Brooklyn, was held today without bail for trial. He was indicted yesterday and pleaded not guilty. Cutrone was identified by witnesses as the man seen with a child resembling Rose on a bus near Montclair, N. J., on February 4, three days after she disappeared.

Compensation Board Approved by Senate

HARRISBURG, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The Senate last night confirmed the appointment of the new Workmen's Compensation Board, comprising Arthur C. Dale, Bellefonte, chairman; William J. Burchinal, Connellsville, and Edward J. Hunter, Philadelphia. Their terms run from next Friday to the third Tuesday of January, 1935. Also confirmed were the appointments of Porter Scott, Butler, and Fred A. Schmidt, Nanticoke, as aldermen.

Suggest Dormont, Mt. Lebanon Merger

Merger of Dormont with Mt. Lebanon and widening of West Liberty avenue and Banksville road were among the suggestions made in questionnaires returned to Dormont Chamber of Commerce. The answers were read at a meeting of the chamber in the Dormont Municipal Building last night. A radio for police, smoke abatement regulations and moves toward cheaper and better transportation were suggested.

Wolheim Recovering After Operation

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Louis Wolheim, screen "villain," was recovering today from an operation he underwent yesterday for what surgeons diagnosed as a "primary stomach condition with chronic appendicitis."

The ailment, the medical men said, was induced by a recent successful attempt by the actor to reduce.

IRENE CHEERED BY SON'S VISIT

the time for his daily visit, he trotted off to the corner store to buy a valentine. The brightest and most colorful one that attracted his childish delight had a big heart and a clock on it.

The inscription read:

"It's high time to say I love you."

ENCOURAGES GRANDFATHER

Yesterday he came to the jail with his grandfather, Joe Crawford, father of the doomed Irene. Dannie looked up into the pained face of the old man and voiced a proud boast:

"I'm gonna bring mamma back home with us."

The old man smiled sadly.

"Yes, Donnie! I wish we could bring my baby home."

The boy was off in a moment, scampering after something else. He is too young to realize his mother's plight. She doesn't want him to realize it.

To close friends, she has said:

"I don't want anyone ever to cast up to my son that his mother was a murderess—protect him from this, won't you?"

AGED MAN PRAYS

The aged father's grief-lined face tells a pitiful story of suffering and worry. He thinks of nothing else these days but his "baby." Irene is the youngest of five sisters and three brothers. He prays for her. He declares:

"If they kill my baby, they'll kill me. I ask God every night that they won't kill her."

The elder Crawford will be 70 in July. He spends most of his time with friends here, forsaking his fish-peddling trade in Benwood, W. Va., where he has lived all his life.

For a week he has visited his daughter in her cell every day. He comes and goes at will, staying with her hours at a time and then suddenly leaving to refresh himself with a slow walk around the grounds, and returns for another visit.

Irene's expressed wish for a hat as a birthday present had to go unheeded. Her father said he did not feel that he could afford to spend the money.

DAGUE MOSTLY ALONE

He sometimes sits with Dague, who for the most part is alone in his cell in the men's section of the jail. He rarely has visitors. His wife, Theresa Dague, Benwood school teacher, and their two children, Delmar and Marlyn, came to see him numerous times last summer, but their visits proved irksome to the big, silent West Virginian. He pleaded with jail attaches to curtail his wife's frequent visits, and when she learned this she returned to West Virginia with bitterness in her heart.

Recently, however, she has again rallied to his defense in a letter offering her services to his counsel, Attorneys Thomas W. Dickey and Benjamin Jarrett. She writes:

"My boy said to me, 'Mother, daddy has hurt us, but we must not do anything to hurt him—I only wish I was big enough to do something for him.' I know now that when Delmar is older he would feel badly if I have spoken ill of his daddy."

OFFERS TO MAKE APPEAL

She offered to go to Harrisburg to appeal in person for him before the Pardon Board.

Attorney Dickey answered her letter yesterday, telling her it was useless to make the trip because she would not be heard.

Dickey and Jarrett are leaving tonight for Harrisburg. They will be joined at Johnstown by Attorney Percy Allen Rose, specially retained by Mrs. Ella Mountz, wealthy Houtzdale coal operator, to assist in the defense of Irene and Dague. They will make joint appeals to the board of pardons tomorrow, asking that the death sentence in each case be commuted to life imprisonment.

THINGS WORTH SAVING FOR

"Now we know how Columbus felt!"

"BUSSES . . . trolleys . . . sometimes a train—were all the transportation we had. How could we know what wonderful places were only ten or twenty miles away?

"Now we have a car—just big enough for Mary and Junior and I. We got it with savings.

"And now we've learned that there is nothing quite like the thrill that comes with owning your first automobile . . . and starting out on your career of discovery."

Another thrill is the one of saving up to own your car—when you know that soon your bank book total will be big enough . . . soon you'll shop around . . . and pick your car. A few dollars in the bank each week has done it for many folks. And will do it for you.

We will help you. We make it easy to start—with a small amount. We add interest every 6 months, at 4 per cent per annum. And the interest seems almost like a gift when you draw it out. Start your savings account with us today.

WHAT MAKES PEOPLE MOODY?

DID you know that our health and our moods are closely related to intestinal cleanliness?

When the system is clogged by constipation, poisons are generated. Often these bring on headaches and listlessness. You feel blue, or become irritable.

The poisons of constipation frequently aggravate nervous troubles, rheumatism, high blood-pressure and heart trouble.

Yet constipation can be overcome by eating a delicious cereal: Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Two tablespoonfuls daily are guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation.

Try it with milk or cream. Use in cooking too. Recipes on the red-and-green package. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BIRTH CONTROL BILL OFFERED

HARRISBURG, Feb. 17.—Birth control would be made permissible and the ban on contraceptives would be lifted in a bill submitted in Legislature today by Max J. Spann, House member from the Squirrel Hill district.

The bill, in the form of an amendment, is supported by the Birth Control League, representatives of which requested Spann to drop it in the hopper.

It would not change the existing law in so far as it prohibits the advertising of contraceptives and prevents the publication of "obscene advertisements and sale of noxious medicines."

BILL ASKS ZONE LAW CHANGE

HARRISBURG, Feb. 17.—A change in the law which permits the Pittsburgh City Council to overrule the City Planning Commission is proposed in a bill sponsored in the House by Representative Spann of the Fifth Allegheny District. The law as it stands provides that decisions of the commission can be changed by a three-fourths vote of council. Spann's bill would make the culminating vote two-thirds.

Appointment of a deputy controller in Pittsburgh is proposed in another Spann bill. In the event the controller fails to name a deputy City Council is given power to fill the vacancy.

Washington Fort Site Purchase Asked

HARRISBURG, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Senator Harry J. Bell and Representative Joseph Henderson, of Fayette County, today introduced bills simultaneously in the Senate and House to appropriate $25,000 to buy the farm on which Fort Necessity is located, nine miles east of Uniontown.

At Fort Necessity George Washington surrendered for the first and last time. The battle was fought during the French and Indian War. Retreating and pursued by the French and a large number of Indians, after he had started toward Fort Duquesne, Washington built the fort over night but was forced to capitulate a few days later.

ROONEY SEEKS BEER PLEA BY ASSEMBLY

Pittsburgher Would Appeal To Congress; Action Near On City Manager Measure

HARRISBURG, Feb. 17.—A demand that Congress modify the Volstead Act to permit 2.75 beer was presented in the House today by Representative James P. Rooney, of the North Side, Pittsburgh.

In a resolution the former Pitt football star asked the House to memorialize Congress "to aid in relieving the unemployment crisis by modifying the federal prohibition law so that beer containing an alcoholic content of not more than 2.75 per cent by volume shall be deemed not intoxicating."

The city manager bill which would make Pittsburgh mayors ceremonial figureheads is to be reported from committee before the day is over and placed on the House calendar for action, it is predicted. Representative D. Glenn Moore, Washington, is its sponsor. The bill provides election by Pittsburgh Council of a manager given control of the actual administration of the city while the mayor continues in office to represent the city officially in formal functions. Proportional representation in electing members of Council is another feature of the Moore bill.

Man Who Enlisted With Father in Civil War Dies

SALISBURY, Pa., Feb. 17.—Howard William De Lozier, 80, one of the youngest survivors of the Union Army of the Civil War, died at his home here after a brief illness. When aged 14 years, he enlisted in Company C, 209th Pennsylvania Infantry, deceiving the enlisting authorities as to his age as he was 6 feet tall. He and his father, Terrence De Lozier, enlisted at the same time, both serving until discharged.

OFFERS SUNDAY CONCERT BILL

HARRISBURG, Feb. 17.—Sunday afternoon concerts, with paid admissions, would become legal with a permit issued by the Department of Public Instruction under a bill offered today by State Senator Clarence J. Buckman, Bucks County. At present such concerts are banned by Sunday blue laws.

The Buckman measure permits the concerts to be held in school or state owned buildings with consent of boards in charge of these buildings. Admission charges may be used to pay musicians, janitors and other fixed charges at week-day rates. Any cash balance must be paid to the Department of Public Instruction to promote public music.

Grandson of Poet Tennyson Visits U. S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Lord Tennyson, grandson of the English poet, will arrive here tomorrow. It is his first visit to America.

STATE BONUS VOTE APPROVED

HARRISBURG, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The House passed finally by a vote of 195 to 2 the joint resolution of Representative Cauffiel, Cambria, providing for submission to the electorate of an amendment to the constitution to permit appropriations for a soldiers' bonus.

The resolution must be passed by two Legislatures before going to the voters.

SECOND UTILITY QUIZ VOTED

RUSSELL CONSIDERED

It was considered a possibility that Charles Russell, deposed Federal Power Commission employe, might be invited before the administration's investigation, giving the investigation a national aspect.

It will at least "steal the show" from the Senate inquiry, limited in scope, which yesterday held its second hearing.

John F. Weiss, chief counsel, was the first and only witness called at yesterday's hearing. On the whole, he testified the commission was doing very well. He admitted a spirit of friendly cooperation had grown up between the utilities and members of the commission.

Senator William Ryal, of Westmoreland County, asked about the raise in gas rates in Pittsburgh, through which the public paid increased prices four years before the commission handed down a decision favorable to the utilities.

Weiss said he didn't know why the case was delayed. He did say the valuation case involving the Scranton Spring Brook water service, which took two years, should have been finished sooner, and that in his opinion the rate increase granted was slightly high.

He suggested a people's counsel to "defend the public, and changes in the law to remedy the conditions."

PINCHOT VISITED BY BROOKHART

Both the senator and the governor said their meeting was purely of a social nature. Senator Brookhart has been speaking in Pennsylvania and stopped in at the executive offices en route from Selinsgrove to Lancaster.

Senator Brookhart said he found as much Progressive sentiment in the East as in the West, and added that all that was needed in the East was Progressive leadership. Then, looking at the governor, he said:

"Here in Pennsylvania you have the leadership."

The senator said he believed the governor would win his present "battle in the Legislature with the utilities, if not this session, then the next."

Clothing Aflame, Man Jumps in River

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—William Myers jumped into the Potomac River here today to save himself from fire, but may die from the burns he received.

Myers, a quarry workman, and a companion had worked all night repairing a motor boat and his clothing was saturated with gasoline. The clothing caught fire when Myers lay down beside an open fire to sleep.

Missouri Treasurer Faces Impeachment

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Impeachment of Larry Brunk, state treasurer of Missouri, on 12 specific charges involving "negligence" and "criminal malfeasance," was recommended to the Missouri House of Representatives today by a special investigating committee.

Boy Conquers Shark By Jabbing Its Eye

BRISBANE, Australia, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Stanley Roser, 18, beat off a shark which attacked him while he was swimming today. The man eater bowled him over in the water with a furious rush, but in his struggle to escape Roser jammed a thumb in the shark's eye and it fled.

SLEUTHS KILL 2 IN STILL RAID

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—A gun battle on a Kentucky river cliff between two Fayette County officers and two alleged moonshiners resulted in fatal wounds to Noah Lamb, 25, and John Martin, 25, who the officers said were operating a still.

Both men died within a half hour after the shooting. The officers, County Patrolman W. F. Clark and Constable Carl Sweeney, came to Lexington and related their story.

Clark and Sweeney were members of a raiding party of four. The others, Patrolmen Robert Reynolds and James Fortner, did not engage in the battle. Clark declared the men fired on the officers after being ordered to surrender, and the sleuths returned the fire.

No charges were placed against the officers.

Kotex deodorizes

. . . one of the many reasons you should demand this sanitary pad

DAINTY women appreciate the fact that Kotex deodorizes thoroughly. They like, too, the way it is shaped to fit inconspicuously and the soothing, lasting softness that differentiates Kotex from ordinary sanitary pads.

You will feel secure, safe—once you adopt this modern protection. Kotex is highly absorbent—five times more than surgical cotton. And it absorbs over a larger area, gives you greater protection.

You can wear it on either side, with no fear of embarrassment, with the very same efficiency.

Our leading hospitals, taking the very greatest precautions in all sanitary measures, insist upon Kotex for their women patients. Try Kotex—for your health's sake. It is, of course, disposable.

THE BEST PLACE TO SHOP, AFTER ALL

An Introductory Sale of 2500 Stevens BEDSPREADS

At Special Prices

Stevens, one of the largest bedspread manufacturers of the country, whose reputation goes back to the old Marseilles spread days, has been standing the industry on its head lately. They've gone modern in a big way, hired a lot of youthful original designers, and are bent upon giving the bedspread a first place in the decorative scheme of the well-furnished boudoir. Their efforts are being enthusiastically received wherever shown.

The Stevens people believe that a spread on the bed is worth two in the show case, and have chosen Horne's, as Pittsburgh's leading store, to introduce their new Colonial coverlets and jacquard rayon spreads to Pittsburgh homes, through the medium of a Sale and special prices. Many of the patterns are new this season and are shown for the first time in the Sale.

We are pleased to be chosen to make this introduction, and we believe that Pittsburgh housewives, ever alert for new ideas, will be more than pleased at the double opportunity presented by this Sale. If the experiences of other cities are any criterion, these 2500 bedspreads will go quickly. Both single and double bed sizes are offered at these prices.

Filet

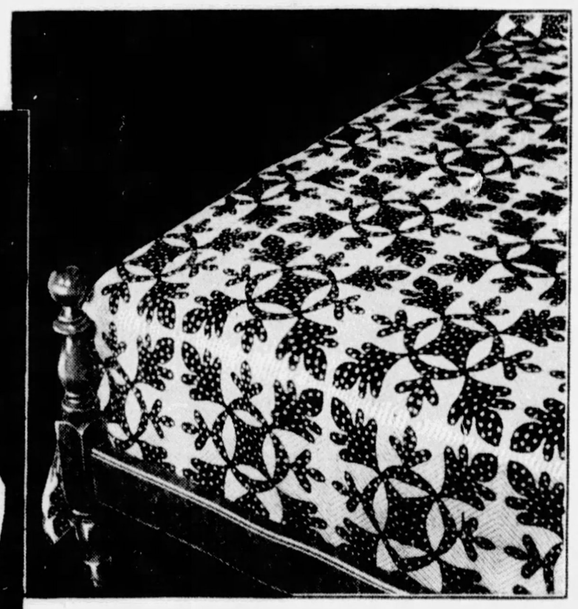
Pictured below, a cotton spread so much like lace it gives the impression of a filet lace spread thrown over a colored cover. This is the spread for the bedroom that must be in fashion. In blue, rose, gold, orchid, green, and peach.

Also at $4.50, "Pine Tree"—a Colonial checked design with pine tree border; and "Glorious," a delustered rayon taffeta with a design of flower baskets, butterflies and ribbons.



Poinsettia

A graceful, open poinsettia repeated at precise intervals on a quilted-effect background makes this the coverlet for any type of early 17th or 18th Century room. In rose, blue, gold, green, orchid, and rust.

Romany

Forefather's

The exact design of an original Cherry Valley patchwork quilt in the authentic calico colors as well as in blue, rose, green, and orchid. Made for the Early American room but suited for any other simply furnished room.

Other Stevens Spreads

"Woven Chintz," a fine cotton spread with an iris motif and rosette border, is priced $5.50. "Empire," a rayon spread in a stately symmetric design for French rooms, is $6.75. "Antique Shadowlight," a new kind of rayon spread gives the effect of two-tone shadows, $7.50. "Crewel" reproduces in rayon the effect of old English embroidery. Priced $7.50.

SEEK RUDY VALENTINO SPIRIT TALK

NOTED PSYCHIC ENGAGED FOR EXPERIMENT

Mediums Strive for Idol's Answers to 12 Questions, Including Cause of Death

Request from Editor

I was deeply interested when confronted with a request from an editor to establish communication with Valentino and to induce him to answer a number of questions which had been submitted by readers. Instantly I recognized the fact that the great motion picture actor offered an exceptional chance for the success of such an attempt.

Millions loved him when he was alive and millions still think of him with love and admiration.

Valentino dealt in love, and the people of the world felt that divine thrill through his craftsmanship. And love binds more tightly than any bond that human hands can impose. If you doubt, ask the philosophers of the ages and seek the truth in your own hearts.

No Barriers

Love knows no barriers—not even death! The bond of love must still reach the idol of the people in the land of mystery. Communication should be less difficult than with almost any other person. I agreed to make the attempt. I said:

"But I have studied such things for many years and know too much to promise success. I can only make some suggestions and write an account of what happens."

The editor nodded gravely and placed before me the questions which the readers of his publication wished Valentino to answer. I was alarmed by the third question:

"How did you die? Were any of the rumors of shooting and poisoning at all justified?"

My mind went back to the tragic end of the famous screen artist and I thought of those sensational rumors which had been in circulation at the time.

Fearful of Result

Suppose that we should actually reach the man we sought. What would be the result if his mind were suddenly focused upon his own terrible end? Violence sometimes occurs at seances. And, then, what might be the answer to such a question? What? I said firmly:

"The third question must be moved to the bottom of the list. It is dangerous. It might break up the seance."

Again the editor nodded gravely and I realized that I was to have a free hand. It only remained to decide upon the medium and to arrange for his services. After considerable thought I selected George Wehner.

Wehner Well Known

George Wehner is well known to the public because of his book, "A Curious Life," and because of his many interesting magazine articles dealing with psychic matters. I have sat with him in seances upon a number of occasions and I have good reason to believe that he is thoroughly honest. He is capable of remaining in a state of trance for hours at a time, and upon these occasions I have sometimes heard him speak words which would seem impossible to emanate from other than the minds of people who had died.

Of course any trance medium says much, when in trance, which might arise in his own subconscious mind and in the minds of those who are sitting in the circle. Nor can he be held accountable for what he says.

A genuine trance medium does not know what he says during the seance any more than a hypnotized subject knows what happens during his state of hypnosis. Perhaps he speaks from his own subconscious mind, from the minds of the sitters and—from the minds of the dead! Why not?

Evening of Seance

The evening of the seance arrived. The great experiment was to be made in the huge photographic studio of the publication. Studio lights and cameras were shoved against the walls. In the center of the room was arranged a circle of comfortable chairs.

A particularly large and comfortable chair was reserved for the medium who sometimes bangs his head unmercifully against the chair when entering the state of trance or when convulsed with emotions during that trance. Only a soft light prevailed, enough for me to read the questions and for the pretty stenographer who sat behind the medium's chair.

Wehner Takes Place

I was a little afraid on account of the stenographer. She might become nervous and forget to take down Valentino's words—if Valentino communicated! She told me that it was her first seance, but that she was not the least bit afraid. Girls of today have courage.

Wehner entered and took his place in the great chair. He asked for a glass of water. Water is usually drank by mediums just before entering the trance condition. While the water was being brought I studied him. He seemed a trifle nervous, which is only natural for a man who is sincere when about to perform in an unconscious condition.

I glanced around the circle. Ruth Roland, motion picture actress, sat opposite the medium. She it was who had known Valentino intimately. Was she about to talk with him again? Mostly, the editors present were silent, waiting. There was a tenseness. Nobody knew what was going to happen.

The glass of water was brought. Wehner drank half of it and leaned his head back against the chair. His eyes closed and he appeared to be asleep. There was silence. Nobody wanted to talk. Psychic investigation is a serious matter.

Medium Quiet

Wehner seemed so quiet and restful that a contrast flashed into my mind. Once, high up in a room of the Ansonia Hotel, I had seen this same medium try to throw himself through the window into the street. I am athletic myself and a stronger man helped me catch him just before he flung himself against the glass of the window.

At the moment his body was supposed to be in the possession of a man who had committed suicide and it seemed as though the departed entity wished to repeat his fatal deed. It was only by a bit of luck that we were in time to avert a second tragedy that evening.

Suddenly, amid the silence of the big studio, the medium jerked his head violently against the side of his chair. His face became contorted and his lips twitched.

George Wehner was entering the state of trance. From side to side his head jerked and wobbled while an expression of agony flitted on and off his face. After a period there came more restfulness and then—the music!

Cheeks Puff

The medium's cheeks puffed out. His lips pursed. He began to whistle. And such whistling! The tones were dulcet, throbbing, beautiful beyond ordinary whistling. I had heard this whistling before and I knew that Wehner's body was now supposed to be inhabited by a musician named Frank, who had been a flute player and who had died in Detroit.

Soon the whistling stopped and the medium leaned forward in his chair, eyes closed, head sagging. From his mouth the alleged Frank spoke in a strained voice to several in the circle. The medium's hand rose weakly and pointed toward Ruth Roland.

FRANK: You also love music?

RUTH ROLAND: I like all music.

FRANK: I hear the vibrations of singing. Did you sing at one time?

RUTH ROLAND: Yes, I do sing.

FRANK: Mezzo?

RUTH ROLNAD: No. Contralto.

FRANK: But you could sing mezzo? You have a very wide range. I can feel the vibrations.

RUTH ROLAND: Yes, I have quite a wide range.

Silence Reigns

There was silence and the medium's head rested against the chair. His eyes were closed and his face was still except for a little twitching. The stenographer ceased writing and peered curiously at the strange expression upon the medium's face. None knew what might come next.

"How, everybody!"

It was the voice of an Indian that boomed out unexpectedly. He talked of mountains and trees and water to various sitters in the circle. This, undoubtedly, was Whitecloud, the alleged control or spirit guide of the medium. (I use the word "alleged" in the interest of exact truth and not in any disrespect to the medium.)

For minutes Whitecloud talked about the great open spaces of the country and about people who had died. It is a pity that space prohibits a full transcription. Finally silence came again.

Hesitating Voice

Then came a hesitating voice, the alleged voice, speaking through the medium of Gabrielo, the mother of Valentino. She spoke a few words to me:

GABRIELO: You wait for my son?

THE WRITER: I do.

GABRIELO: I am his madre.

THE WRITER: Is your boy coming to us tonight? We shall be very grateful to him if he does.

GABRIELO: Si, amico. These are friends?

THE WRITER: Yes.

GABRIELO: (To Ruth Roland) I never knew you in the earth world, but I know you because I saw you talking to my boy. Rudolfo will be pleased. I will go now and he will come. Buona notte.

(Copyright, 1931, by Hearst Enterprises)

In the second installment of this absorbing narrative in tomorrow's issue the author will tell the answers to the questions prepared for submission to Valentino as uttered at the seance by Wehner, the medium.

VALENTINO DURING LIFE

RUDOLPH VALENTINO . . . LOVED BY THOUSANDS OF FANS

Valentino with the former Winifred DeWolfe Hudnut, his wife, before they were separated preceding his death in New York City.

THE TWELVE QUESTIONS

The questions submitted in the accompanying article by R. T. M. Scott were these 12 questions to Rudolph Valentino, as they were submitted through George Wehner, the medium:

Does a person on this earth need to be psychic in order to communicate with a person who has died, and does such a communication have to pass through a medium?

If you had lived, would you have gone into the talkies?

What is the relation of husband and wife in the spirit world? Are they together or aren't those things important?

Is one immediately cured after death of the disease from which he died?

Do people ever return to this world as ghosts, perhaps?

Can you communicate with anyone as you would like, or must you be sent by a higher power?

Are you thoroughly settled in your present sphere or will you move on to other places?

Have you ever returned to haunt your house in Hollywood?

Had you any premonition that you were going to die?

Do you see Lon Chaney? What film folk are your friends . . . spirit land?

How did you die? Was there any justification in the rumors of shooting or poisoning?

SCIENCE ENDS STOMACH PAIN

New Prescription To Banish Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Sourness, Gas and Resulting Nervousness and Sleeplessness

Burning acid stomach, pain after eating, belching, gas, bloating, heartburn, dizziness, and the resulting nervousness, sleeplessness, and colds won't trouble you if you use the new prescription ACIDINE.

Mrs. B. C. Hill of Ogden, Utah, says: "I had trouble for four years with my stomach and had taken baking soda and many medicines but they would give me only momentary relief. I tried the sample of ACIDINE which you mailed me and it was so good that I bought a large can and after using half of it, haven't had a pain in my stomach since. ACIDINE surely is wonderful."

No other known remedy for acidity surpasses Acidine. Contains an effective starch digestant, Japtase, which liquefies 500 times its own weight of starchy food under proper conditions. Five other scientific ingredients neutralize burning acid, stop gas, soothe irritated stomach lining. Its instantaneous action in cleaning up the troubles that commonly lead to stomach distress is more pleasing than you would believe possible.

Acidine is safe, harmless and pleasant for adults and children. Used by millions of people. It costs you nothing if it fails, for the Acidine people say to every druggist, "If any customer is displeased with the results obtained from Acidine, give them back their money immediately. We stand behind this product absolutely." Keep Acidine in your home always.

PROTEST RAMP WOMAN BURNED TRAFFIC RULE IN HOME BLAST

Residents of the North Side and neighboring boroughs have complained to City Council against closing of the Water street entrance to the Manchester bridge. All traffic between the downtown and North Side must approach the bridge by way of the Duquesne way ramp under a 60-day ruling of the director of department of safety.

The complaint is made in petitions signed by several hundred residents of the sections said to be inconvenienced by the ruling. The restriction is provided in an ordinance now before Council.

Petitioners state that motorists should be permitted to use either the Duquesne way or the Water street ramp at any time and believe the proposed legislation will not remedy the present traffic situation.

Scorch burned body and face when a gas explosion wrecked her home, Mrs. Ossie Hellman, 50, Negro, of 3412 Centre street, was in a critical condition in St. Francis Hospital today. Fire followed the explosion.

The explosion occurred police say, when the woman attempted to light a gas stove yesterday on the second floor. Scorch burned the rest from the building and was taken to the hospital by police.

The family of James Reddish, Negro, including two small children who occupied the first floor of the dwelling, escaped unhurt. The force of the explosion blew out the front of the building, hurling glass across the street and rocking nearby buildings. Damage was estimated at $2,500.

IT IS NOT real war. It's just the naval version of the Wickersham report.

THE BLACKS and Blues fire dummy torpedoes, shoot blank broadsides and intercept each others groceries.

That's news. Most important is that they have plans.

Next is that they're going to make it a race.

Completely ignoring Smith, Davis and Jones.

The Democrats outtalk the Republicans, but the other boys outcount the Democrats.

Jeffersonian and Jacksonian democracy are splendid selling points. But the modern Democrat forgets that those two boys won an election once in a while.

Here's some free advice that can be shaken up well before losing. If you nominate a man named Kaloozle don't keep yelling about Henry Clay, Stephen Douglas or Napoleon, three boys who haven't been affected by votes for many an evaporated year.

The Republicans are smart. They don't take the voter for a sight-seeing tour around a bend in the road. While the Democrats are pointing out the beautiful statues in the cemetery, the Republicans are concentrating on the hot dog stands and the real estate.

The Republican National Committee is also an intricate system of benevolent espionage and philanthropic distributions. When it promises you a harbor you don't get a puddle and when it guarantees you a post-office it ain't any hollow tree.

It keeps all the promises it remembers. It may not mark the sparrow's fall. But it certainly does register every baby born in a Republican district.

Why not steal a leaf from the opposition book and start some double-entry statistics yourself? It may not be ethical. But we know that the straightest of trees has the crookedest of roots.

And this article is no different from any other political thesis. It starts out to tell you what's wrong with the country and winds up as a lesson in calisthentics, fresh air and botany.

HOW TO ESCAPE FLU

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where flu germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; overheated, stuffy rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others, and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air, but avoid drafts or chilling.

3 Get lots of rest. Eat plenty of citrus fruits. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precautions to keep in sound physical condition, so your system will have high resistance against germs.

4 Above all, avoid catching colds. They lower your resistance to the flu germ. Ward them off. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin and remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin dissolved in water at the first indication of sore throat, as this will relieve the soreness and reduce the inflammation.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

ALMA RUBENS REVEALS FUTILE FIGHT AGAINST DOPE

'STAR HOUNDED BY PEDDLERS AFTER 'CURE'

Fashionable Doctor Gave Her 'Shot,' for Drug Ring 'Never Loses Single Trick'

By ALMA RUBENS.

CHAPTER XVI.

"But I gave you $300 last week to send your mother to Texas on a trip," I said.

"Never you mind about my mother, I'll take care of that. You hand me over that $300, and hand it over in real money. Thank you. No phoney, mind you that."

He held up the three fingers of his right hand and stared me in the eyes. "Three hundred dollars," he said; "no more and no less. Do you get me?"

Before I could answer him there was a sound at the door, and when I looked up my mother stood in front of me. She had drawn the portieres aside and come into the room. I'll never forget how she looked that minute. I've dreamed of it a hundred times since. Her face was as white as chalk. She was shaking from head to foot, and her big black eyes were blazing like torches.

Miss Rubens

"What are you saying to my daughter," she said. "Why should she pay you $300, you that were her father's friend, you that belong to the same lodge and wanted to help his daughter get out of the misery she is in. What do you want with three hundred or with three dollars, or with one dollar that she has worked hard to earn?"

The federal narcotic agent jumped to his feet. "Come outside, Mrs. Rubens," he said. "Don't get excited about all this. We'll talk it over together, you and I."

"No, we won't talk it over together," said my mother, "and you won't talk it over with my poor little girl, either. You walk out of this house and you stay out."

And walk out he did, and stay out he did, but he found me at other places, and I paid him his blood money just the same, and then I went back to the doctor who had been selling me a dollar tube of dope for $150. If you want to know the name of that doctor and his address, you can find it in the report of the grand jury that investigated him and his dope selling activities about two years ago in Los Angeles.

You can find the name of the federal agent there, too. No, the agent was not discharged from the government service, not at all. I don't say that he had something on the high officials abbve him that made them protect him. I do not say that the federal narcotic commissioner in Washington at that time was a little preoccupied with political affairs, perhaps, but somehow or other, this agent is still in the government service. He has been transferred to Texas. I presume he has relatives there.

Doctor Protected

The doctor, no, I have never heard that the California Medical Association took the doctor's license to practice away; though, of course, they may have done so since then without my knowledge.

He was a very well known doctor with very handsome offices and a large clientele of rich women as his patients. His specialty is obstetrics. I suppose dope is merely a side line. I've often wondered how many of his patients he soothes with morphine.

When my mother discovered that I really was a drug addict without any question of a doubt, she started the real fight to cure me of my hideous disease, for drug addiction is a disease, and one of the most loathsome, agonizing diseases to which human beings are subject.

This was a fight that broke my mother's health, and broke her heart, too, but it never broke her courage or her loyal devotion to me; no, not for one minute.

When the fashionable Los Angeles doctor was arrested and charged with selling me dope among dozens of other patients, he said on the witness stand before the grand jury that he sold dope to me for my mother, as my mother was suffering from cancer.

My mother went on the stand voluntarily and testified that she had never suffered from cancer or from any other painful disease in her life, and that she had not only never seen this doctor, but that she had never even heard of him until she learned to her horror and consternation that I was getting dope from him.

Mother Brave

All this was merely one skirmish in the long, weary, heartsickening fight which my brave mother began to make for me from the very hour she learned the truth about the dope.

I had become very expert in hiding the traces of the drug habit. My husband, Dr. Goodman, was a very intelligent man and a physician himself, and I had to be most careful not to let him suspect my slavery.

When he did begin to suspect it, he did everything he could to cure me, but it was no use. I couldn't seem to break the chains of dope, no matter how hard I tried, and I did try—in deep and desperate earnest I tried. I went from one cure to another; I tried to taper off on hyoceine. I remember the awful tremors and cold sweats, and terrifying nightmares that hyoceine gave me.

Sometimes for days I'd think I was beginning to see a little hope, and then some strain would come and down I would go again.

After I divorced Dr. Goodman and married Cortez, the screen actor, things went from bad to worse. To do Mr. Cortez justice he never suspected that I was an addict, not for a long time, and when he did begin to suspect it, he did everything he could to help me. But my mother was my chief comfort and aid, and most of the time my only hope.

She never lost heart, she never gave up. I thought time and time again I wished I would go to sleep and never open my eyes to the light of day again.

I went from doctor to doctor; some of them helped me for a little while and some drove me deeper and deeper into the mire. I went from one sanitarium to another. I went to Rosemead Sanitarium. I went to Spadra, the state institution, and finally I went to Patton, where they send insane criminals and the innocent insane and a few poor abject slaves of dope.

Dr. Thomas Joyce, of Spadra, cured me of my addiction. He and his wife seem to know just exactly what to do with a poor, tortured, half mad victim of dope to bring hope and peace and sanity into life again, and they did it for me.

Back on 'Junk'

But there was not room or money at Spadra for the after treatment, and that is as important in the cure of a dope case as the first treatment itself, and I hadn't been out of Spadra for two hours before three different dope peddlers came to me and offered me dope to grace me up for the long fight ahead of me.

My old friend, the fashionable obstetric doctor of Los Angeles, came to me on the day I left one of these sanitariums and offered me a shot to pep me up. H said it wouldn't hurt me. I took it and was back on the junk again before I had been off for 24 hours.

The peddlers and their superiors keep what they call a last chance list, and on that list is the name of every poor victim who is trying to make any kind of a fight to get off the junk.

The narcotic agents—federal, state and city—know your name and they know where you live and how long your term at the sanitarium is and when to expect you out.

The the dope dealers have the same profitable information set down in good big letters in the debit side of their ledgers. Escape them if you can.

The federal agent who was blackmailing me into blood money for my dope was kind enough to warn me against another man also in the federal employ.

He told me to look out for this man; that he would bleed me to death if I ever gave him a chance.

The man's name was brought into the grand jury investigation, which took up the case of the first federal narcotic agent and of the fashionable obstetric specialist.

The second man was discharged from the federal service, but I heard his name the other day as being at the head of the vice squad in a large California city. I don't know whether he calls the taking of opium, morphine, heroin, cocaine or marijuana vice or not.

He certainly knows enough about all the ins and outs of dope selling and dope using to be very useful in some capacity or other, with a vice squad.

Some of these sanitariums which are supposed to cure drug addiction are very good, and some of them are worse than merely very bad.

Some of these sanitariums, the one at Spadra, for instance, are well run and humanely administered, but Spadra is not big enough to afford shelter for the after cure, and the after cure is a very important thing.

Nine out of ten of these institutions for the care of the helpless addict and the helpless insane will bear watching, and close watching at that.

Terrible Memories

In one institution where I was locked up for nine months, I remember terrible things.

One of the small peculiarities I observed at that institution was the strange, gray, dirty looking sheet which hung suspended from a big hook in the ceiling in the room adjoining the lavatory for women patients.

I couldn't imagine what this strange, dirty, swaying thing was there for. I soon discovered.

Women coming in from the wards, sick women, insane women, women whose poor shrunken carcasses were rotten to the bone with disease, stopped as they entered the room or left it, and wiped their hands and faces and expectorated into this towel. It hung there for a week before it was changed.

I was considered rather highty-tighty when I got my mother to send me half a dozen large handkerchiefs which I could wash out myself and keep under the pillow in my own cot.

The nurses at some of these institutions wear uniforms and caps, and that's all there is about them that belongs to the habit of a real nurse.

They are not nurses at all—they are attendants.

They are paid $35 a month and you can imagine the type of intelligence which will work in such institutions for such a wage.

I saw brutality and cruelty and outrageous neglect time and time again.

My mother knows the names of the institutions where I saw these things and when I am gone I am sure she will be glad to give those names and all the particulars as she knows them through me and through other patients at those same institutions, to any responsible people who wish to make a thorough and responsible investigation.

But do not send word that you are coming when you want to investigate an institution of that sort and do not wait too long in the outer office before you are allowed to see the patient in whom you are interested.

If you do not know what I mean, ask a few plain questions of a few plain people who know whereof they speak and you will soon know yourself.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Save in Chicago the expression "hot" is seldom used to identify dance bands. Chicago still prefers so-called hot music to any other kind when the jazz masters strike up the band offers an interesting picture of the variety of American taste.

New York has softened jazz, refined it, dressed it up in white tie and high hat. Low, soothing, languorous notes echo through a hundred restaurants, as the crooners of the town do right by the knells of Tin Pan Alley. Even rowdy tunes take on an air of respectability in the metropolis.

* * *

In Chicago, however, jazz is still the gusty, lusty gamin of music that it was when it crept up from the levee of N'Orleans. Chicago recognizes jazz as inherently and incorrigibly a ruffian. And Chicago does not intend to teach a ruffian manners, even the modern cheerful little earful manners of the restaurant dance floor.

* * *

And so Chicago dance bands still go on in for the primitive, almost aboriginal ideas of jazz—the wild, weird notes of brass and tom-tom, wah-wah effects, blatant saxophone tootings, all the reliable, noise-making devices known to man or maestro. They will probably never reform, never become genteel—certainly not as long as gentility is so definitely the New York stamp of jazz.

* * *

* * *

The plain band ring which a visitor to the reception rooms of the NBC studios notices on the third finger of the left hand of the hostesses is not a stage effect. Practically all these young women who greet visitors really are married. For it has been proved—to the radio magnificoes at least—that married women make the best hostesses.

What are the qualifications of these official welcomers of the microphone? Our spies—and they're not advisers to the lovelorn, either—especially poise, courtesy, excellent diction, discretion and common sense.

* * *

And is that all? Not by an eyeful. Each hostess must be charming and gracious as well as pretty. They average, it can be told, from 23 to 25 years of age, and we learn that "the responsibility of a home and a husband give them a serenity and a seriousness that unmarried women of that age often lack." They must also be helpful, always dress in good taste and have the knack of dispensing hospitality as if they meant it.

* * *

More applications are received by NBC for hostess positions than any other classification. The monthly average is about 50. Recently four were considered for a vacancy. One was employed. An ambition for such work appeals to all ages of women, from elderly dowagers to flappers. Critical inspection—and how would you like the job of critical inspector of hostesses?—weeds out those not qualified. The inspection also aims for variety of type. Blondes and brunnettes—and one or two redheads—must be judiciously blended.

* * *

The M. Aylesworth's present staff consists of 14 girls—one to each floor. Most of them are from the East. Southerners are not disqualified, but the typical drawl, it is pointed out, is a handicap. It is difficult to understand on the phone.

* * *

The microphonic moguls have yet to give official recognition to jazz. No dance maestro of the day sits upon the advisory board of the network broadcasters. A lot the maestros care. They continue to dominate the air without going into a huddle.

There will be no rattling of papers in the ears of America if Hoover has his way. A "crackle-proof" manuscript paper for the use of speakers on the air has been developed by the Commerce Department. Fancy that, Senators!

HONOR PASTOR AT LAST RITES

Leaders of the Missouri Synod of the Lutheran Church yesterday paid tribute to the Rev. John K. E. Horst, for 28 years pastor of St. Matthews Lutheran Church, North avenue and Middle street, North Side, who died Thursday afternoon while visiting at the home of one of his church members. Funeral services for the Rev. Mr. Horst were held yesterday afternoon in the church. Burial was in Uniondale Cemetery.

Pastor Horst

The services were attended by 30 pastors of the Pittsburgh circuit and by members of the church and other congregations. The speakers were the Rev. George Spielmann, of Baltimore, chairman of the mission board of the eastern district of the Missouri Synod, and by the Rev. Francis Verwiebe, of Buffalo, first vice president of the Eastern district. The Rev. R. C. Franke, of Millvale, was in charge of the services.

Warns Against Secretaries As Wives

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(INS.) Never marry your secretary, was the advice left with Northwestern University's law students today by Dr. Frederick B. Palmer, of the university's medical faculty. He said:

"Don't even give your secretary preference when you're picking a wife. If she is a good secretary keep her on the job and marry some one else for love and companionship."

The fact that she is a good secretary, he said, is no assurance that she will know how to raise children or be a tactful hostess when a guest trumps her ace.

Daughter Wins Will Fight After 3 Years

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Mrs. Antonette Lloyd Collison, wife of Wilson Collison, novelist, has triumphed in her three-year legal contest with Jack C. Randolph, her stepfather, over the $150,000 estate of her mother, Mrs. May Wheeler Randolph of Pasadena, Cal.

PARK CHARGES TRIAL THREATS

Charges that commonwealth witnesses in an assault and battery case had been threatened were made late yesterday before Judge George V. Moore, when counsel for the defendants asked that their bail be reduced.

Pending appeal for a new trial, District Attorney Andrew Park fixed bail for the defendants, Chester Perella and Joseph Yago, at $20,000. Their counsel argued that the sum was excessive. Park told Judge Moore he set the bail so high because of threats against state witnesses, and because of efforts he declared were made by Yago to "fix" a juror during his trial.

Because of this attempt, Park said, a charge of embracery has been made against Yago. Investigation of the alleged threatening of witnesses is not complete, it was said.

Keller to Address Real Estate Board

A. S. Keller, manager of the industrial division of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, was to address the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board at the weekly luncheon meeting today in Hotel William Penn. He will speak on "Bringing New Industries to Pittsburgh," explaining what the chamber is doing to co-ordinate the efforts of all other organizations in bringing new industries here.

G. A. R. No. 1 Post's Last Member Dies

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 17.—(AP.) All members of Post No. 1, Grand Army of the Republic, have answered the final muster. Abram Henry Corman, last surviving veteran of the post, which was organized at Decatur, Ill., April 6, 1866, was buried here yesterday. Corman, a printer, published its rules and by-laws.

Giaccaglia, Former Opera Star, Dies

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Mrs. Anna S. Giaccaglia, former opera singer, and granddaughter of Gen. Lamanowsky, aide-de-campe to Napoleon I, was dead here today. She was more than 70 years old.

Thug Kicks Victim And Flees With $50

A thug kicked George Michael, a tailor, at 5455 Second avenue, in the stomach in holding up the shop this morning, forced Michael into a rear room and bound him, then fled with $50 taken from the cash register.

If You're Losing Health Here's Good Advice

One man we know had lost a lot of weight. He felt all run down and out of sorts. His precious health was slipping away from him. So his doctor told him he'd have to take cod liver oil. But the poor fellow couldn't take cod liver oil. The nasty taste was just too much for him.

Then one night he discovered a little article in his evening paper. It told him that McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets give all the benefits of the finest liquid cod liver oil. All the vitamins, all the healthful benefits are put into this tiny tasteless tablet form. He read that Good Housekeeping Institute had tested these tablets and given them its seal of approval.

This pale and sickly man got a box of McCoy's. And what a change it made in him! He's got a new grip on life now. His health is normal. He's full of pep and vigor. What McCoy's have done for him they'll do for you. So get your box today. 60 tablets — 60 cents.

Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion

Neutralize Acid After Meals With Bisurated Magnesia. Instant Relief. Makes Stomach Feel Fine

Nearly nine-tenths of all stomach disturbance, indigestion, gas, sourness, heartburn, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of acid in the stomach. Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm.

An acid stomach needs a soothing alkali to instantly neutralize acidity and permit proper digestion. Quickly prove this truth. Lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from May-Liggett Drug Stores, or any reliable druggist a package of Bisurated Magnesia—either powder or tablets—and take some after your next meal. It is amazing how quickly all sourness, gas and pain stop and how good the stomach feels.

You take no risk in trying Bisurated Magnesia. Every druggist is authorized to return the purchase price to any user, who after using one full package, is not completely satisfied. Bisurated Magnesia is harmless, pleasant and convenient to use, and non-laxative. Thousands use it daily.

LUCKIES are always kind to your throat

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows — that's why the "TOASTING" process includes the use of the Ultra Violet Rays. LUCKY STRIKE — made of the finest tobaccos — the Cream of the Crop — THEN — "IT'S TOASTED" — an extra, secret heating process. Harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos are expelled by "TOASTING." These irritants are sold to others. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

The advice of your physician is: Keep out of doors, in the open air, breathe deeply; take plenty of exercise in the mellow sunshine, and have a periodic check-up on the health of your body.

TOWNSHIP SPLIT ON ANNEXATION

A petition protesting further annexation of land in Reserve Township to Pittsburgh was in the hands of Council today.

The property in question includes approximately 96 acres, the petition points out, and the signers feel it is not to their best interests that the city acquire the land. A second petition, signed by three-fifths of the voters in the section, accompanied the protesting paper. These voters favor annexation.

Ruth Ley gave a piano recital of modern music in the auditorium of the Y. M. & W. H. A. last night, closing her program with the over-estimated Rhapsody in Blue, that Concerto which Americans prefer to call native music, while forgetting the great Edward MacDowell and his sincere and beautiful contributions to American music.

Mr. Lissfelt

Miss Ley gives her audience an entirely wrong impression of modern piano music. Emphasizing the metallic tone of the instrument beyond endurance of sensitive ears, playing with almost no variation in mood, and certainly having no conception of the artistic unity of phrase nor of a composition in its entirety, we believe this pianist poorly equipped to play for our audiences.

Ratan Devi

The music department of the Carnegie Institute of Technology presented Ratan Devi in a recital of Ragas and Folk Songs of India in their Little Theater yesterday afternoon, one of the most delightful and instructive recitals of the year.

In the setting of an oriental bazaar, Ratan Devi, in native Indian costume and accompanying herself with a tambour, sang the most graceful and haunting music, carrying us far away from occidental mosaics and present-day cacophony. She most clearly set forth the soul behind Indian music, differentiated between the approach of eastern and western peoples to music, and demonstrated with her skilfully modulated voice those close intervals which our ears no longer hear, but to which our hearts spontaneously respond.

It was a recital such as our Pittsburgh concert goers would profit in hearing.

STOP BAD BREATH

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Olive Tablets bring no griping pain or any disagreeable effects. Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound, you will know them by their olive color. Take a tablet for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Caretaker Puzzled By Strange Gift And Warning

CHARLEROI, Pa., Feb. 17.—Peter Buzz, caretaker on State Route No. 88 had a mystery on his hands.

While he was working on the highway a hatless individual drove up in an expensive car, lifted a large unwieldy box from the seat and deposited it on the ground beside the caretaker, and said:

"It's yours. Heaven help you."

Store, Restaurant Damaged by Fire

RUM SMUGGLER GETS 9 MONTHS

Milo Reyner, 37, of Sigsbee street, Erie, pleaded guilty in Federal Court to smuggling in 864 bottles of Canadian ale and beer at Erie, and was sentenced by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker to nine months in the Venango County Jail. The sentence is to run concurrently with a one-year sentence imposed last November, when the court revoked a three-year parole given Reyner on September 19, when he pleaded guilty to resisting officers of the United States Coast Guard.

Reginald Carr, of Port Dover, Ont., a co-defendant on the smuggling charge, was paroled for two years. Reyner and Carr were captured when they attempted to land the cargo of ale and beer at Six Mile Creek, near Erie. Reyner was then under parole for resisting the Coast Guard.

WHEN CHILDREN CRY

CHILDREN often cry for no apparent reason. Many times we can't guess what is wrong. The crying may mean a touch of colic; the little bowels may be sluggish—or some other upset. It may mean any of the common little ailments that children suffer. To bring quick comfort to your little one, give a few drops of Castoria. Most upsets of children are soon soothed away by this pleasant-tasting remedy that children all love.

In five million modern homes, Castoria is a mother's first thought when a child is out of sorts, feverish, cross, doesn't eat right or sleep right. When bad breath, coated tongue, or languor tells of constipation. These five million wise mothers know that children should never be given stronger medicines meant for the fully developed systems of grown-ups. Castoria is gentle—safe, yet always thorough and effective for a child of any age. It may be given to the tiniest infant for any little upset. When buying, look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on wrapper.

OAKLAND ASKS SAFETY LIGHT

Several serious traffic accidents on the new extension of the Boulevard of the Allies in Oakland has resulted in a request to City Council for a "stop and go" traffic sign to be erected at once on the dangerous stretch.

The light is requested by the Oakland Social and Civic Club, in a communication sent Council at its meeting yesterday. The letter was signed by M. J. Butler of 529 Wilmont street. Butler in his letter told the councilmen there had been 18 serious accidents on the boulevard since last September.

Two Boys Burned In Carbide Blast

CHARLEROI, Pa., Feb. 17.—When a carbide can exploded Leon and Lawrence Harper, 11 and 13, brothers, were severely burned. The boys poured water into the can to cause the explosion, but the gases did not form quickly enough and they added burning coals. When the blast occurred the can was ripped open and the boys showered with fire. Their condition is serious.

Dial Telephones Spoil Fire Alarm

CHARLEROI, Pa., Feb. 17.—Dial system telephones have made California borough's fire alarm system worthless as the result of removing operators from the exchange. A day and night garage near the fire station will be called temporarily until a telephone alarm plan can be introduced.

Here's Quick Way To Break Up a Cold

Makes You Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It

THE thing to do with a cold is to break it up in a hurry—with something you know does the job, not to trifle with a lot of trick ideas and remedies. Colds are too dangerous to experiment with.

Get a box of Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon that miserable, aching feeling begins to go. The cold breaks up. The poisons are moved from your system. The world looks like an altogether different place.

Those results come because Hill's goes back to first principles by going to the seat of the trouble. It's not a newfangled fancy idea but a tried and proved way that's made to do ONE THING WELL, to knock a cold in a jiffy.

Hill's costs only a few cents. Use it for quick relief after everything else you've tried has failed.

HILL'S Cascara Quinine Compound

A LEADING research institution made an investigation among 50,000 dentists as to the best type of dentifrice to take care of teeth and gums. Read the summary of the replies received:

85% of the answers stated that germ acids most frequently cause tooth decay and gum irritation;

85% agreed that the most serious trouble occurs at the place where teeth and gums meet;

85% stated that the best product to prevent these acids from causing decay and irritating the gums is Milk of Magnesia.

Surely this is convincing evidence that Squibb Dental Cream will protect your teeth and gums. For it is made with more than 50% Squibb Milk of Magnesia.

There are dozens of different dentifrices and countless conflicting theories. And it would scarcely be strange if you are sometimes confused about the subject. But thousands of dentists overwhelmingly agree on one kind of dentifrice.

Try Squibb's. It cleans beautifully—and so safely. It contains no grit, no astringent, nothing which might injure. You'll like the way it refreshes your mouth. But most of all you'll value the effective care it helps you give your teeth and gums.

BONDS FOR TOWN HALL ORDERED SOLD

SIDEWALKS —of— PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

It is about time that Sam Filner, the young Pittsburgh artist, who has won the etching prize at the Associated Artists' exhibit, won some recognition.

A few years ago Sam deserted Pittsburgh for New York, where he hoped to make his fortune in art.

Mr. Pfarr

His early experiences were the story of the home-town boy meeting up with all the hazards of a big city. Things became so bad that Sam decided to turn prize fighter to make both ends meet, or almost meet.

So determined was he not to give up that, when a last-minute situation enabled him to fight two fights on one night, he grabbed the opportunity.

In the first fight Sam knocked his opponent spinning.

Hugh Beatty has retired as a fireman after all these years but he is still active enough as president of the Veteran Firemen's Association. Many of his years he spent at No. 3 station in Webster avenue.

It was at No. 3, years ago, that Hugh was made the master of two rather wild horses which the city had bought from the Arbuckle Company for fire service. Hugh had to submit to a deal of inspired criticism from his colleagues over the new nags and he, too, was doubtful how they would act at the fire alarm. They acted speedily. In fact, Hugh passed the captain en route to the flames and for this flaunting of tradition he was promptly suspended.

Hugh remembers the big Pike street fire of years ago, because he saved a man there. He climbed a ladder six floors and grabbed the man who was hanging from the shutter. When they reached the ground their clothes were on fire.

Hugh didn't recognize the man beneath his burns. But a few days later, when the man asked for him, he did. It was not only the same gentleman with whom Hugh had had a spirited fight some weeks before the fire but also the complainant who had told the fire chief to keep the firemen at No. 3 from loitering on the sidewalks outside the engine house.

Elmer Layden, football coach at Duquesne University and a former Notre Dame star, speaking at a Knights of Columbus celebration in Coraopolis, told a story about Knute Rockne, who does some football coaching at South Bend.

"Rock," who is reputed to be a Swede, was putting his squad through a practice session one day. A big Irish rookie was doing everything wrong.

"Can anyone tell me what is dumber than a dumb Irishman?" bellowed Rockne in his most sarcastic manner.

"Yes, a smart Swede," piped the rookie.

The check-room girl in the restaurant in which Andy Park, the district attorney, eats should read this paragraph. A few days ago Park chuckled as he left the restaurant, and a friend asked why. "I just dropped a penny in the hat-girl's coin box but I made it sound like a quarter," Park boasted. The next day he went to the girl and told her one of his assistants had performed the dastardly deed. This goes to show what district attorneys do when they aren't getting people indicted.

Council Hears Plea For Brookline Pool

City Council has been asked by the Brookline Board of Trade to purchase properties near Glenarm and Starkamp avenues for use as a playground and swimming pool. The request was made in a communication read at Council's regular meeting yesterday. The properties specified as the Wahl and Przeklasa lots, comprising five and one-half acres. The matter was referred to committee for further action.

Pennsy Announces Wolcott Promotion

Promotion of Harry E. Wolcott, freight trainmaster at Baltimore, to superintendent of the Schuylkill Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was announced by officials here. Until he went to Baltimore January 5, Wolcott was freight trainmaster of the Eastern Division, with headquarters in Pittsburgh. In his new position he will be located in Reading.

Canadian Army Won High Praise From Pershing

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By JOHN J. PERSHING

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

It was always stimulating to one's morale to visit the headquarters of the Canadians, where one soon caught the fine spirit of that superb body.

I made such a visit about this time in the spring of 1918, and talked with their corps commander, Lieut. Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, his chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Weber, his chief of engineers, Maj. Gen. Lindsay, and others, and had tea with them.

The alertness and confidence of these neighbors of ours and the excellent record they had made and were still making gave us as much gratification as though they had been our own. I remember this visit with much pleasure, and recall the prediction of the Canadians that Americans would soon play an important part in the war.

Gen. Pershing.

Gen. Currie deplored the fact that the British had so easily given up Paschendaele Ridge, which the year before he had been told must be taken at all cost, and for which the Canadians made the tremendous sacrifice of 16,000 casualties.

His divisions were then holding 9,000 yards each, or a little over five miles of front, as compared with 6,750 yards per division held by Gough's army and 4,200 yards by Byng's division in March. Currie considered that his extension would be excessive in the face of a determined and powerful offensive using shock tactics, but it showed the confidence the British commander-in-chief had in them.

At the invitation of Sir Douglas Haig, British commander-in-chief, I went to the British general headquarters April 20 to discuss the training of our troops with the British and study operations in progress.

Gen. Currie

We were always made welcome at British headquarters. It so happened that on the day of our arrival Lord Derby, who had just been relieved as minister of war by Lord Milner, was there en route to Paris as British ambassador. During dinner the conversation ran along freely, as though we were members of the official family. At length, Lord Derby and Sir Douglas drifted to the subject of British politicians.

Much Criticism

It would betray no confidence to say that there was considerable criticism of some who held prominent places. The coalition government came in for its share because of its attitude toward the military high command. Lord Derby was well known to be a warm supporter of the British commander-in-chief, and from what I knew of the relations between the civil and military authorities of Great Britain it is fair to presume that this might have been the reason he relinquished his post as Minister of War.

Lord Derby

He asked why all parties were not represented in our cabinet, but I did not undertake to explain, although I had also often asked myself the same question. It need hardly be recalled that so far as the Americans were concerned, Lord Derby had always been most helpful.

I took advantage of the opportunity while on the British front to visit the Nordaques area to inspect the advance elements of the 77th Division, one of the divisions selected for training with the British. We took luncheon with Brig. Gen. Evan M. Johnson, then temporarily in command, and his staff officers. He praised the soldierly qualities of the men, but said they were very much behind in their training.

This division had suffered severely from the practice followed by the War Department of taking men who had been under training for some time and sending them elsewhere for special purposes, a total of 30,000 men having been thus selected from time to time and their places filled with recruits. Therefore, the infantry and machine gun units of the division, about 17,000 men, that reported in France, were composed largely of untrained or partially trained troops.

Training Plans

While at Sir Douglas' headquarters, he and I reached an understanding as to the training and administration of our troops that were to be temporarily with the British. In the first place, they were to be allocated by regiments to British skeleton divisions under such a schedule as might be agreed upon.

The training staffs of British divisions were to be at the disposal of these regiments, especially for instruction in the use of the rifle and machine gun, and the handling of gas.

After that, and with the approval of their American division commander, the regiments were to be attached to a British division in line, so each of the three battalions of the regiment would have the opportunity to serve with one of the three brigades in each British division. These battalions were to be commanded by their own officers as a part of the British brigade, while the staff of the American regiment was to be attached to that of the brigade.

In the next stage the American

Welfare Workers Report Good Response for Teams; 500 Volunteers in Canvas

A total of $77,861.35 was reported subscribed to the $450,000 fund sought by the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, at the luncheon today. This was the first of four report meetings. Five hundred workers are making the canvas for funds.

A. Leo Weil, Jr., men's organization chairman, declared his divisions were working hard and teams had received unusually good responses. Mrs. Joseph M. Jackson, head of the women's organizations, also was optimistic in her reports.

The luncheon today was held in the William Penn Hotel with Eugene Herzog, vice chairman of the campaign and head of the Jewish Family Welfare Association, presiding. The speakers were Weil and Mrs. Jackson.

Last night, Oppenheimer gave a five-minute radio address over station WJAS, pleading for adequate support of the federation, which, through its 17 affiliated agencies, is working among the needy and unemployed.

Reports on the progress of the campaign in the county probably will not be ready until the second report meeting Thursday noon. Frank R. S. Kaplan, head of the county workers, reported. Herman Levin, McKeesport chairman, said that city would hold a report meeting tonight in the Penn-McKee Hotel.

Church Announces Father, Son Dinner

The fifth annual "father and son" banquet under the auspices of the Men's Brotherhood of the Spencer Methodist Episcopal Church, Carrick, of which the Rev. Dr. Paul Weyand is pastor, will be held Thursday evening at the church. Judge James H. Gray will be principal speaker, with the Rev. Albert K. Travis, of Ford City, also on the program. The Rev. Dr. Payton will be toastmaster.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 17.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Now here is something you musn't get wrong. The government Saturday passed a bill to appropriate 20 million as a loan to farmers in the drought area, but it was to be loaned on security. Now the man and his family that are hungry down there have no security. If he had any security he wouldn't be hungry. He would have already put it up. So this loan has not relieved the people that the Red Cross has been feeding at all. They have got to go on being fed by the Red Cross, so you towns that have been so slow in raising your quota, because you have been waiting to see what the government would do, get busy and raise it. They have got to be fed till a new crop is raised. And when they raise it, the last one is still in this country. It hasn't been sold yet. But no town can possibly have an excuse now for not doing their part.

Yours, WILL.

CLAIM OF PITT MEN UP TO CITY

City Council's finance committee today was to consider a resolution authorizing payment of $1,200 in accident claims to three University of Pittsburgh professors injured on the Fern Hollow bridge, Forbes street, last February 28.

The men, H. P. Schoenberger, Guy Greene and Walter Frederich, were hurt when the automobile Schoenberger was driving on the bridge struck a deep hole, blowing out a front tire, and the car ran into a pole. The three occupants were badly injured.

The bridge was in bad condition at the time, according to a report from the city law department, the flooring being full of holes and ruts. The resolution provides Schoenberger be given $300 as final settlement, Greene $600 and Frederich $300.

Auto Club Elects 7 Board Members

Seven members of the board of governors were elected at the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh in the club's office, 5909 Baum boulevard, last night. They were Berton B. Croup, Thomas F. Dunn, E. Bruce Hill, H. W. Mearkle, Dr. W. B. McKenna, Joseph H. Phillips and George O. Yoke.

Fall Down Steps Fatal to Woman

Mrs. Mary O'Connor, 73, of 1319 Western avenue, died last night in Presbyterian Hospital from injuries suffered a week ago when she fell down the cellar steps in her home, the coroner's office reported.

ESCAPED STEER RUNS AMUCK

When a steer escaped from the stockyards on Herrs Island early this morning, Motorcycle Patrolmen John Greeney and Arthur Jennings dashed to the scene. The bull charged furiously down Madison avenue and East street, and for more than an hour and a half ran amuck with the officers in close pursuit.

Finally it was corraled far out Spring Garden avenue. Greeney deftly whirled his rope in approved cowboy fashion.

Then began a long tug of war. It was one thing to catch the steer, and quite another to hold it, Greeney discovered. But Greeney was knocked down twice by the playful steer during the long chase. Both officers were pretty well covered with mud and muck before it was all over.

$1,120,000 FOR NICOLA PROPERTY

$380,000 Balance to Finance Early Start; Ordinance Awaits Mayor's Signature

The County Commissioners today voted to sell $1,500,000 people's bonds from the bond issue to purchase the Nicola site in Oakland for the Town Hall.

The ground will cost $1,120,000. The rest of the money will be used to assure an early start on the construction.

AWAIT MAYOR'S SIGNATURE

Only the signature of Mayor Kline remained necessary today to the final enactment of the city ordinance giving the County Commissioners permission to erect a town hall.

Passed finally by Council yesterday without a dissenting vote, the ordinance was sent to the Mayor. Seven councilmen voted for the measure. They were President John S. Herron, W. Y. English, Charles Anderson, Robert Alderdice, Clifford B. Connelley, Robert Garland and George Kambach. M. J. Mudowney arrived at the meeting after the ordinance had been passed. Harry A. Little is in Florida.

PROTEST FAILS

A public hearing was held on the ordinance Friday, when former Mayor William A. Magee, James Chaplin, president of the Allegheny County Town Hall Association and others protested that the Nicola site was inadequate and inconveniently situated.

The ordinance provides that all claims and taxes due the city be paid before the county receives a clear title to the land.

FIND WOMAN'S BODY IN RIVER

The body of a woman, believed to be Mrs. Catherine Echrich, 40, of 4226 Milgate street, who disappeared from her home January 2, was found in the Allegheny River between Etna and Millvale late yesterday.

Morgue attaches who received a report of the woman's disappearance from her husband, John Echrich, said that the description of the victim tallied with that of the missing woman. Mrs. Echrich, mother of two children, left a note saying she was going to jump in the river.

Heirs Stage Boxing Show For Fund to Fight Will

The League of Ross Heirs will hold a benefit boxing show tomorrow night in Homewood Athletic Club. Proceeds will be added to the fund being raised to contest the Ross will, which disposed of downtown realty in Pittsburgh's Golden Triangle and land in Philadelphia valued at millions of dollars.

Sir John Ross, Philadelphia merchant and famous Revolutionary War figure, died in 1800, leaving a will which provided for continuous bequests to Ross heirs from one generation to another. With the death of James Ross, of Pittsburgh, a cousin, the property became involved in litigation.

For 18 years 28 direct heirs to the estate have been contesting the will and titles to land which had been sold. According to Mrs. Bertha Ross Dodson, president of the Ross League, the heirs were offered $2,000,000 for a settlement four years ago.

In Pittsburgh the Ross heirs allege they are rightful owners of the site for the City-County Building and much land at Fourth avenue, Grant street, Ross and Diamond streets.

SCHENLEY 'PICNIC HOUSE' ANTIQUES ON DISPLAY

Getting Home

OLD PAINTINGS, FURNITURE VIEWED

Home Closed Since 1863 Yields Rare Collection Of Mid-Victorian Art

By PENELOPE REDD.

Today, like the day of Horace Walpole, is one in which the "antiquities" are appreciated.

Anyone who visited the exhibition of furniture and paintings from the Mary Schenley Estate, which was opened yesterday at the Kaufmann galleries, could observe these later "antiquities" being sought by Schenley kinsmen of this generation and by collectors of Pittsburghiana.

Penelope Redd

Bright and early the first families arrived to view the garniture of Pittsburgh's most elegant mansion, "Picnic House." Closed since 1863, the current generation of Gen. O'Hara's heirs was scarcely familiar with the furniture in mahogany, rosewood, ebony, tulipwood and maple that set the standard of elegance for Pittsburgh in ante-bellum days.

Mary Elizabeth Croghan, born in 1826, eloped from Mrs. McLeod's select Staten Island school with Capt. Edward Schenley when she was 16.

HERO OF WATERLOO

Legend says that Capt. Schenley of the Coldstream Guards and a hero of the Battle of Waterloo was the companion of Byron and Shelley in Italy. Furthermore he was said to have been one of those who snatched the heart of Shelley from the funeral pyre.

Queen Victoria is reported to have denied young Mrs. Schenley presentation at court for several years, because the young American had been a disobedient daughter.

Eventually Mai Croghan forgave his daughter and she returned to visit him at "Picnic House," which he had built about 1835, on an eminence overlooking the Allegheny River.

The furniture now exhibited was evidently assembled by the family from many sources, chiefly from England, although some American pieces are found, such as the Federal sideboard with the American eagle motif dominant.

Some of the ordinary items, probably produced by local cabinet makers, have a homely honesty that appeals to modern taste as the consciously opulent early Victorian mode does not.

EARLY DRAWINGS

The early drawings by Agnes and Jane Schenley, which once adorned the walls of the nursery were done [illegible] made during the family's longest period of residence here, from 1858 to 1863.

Bristol glass, French and English china, Capt. Schenley's silk topper, and a quaint little slipper chair, built especially for the bustle, beckon.

These objects of intimate use have been arranged with dignity and proved on the initial day of the show that they are appreciated for their local historic association.

A number of the chairs, sofas and tables have been presented to the permanent collection at the Carnegie Institute.

WOMAN KILLED, 2 MEN HELD

Homicide detectives today were investigating the death of Mrs. Theresa Marasco, 37, of 800 Wylie avenue, found shot through the heart, in bed in her third-floor apartment last night.

Guy Marasco, 41, her husband, who was reported to have told Detectives Frank Dodson and Thomas Mulvehill that his wife had ended her life, was arrested and will be questioned today. Paul Morabito, 41, of 1625 Kenton avenue, Beechview, a visitor at the Marasco home, also was held for questioning, detectives said.

Marasco told detectives his wife had been in poor health for more than four months. Her body was removed to the morgue, where an autopsy was performed.

'Y' Club Members To Hear Dr. Bloom

Dr. W. W. Bloom will address members of the Northmont Club, of the Allegheny Branch, Y. M. C. A., tonight at the weekly dinner meeting of the club in the Y auditorium. The club is composed of men living in the dormitory. He will discuss "The Physiology of Sex." His talk is one of a series being given on the general topic of "Sex." Next Tuesday Dr. Allene Marley Jamison, woman physician, will talk of the spiritual and cultural side of sex and marriage.

Casket Carriage 'Borrower' Seized

Police of the Center avenue station today were holding William Bower, 53, a Negro, of 2118 Rose street, who shortly after midnight walked into the station and tried to pawn a casket carriage. He would not tell where he obtained it, and police began a canvass of undertaking establishments in hope of finding the owner.

Bower was charged with being a suspicious person.

Call Father Coakley To Carry on Debate

Owing to the illness in St. Francis Hospital of the Rev. E. Lawrence O'Connell, the debate scheduled tomorrow evening between him and the Rev. Howard J. Carroll will be given, but the Rev. Thomas F. Coakley will take Father O'Connell's place as the debater. The discussion will start at 7:45, and the subject will be "Are Catholics Superstitious?"

Forfeiture of Rum Asked by Dry Chief

A forfeiture libel against 992 quarts of whisky was filed in federal court by Robert S. Krause, deputy prohibition administrator. The liquor was seized last Tuesday by prohibition agents at Middle and Bridge streets, Wilmerding, while being transported in two trucks. The court directed that monitions be issued directing claiments to appear in court March 9 to show why it should not be condemned and forfeited to the government.

KNOXVILLE HIGH SCHOOL BID ACCEPTED

Board to Award $25,885 Electrical Job Today; Prospect Plans Approved

The Board of Public Education today was to award the contract for electrical work on the new Knoxville High School addition to the Cronenweth Electric Company, whose bid of $25,885 was accepted at a meeting of the finance and administration committee last night.

Approval of contract plans for the new Prospect School, Prospect street, Mt. Washington, and authorization of solicitation for bids on the electrical work also was recommended by the committee.

Of the nine bids considered for the high school work six were from members of the Electrical Contractors' Association of Pittsburgh, whose members for more than a year have declined to bid on school buildings. The association had been accused by board members of "collusion" to hold contract prices unreasonably high.

Although the bid of the Cronenweth Company was higher than the board had estimated, Chairman N. R. Criss of the committee said:

"Under present unemployment conditions I think we are justified in awarding the Knoxville contract, even though the bid was $5,000 in excess of what we expected it would be."

The cost of the school electrical work will be 2.72 cents per cubic foot, as compared to 2.32 cents for the same work in the Arsenal High School. The difference, it was explained, is largely because the Knoxville addition does not contain a play room, auditorium or gymnasium, which would add to the frontage without great increase in electrical wiring.

GUNMEN HOLD UP FOUR STORES, ROB CUSTOMERS

BURGLARS LOOT BELLEVUE HOME

Family Returns as Thieves Flee With Haul; Man, Lacking Cash, Is Attacked

No trace had been found by police today of the bandits who held up two chain stores, one in Squirrel Hill and the other in Greenfield, and two drug stores in the East End last night.

J. A. Walker, proprietor of a drug store at 5801 Bryant street, and four customers were held up by three armed men. After looting the cash registers of $248, the trio lined the customers against the wall and took their money. The victims were Max Englesberg, of 5914 Elgin avenue, robbed of $60; Thomas Storer, of 1137 North Euclid avenue, $4, and John J. Sweeney, of 1118 Sheridan avenue, $22.

DRUG STORE HELD UP

The same trio a few minutes before robbed the pharmacy of O. R. Everhart, at 600 Brushton avenue. They rifled the cash register of $150 and took a gold watch from Everhart. From J. D. Roskis, a customer, of 2932 Norwood avenue, they obtained $23.

Holdups of the P. H. Butler store at 1100 Greenfield avenue, and an A. & P. store at 2329 Beechwood boulevard were laid to the same gang by police.

L. D. Davis, superintendent of stores; Samuel Kaufman, the manager; A. G. Miller, a butcher, and Miss Anna Hays, a clerk, and three customers were in the Butler store when four bandits entered. They rifled the cash registers of $125 and escaped in an automobile.

A short time later the A. & P. store was invaded by the quartet menaced J. J. Egli, the manager, and Mrs. Joseph Zwick, of 2408 Beechwood boulevard, with revolvers. The cash register yielded the bandits $20. From Mrs. Zwick, the thugs stole $15.

HOME LOOTED

Burglars were believed to have used an automobile to haul away clothing and jewelry valued at $1,000 from the home of F. A. Marshall, of 8 Keswick street, Bellevue, last night. One of the burglars was seen leaving the Marshall residence carrying a bag by members of the family when they returned home.

HELD IN THEFT OF FUR COAT

Two hours after a fur coat valued at $700 and a suit of clothes and an overcoat had been stolen from the apartment of Ruth Staymates, of 114 South Graham street, Detective Sergeant John T. Rhall arrested a Negro while he was alleged to have been attempting to pawn the loot in a Wylie avenue shop last night.

The Negro, Louis Martin, 33, of Clark street, told detectives he received the clothing from a man whom he met in a Squirrel Hill garage earlier in the afternoon. He was charged with being a suspicious person.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folk Enjoy Play At Alvin

A crowded house indeed enjoyed the gorgeous costumes and fantastic scenes, to say nothing of the dancing, at the Alvin last night, where Ed Wynn is starring in "Simple Simon." Chatting in the foyer during the intermission I caught a glimpse of Genevieve Lord Bell in an ermine coat and the William A. Buckhams with Mrs. Buckham in cherry-red crepe with a black velvet and white fox wrap.

I saw Mrs. Howard Hale McClintic, Jr., too, wearing a smart gown of green and silver lame, with brief sleeves banded with chinchilla and a wrap of black velvet and white fox.

I caught a glimpse of Suzanne Trimble, too, wearing flame georgette, with an ermine coat. Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland I noticed, too, in a coat of mink.

There's going to be another March wedding of note, and just think, March is only 11 days off.

March Wedding

Betty Gantert Close, daughter of the Howard Dauler Closes, of Murrayhill avenue, whose engagement to Samuel Richard Robb was announced in December, has named her wedding date, Thursday, March 12, is the day she's chosen, and the scene of the wedding will be the Pittsburgh Country Club. And the wedding will take place at 5:30 o'clock. Mr. Robb is the son of the Samuel G. Robbs, of Latrobe.

Judge Sara Soffel will address the Wednesday Current Events Class tomorrow in the Congress of Clubs.

Slump Laid To Senate Dallying

Some pertinent questions anent old age pensions were asked by Dr. William Starr Meyers, of Princeton, in his lecture before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning. Among these: Are not Great Britain and Germany, two countries that have gone farthest in pensions, suffering the most economically? What is to hinder a progressive reduction in the age, so that in time a person of 25 may be receiving a pension? Should not anyone receiving a pension for which he has given no due return in service deed his franchise? Will such a pension help people to help themselves or will it pauperize them?

The danger, Dr. Meyers pointed out, is that the individual will lose sight of his responsibility. The question, he said, is one that will require all the brains and all the consecrated thinking of a religious-minded people to decide.

The speaker devoted the greater part of his time to criticism of the United States Senate, remarking that Japan and the United States are the only two governments having a dominating upper house.

United States senators are not wise; they think they are wise and they thoroughly enjoy being senator, he observed, adding that every president from Washington to Hoover had had trouble with the Senate.

Dr. Meyers declared that Congress is largely responsible for the present financial depression, because it spent 13 months in silly discussion of tariff revision. Having tariff revision always disturbs business and if the tariff is the heaven-sent thing many Pennsylvanians think it to be, why didn't it prevent the Wall street smash, he queried.

Do we want to see the United States Senate set aside, he asked, as he went on to remark that people do think, even if they think slowly and the United States Senate might be surprised to learn how many people are asking if it is an anachronism. Publicity is the curse of the Senate, and it hasn't had the courage, vigor or wisdom to get control of its own debates, he continued.

One of the largest audiences of the season heard Dr. Meyers and applauded heartily when he said forcefully:

Mrs. Louis Thaden, Pittsburgh aviatrix, will speak tomorrow morning before the Woman's Alliance of the First Unitarian Church, having "Up in the Air" for her subject. Mrs. Edward Beck is chairman of the meeting and the devotional period will be conducted by Mrs. John M. Phillips, who will also speak of the art in industry contest which the State Federation is sponsoring.

Some old dresses that have sturdily survived the ravages of the years were worn to the Colonial party held yesterday at Mrs. W. C. McClure's home by the Homestead Woman's Club. The president, Mrs. Richard Moon, looked charming in a 40-year-old brown taffeta that hasn't even begun to show wear. Mrs. Jesse Williams had on a gown of equal age, a figured taffeta elaborately made with hand tucks, applique and smocking, and Mrs. Max Wherry wore a purple striped silk that had been her grand-aunt's 75 years ago. Mrs. Ralph Liphart's lined, black silk was a wonderfully-created thing, even to the dainty little black chiffon handkerchief which was worn with it.

Mrs. H. D. Baker came as George Washington, carrying the musket that has been in her paternal family since 1821. Mrs. Edwin D. Omans was Martha Washington. Almost all those taking part in the program were in Colonial costume. Mrs. Moon sang, as did Mrs. Robert L. Finlayson and Mrs. H. D. Hartley. Mrs. Williams read Longfellow's "Hanging of the Crane," with Mrs. H. D. Everett playing Gertrude Martin Rohrer's piano setting for it. A sextet of members, Mrs. H. D. McDonald, Mrs. Charles Getsinger, Mrs. Russell McWhinney, Mrs. Hartley, Mrs. William Quigley and Mrs. Moon, danced a minuet.

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL SEASON SEEN FOR THE TUNIC FROCK

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—Don't intone a farewell to the tunic yet. For it is still with us, and from all indications is likely to linger for some time yet. A tunic is the best method of combining two different colors in one frock that we know of. It permits of a light color with black and makes a dress that can be worn time and time again with increasing pleasure and success. Then, too, the tunic can incorporate the color of the skirt in several interesting ways, thus providing much more variety than the other favored method of combining a light and dark hue in one frock. It is a fashion that becomes the miss and her mother with equal success, in itself a most important characteristic that is not shared by many fashions. Many women are not only combining a good color contrast in the tunic frock, but are combining the sheer materials with skirts of heavy fabric. Many houses are continuing, therefore, to show tunic frocks for the spring season, even if they are not being considerably stressed. Indeed, their popularity makes this superfluous.

* * *

WE SHOW TODAY Jenny's version of the tunic frock, and a lovely version it is, too. It is of black satin with a tunic of pale blue georgette crepe. The exceedingly high "oversleeve" of satin flaring above the elbow is a new and smart idea. A black astrakan coat is worn with this dress, which has been much admired and commented upon.

London Critics O. K. Arlen's New Play

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—London critics today favorably reviewed "Good Losers," new play by Walter Hackett and Michael Arlen, presented in London last evening. They were not enthusiastic, however. The play, which was well received by the audience, has an intricate plot which, although bewildering, was well acted. Marion Lorne, as a woman journalist on the lookout for some "society scoops," supplied constant amusement.

Color secrets for "DIM BULBS"

DOROTHY DIX says

"Use Color to make your personality glow and sparkle . . . to put yourself across!"

"COLOR—what a magical power it has! Why don't all girls understand it?

"The right colors in a frock can heighten immeasurably a girl's beauty of eyes, hair and skin—make her whole personality glow and sparkle. Like the glamorous footlights of the stage, color in dress LIGHTS YOU UP! Helps you to put yourself across.

"Don't be a dim bulb (to use a phrase I've borrowed from the boys). It's so easy to charm if you do 2 things:

1. Choose the colors becoming to YOU.
2. Always keep them fresh and vibrant with life.

"Fading—even slight fading—robs a color of its power to thrill; it's like a lovely tune just slightly off key! And then, too, even a little change in a shade may make it WRONG FOR YOU. (Think how easily an exciting chartreuse can become a bilious yellow).

One Sure Rule

"There is just one way I know of to be SURE that colors DON'T fade. That is, to wash them only in Lux.

"Lux is made especially to preserve color. Ordinary 'good' soaps clean, but take away some color pigment. Lux cleanses beautifully, yet leaves the most delicate color singingly ALIVE and TRUE in tone.

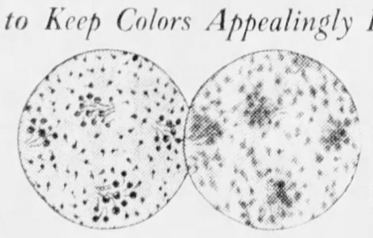
How to Keep Colors Appealingly Lovely



(Right) Lovely yellow and black printed silk washed 8 times in Lux. The color is fresh and sunshiny as new. No fading or blurring of the pattern. All its sparkle and appealing charm retained!

(Left) Duplicate silk washed 8 times in ordinary "good" soap. Faded and streaked—the brilliance and glow of the color lost. No longer lovely!

TRAFFIC 'SIGHT' ARRESTS SOON

Pittsburgh traffic police may be given authority to arrest on sight violators of the state vehicle code instead of issuing tags, it was intimated at a meeting of the legislation sub-committee of the Better Traffic Committee in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

This provision was one of the changes in the vehicle code suggested at a conference called by Benjamin C. Eynon, state superintendent of motor vehicles, in Harrisburg last week, attended by representatives of the state highway patrol, the attorney general's office, boroughs, police chiefs, motor clubs and traffic engineers of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. Increased penalties for disobeying traffic signals were also proposed.

A report on the conference was made yesterday by City Traffic Engineers Lewis W. McIntyre.

CANAL BACKERS MEET THURSDAY

Proponents of the Pittsburgh-Ashtabula route for the Lake Erie-Ohio river canal, will meet Thursday noon in the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce to discuss measures for promoting the interest of the route. Those present will include members of the Pittsburgh-Youngstown "contact" committee of business men appointed several months ago to co-ordinate efforts in obtaining federal adoption and authorization of the project.

The plans will be outlined by Alexander W. Dann, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the committee. Chairman Dann has been working with Donald O. Moore, traffic manager of the local chamber, in developing new facts on tonnage that would likely be sent through the canal in event of its construction.

MOTHERS' FUND AID NEEDED

Gov. Gifford Pinchot's activity in behalf of the Mothers' Assistance Fund was praised yesterday by Horace F. Baker, a director of the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania and chairman of the statewide committee for procuring appropriation of $4,115,938 for the Mothers' Fund. He said:

"It is encouraging to have this budget recommendation of $1,000,000 increase, making the total appropriation $3,700,000. But it must be noted that in order to clear up the entire waiting list of 2,497 eligible mothers, the full amount of $1,115,938 is yet needed."

Obituary

Miss Minnie McCann.

Miss Minnie McCann died yesterday at her residence, 31 Lincoln avenue, Crafton, after a short illness. She was born in County Derry, Ireland, a daughter of the late Michael and Jane McCann. She came to the United States with her parents when a girl.

Miss McCann had been a resident of Crafton for 25 years. She was a member of St. Philip's Catholic Church, Crafton. She is survived by two brothers—Jack and Edward A. McCann, and four sisters—Misses Kathryn, Nellie and Edith McCann and Mrs. Elizabeth Kenan.

Smith Funeral.

Funeral services for Harley R. Smith, 52, an employe of the Hotel Henry, who died Saturday, were to be held this afternoon at the home, 333 Noblestown road, Crafton. Interment was to be in Chartiers Cemetery. He leaves his widow, a daughter, a son, a sister and a brother.

I Was Skinny, Run-down. Gained 34 lbs in Few Weeks

"I was so skinny and rundown friends thought I had a fatal disease. At last I tried Ironized Yeast and gained 34 pounds in few weeks." — Paul Blanch.

Skinny, weak, nervous people are delighted as new Ironized Yeast adds 5 to 15 pounds in 3 weeks. Changes scrawniness to body quick to strong, well-developed form. Blotchy skin clears like magic. Nervousness, indigestion, constipation end overnight. Sound sleep, pep quick.

Two great tonics in one—special weight-building Brewer's Yeast and strengthening Iron. Pleasant little tablets. Far stronger than unmedicated yeast. Results in one-half time. No yeasty taste, no gas.

LIKE MAGIC PIMPLES DISAPPEAR

Pittsburgh Man Grateful

One of the many wonderful things about Peterson's Ointment—you don't have to wait long before it accomplishes results.

If you are troubled with pimples on your face and back—just rub on Peterson's Ointment before going to bed—rub it in good—wake up in the morning with your skin already starting to clear.

The mighty healing power of Peterson's rapidly banishes those ugly blemishes and makes you the proud possessor of charming skin beauty.

Mr. Ed. W. King, of Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "I had pimples all over my face for over a year. I had used other Ointments but they did no good. It was not until I tried Peterson's that I found the way to end pimples."

Pimples have disappeared in 24 hours when Peterson's Ointment was rubbed well into the skin—one 35-cent box will prove it—all drug stores.

"And don't forget two packages of Shredded Wheat"

Vionnet understands women's figures and their clothes. What is more, she has a perfect sense of the occasions to which women wear them.

Her latest frocks are the "soft frocks." In deep blues, because blue's an international Spring passion; with typical bias cut and wrapping — sophisticatedly simple and slenderizing; with necklines softly flattering, sleeves arresting; in soft, feminine fabrics. Frocks that are rich without losing their sense of the practical.

They're perfect for the woman who dresses for town, plays bridge at two, goes to the matinee, and wants something smart for Spring, to wear and look well under her coat right now.

A. Has melon sleeves, coat lines and lace edged frill among its many fashion points.

B. Has interesting bodice, smart seaming, and a touch of smartly contrasting white pique.

Women's sizes 36 to 44.

Ed Wynn's 'Simple Simon' Is One Long Laugh and Many Short Ones

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

Ed Wynn—his first name is Edison, you know—has been reported to be the funniest man on the stage. The report was verified last night at the Alvin Theater, where he cavorted through an extravaganza called "Simple Simon." He has been responsible for the book of the show, abetted by one Guy Bolton, and his humorous fancy runs riot through fairy tales and nursery rhymes, producing a gorgeous succession of lovely scenes punctuated with laughs enough to wreck a comptometer.

George Seibel

For one thing, there are no chorus girls on the half shell, courting pneumonia and gooseflesh.

For another thing, there is a score by Richard Rodgers which has musical merit and doesn't give the cymbalist an attack of the charley horse.

For a third point there is a ballerina—Harriet Hoctor of the sinuous arms and fluttering feet—who doesn't hail from Moscow or Milan, but can dance deliriously enough to give a whirling dervish the creeps.

But all of the time, or most of the time, there is Ed Wynn himself, who seldom leaves the stage for more than a few minutes to rest his lisp. That fellow will be sued some day and socked for heavy damages when somebody laughs so hard as to snap his appendicitis suture.

HIS NEW INVENTIONS

He has a number of new inventions, of course, but the best of them is the piano on which he accompanies Wm. Shaw.

Besides these Edisonian diversions, Wynn has an assortment of new stories at which one can chortle without needing to blush. Believe it or not, there is a new Scotch one about the kiltie who got a nosebleed and ran to the hospital to sell it for blood transfusion.

The explanation of his new mousetrap no one can infringe or plagiarize. You must hear Ed Wynn explain that himself. Then you'll get one of those mousetraps.

And you will avoid his brand of "Kitten Whiskey." If you take a drink, you won't open your eyes for nine days.

And you will weep over the sword swallowers who ate razor blades for corn flakes.

How would like razor blades for your "brunch"? You don't know what a "brunch" is? Go and let Wynn tell you—to tell all the good things in this "Simple Simon" show would take from 8:30 to 11:30.

HE'S NOT ALONE

And Ed Wynn is not the only good thing in the show. There is a Horse, as funny as it can be. Whether Joseph Schrode plays the forelegs or Pete La Della the hind legs is immaterial—that quadruped is amusing all over. So is the Prof. of William Perry who was a corkscrew in a former incarnation. So is the Giant Head of Frank de Witt devouring an entire picnic lunch with the tablecloth.

The dancing of Gil Squires as Bluebeard, and of Jack Squires as Prince Charming, the rope tricks of Frank Shields, the singing and rough-and-tumble dance of our own Laine Blair with David Breen's gallant portrayal of Jack Horner—these are a few of the good things besides Ed Wynn.

Nor must the really beautiful settings by Joseph Urban be forgotten—nor the dancing of a pony chorus assorted of the same size—nor the charm of Margaret Breen's Cinderella—nor the magic ballets that would make Thurston marvel.

It is as pure as a celebrated soap that need not be named.

And it has the best dancer in Harriet Hoctor, the funniest comedian in Ed (Edison) Wynn, that have ever caused your toes to curl and your sides to ache.

NOTES ABOUT PLAYS COMING NEXT WEEK

Seats are now on sale for "Making Mary," the musical comedy which will make its debut in the Nixon next Monday evening. It was staged by Edward Clark Lilley. There is a dancing chorus, trained by John Boyle.

In the Alvin next week Joseph M. Gaites will present the comedienne, Madge Kennedy, in her latest success, "Michael and Mary." It was written by A. A. Milne. It ran all last season in New York.

"Up Pops the Devil," a comedy by Albert Hackett and Frances Goodrich, presented earlier this season in the Mosque Theater, New York, will be George Sharp's offering in the Pitt next week.

Comedienne

Madge Kennedy is starred in "Michael and Mary," a comedy by A. A. Milne, which will be presented in Alvin next week.

EARLY WESTERN STAR STAGING COME-BACK

Roy Stewart, one of the screen's first western stars, is living over the frontier days of his father and simultaneously making a screen comeback in Paramount's "Fighting Caravans," a tale of the great freight wagon trains which crossed America in Civil War days.

The pioneer became wealthy from this mine and Stewart recalls hearing his father tell of taking one scoop-load of mineral from the mine which netted the two owners $20,000. Stewart's father sold his interest in the mine and moved to San Diego.

The first evening after his day's working on "Fighting Caravans," in which he plays the role of wagon master, Stewart made a trip to the site of the Bonanza mine, which is at the head of Sonora's main street. He found that operation of the historic property had been resumed in recent years, and it is still netting a good profit.

Four Films Listed For Ruth Chatterton

Story plans for the production and release by Paramount of four pictures starring Ruth Chatterton have been announced. Three of these pictures will be released during the new 1931-32 season, which starts August 1. The first will be "Daddy's Gone A-Hunting," from the stage play by Zoe Akins. "The Heart Is Young," by May Eddington, will be the second and "Step-Daughters of War," by Helen Zenna Smith, will be the third. In addition "Unfaithful," the picture Miss Chatterton has just completed, is to be released to theaters late in March.

New York Insurance Official Dies at 61

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Thomas F. Behan, state superintendent of insurance, died here last night. He was 61.

Mr. Behan, who was named to the post January 1, had been ill more than a month. He began his career in the insurance department as a messenger boy, rising steadily until after 42 years Gov. Roosevelt named him to head the department.

'IT'S A WISE CHILD' GIVES PITT CROWD MANY LAUGHS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Assembled in the Pitt last night was a large audience. The occasion being a benefit for District No. Six Pennsylvania State Nurses' Association, those in attendance, filling every seat of the lower floor, were in a festive mood. The George Sharp organization, as a consequence, outdid itself in the presentation of "It's a Wise Child," which was recently presented in another theater under the David Belasco banner.

LAUGHS ARE FREQUENT

Casual maternity, actual and pretended, is the basis of this rollicking comedy, which sets the laugh-meter at high gauge and then scores a scream at every registration point. In order to force release from a betrothal which has become distasteful to her a girl tells a fib that has the desired effect—and much more.

It throws her whole family into several varieties of fits and involves the big banker she has been engaged to, the man for whom she dismissed him and the man she finally decides will suit her for a husband. It is all very funny—and quite sophisticated.

PLAY WELL ACTED

Leneta Lane plays the girl who is careless with the truth and she shoulders an assumed guilty conscience with extreme finesse. Paul McGrath is most agreeable as the family's legal fixer, sympathetic, sensible and sentimental. Robert Fiske masters touch walk and belligerant speech as an iceman whose love affairs have much to do with the fun.

Mabel Kroman, as a maid, exhibits her skill at comedy by doing one of those dumb expressionless characterizations so well that the role becomes important. Alice Ann Baker makes an innocent mother role live and Hugh Banks gives a vital impersonation of a distracted brother of Miss Fibber. John Winthrop, as the banker; Katherine Maison, Charles Webster and Billy Link complete the cast.

THREE COLLEGE BOYS IN SAME PICTURE

In "making good," college boys do not always follow the work for which they have prepared themselves.

Take the cases, for example, of Norman Foster, Skeets Gallagher and Frank Tuttle, who happen to be working together on "It Pays to Advertise" at the Paramount studios.

Although all qualify under the classification of "alumni," not one ever prepared himself for stage or screen work.

Foster studied journalism at Carnegie Tech and reported for a time in Richmond, Ind. When he went to New York to see if his college degree and his small-town experience could get him on a metropolitan paper, he found instead an opportunity to act and took the chance of changing professions.

Gallagher tried at first to be an engineer by studying at Rose Polytechnic Institution and then switched to law at Indiana University. He says he took the advice of the faculty and quit to go on the stage.

Tuttle went in for training to become a writer while securing a degree from Yale. He did write fiction for some time and then found his way into screen directing, where he has remained ever since.

Irene Dunne Cast In Sherman Picture

Following renewal of his contract, Lowell Sherman is preparing to launch "Bachelor Apartment," his fourth acting-directing vehicle for Radio Pictures. Irene Dunne, who won considerable praise from preview critics as the result of her work in "Cimarron," as Sabra Cravat, will play the leading feminine role opposite Sherman. "Cimarron" was also the stepping stone to further fame and future for Rosco Ates, whose contract has been renewed by Radio Pictures for another year. He was last seen in "Check and Double Check" on the screen with Amos 'n' Andy.

Penn Stage to Get New Type of Shows

The first of the new type of stage shows produced by Loew's, and labeled "Loew's Vaudeville Revue," will headline the footlight program opening in the Penn Friday. The show is a combination of musical comedy revue, vaudeville and unit shows, and is said to be "different" from anything seen in the de luxe houses. Several such "Vaudeville Revues" are already on tour over the Loew circuit with others being rehearsed in New York.

HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Makes One Look Younger

Men and women who used to be called Grandpa and Grandma are now setting the styles by darkening their gray hair at home.

For instance, J. A. McCrea, a well-known Californian, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture in five minutes that will darken gray hair and make it soft and glossy. Merely take a half-pint of water, add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at trifling cost. Apply to the hair twice weekly with a comb. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off.

STAGE PAIR AGAIN PLAY 'EAST LYNNE'

Nance O'Neil and David Torrence, veterans of the stage now appearing in motion pictures, experienced vivid recollections of past glories with the filming of "East Lynne" recently. Miss O'Neil years ago contributed one of the most famous of the theater's many portrayals of the leading feminine character, Isabel. Torrence played every important male role in the play over a long period.

Miss O'Neil poused frequently on the "East Lynne" set to watch Ann Harding interpret the dramatic adventures for which she herself had taken many a curtain call. She was working at the time on an adjoining set in the Warner Baxter-Dorothy Mackaill picture, "Their Mad Moment."

Torrence enacted the role of Richard Hare in the production of "East Lynne." He had done it many times before on the stage. In the course of long association with repertory companies in England, his portrayals ranged from the husband, now played by Conrad Nagel, to the villain currently Clive Brook.

Mrs. Coolidge Will Sponsor New Liner

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The new Dollar liner President Coolidge is to be launched at Newport News, Va., Saturday with Mrs. Calvin Coolidge as sponsor. The former President is not expected to attend the ceremonies.

Mrs. Coolidge will leave Northampton Friday in a private railroad car. The new liner will be placed in service between New York and Manila next October.

Women's Magazine Publisher Dies

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Walter W. Manning, 56, of Chicago, president of the Manning Publishing Company, died here yesterday of pneumonia, after an illness of two weeks. He was publisher and editor of the magazine Woman's World, which he purchased in 1917.

Boguslawski, Music Teacher, Dies at 80

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Frank Boguslawski, 80, pioneer music teacher and father of Moissaye Boguslawski, concert pianist, died in a hospital last night of peritonitis, following an operation. His son, Sigmund, orchestra conductor at the Paramount Theater, New York, also survives.

CRUZE SIGNS GRAVES FOR 'SALVATION NELL'

Ralph Graves is the latest addition to the large cast being assembled by James Cruze for his next personally directed film, "Salvation Nell," for Tiffany release.

Husband and Wife Separated by Films

Claudette Colbert and her husband, Norman Foster, each went halfway across the continent in order to say "Hello!" recently. For the first time in their professional careers they had been widely separated, Foster in Hollywood, playing the leading role in "It Pays to Advertise" for Paramount, and Miss Colbert having a featured role with Fredric March in "Honor Among Lovers" at the company's New York studio. After completion of the two pictures each made a quick trip to Chicago, and after spending a couple of days together returned to their respective studios.

BLIND HEIR HITS ACCOUNTING

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 17.—Few items in the accounting of the trustees in the $750,000 alimony and children's fund left by Lord Fitzgerald, of Ireland, to his divorced wife, the Princess of Thurn and Taxis, and their three children are accepted by Gerald Purcell Fitzgerald, blind son, who has filed 42 exceptions to the report.

Fitzgerald declares the report is "unintelligible, inaccurate and affords no information." He asks the court to have the trustees make a complete report of each item of investment with the rate of interest or dividends on each.

The exceptions followed a refusal by Judge Davis W. Henderson to have the fund transferred from the Fayette County court to the Federal Court.

Young Fitzgerald claims the estate lost $14,000 in an investment in bonds of the Robert Brown Iron Company and that other losses totaling $9,000 were unjustified. About $7,000 for the cost of administration also is objected to.

Long Working Hours For Women Scored

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 17.—(INS.)—When women workers are subjected to the undermining effects of low wages and long hours, the nation pays the penalty, Miss Mary Anderson, director of the women's bureau, Department of Labor, said today in an address to the League of Women Voters.

Eight and one-half million women were employed in gainful occupations in 1920, she said, and the U. S. Census Bureau recently estimated there are now 10,000,000 women wage-earners.

Cold Keeps Pershing From Edwards Rites

Girl Reads Fire Story, Sleeps; Blaze Results

An alarm called firemen to the Akron Apartments, Craig street and Center avenue, shortly after 4 a. m. today. An overstuffed chair was afire and the loss $75. Miss Helen Siffler, 26, living on the first floor of the apartment, explained she had been sitting in the chair reading "The Fifth Alarm," a fire story, and fell asleep, her cigaret setting fire to the chair.

Plainclothesman John McGonnigle, who was passing, saw smoke issuing from the window. He carried Miss Siffler outside and sounded an alarm—a "single."

CHINESE CHEER AIMEE IN PULPIT

SHANGHAI, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, announced while leading a spirited revival meeting here today she was seeking a permanent property in Shanghai upon which to erect a miniature Angelus Temple.

The little Four-square Gospel Mission in the Chinese quarter was packed with enthusiastic natives as Mrs. McPherson, who yesterday was reported ill in a local hotel, appeared in her pulpit. Only a fraction of the listeners understood English.

Shouting "Hallelujah!" and singing her "Four-square Battle Song," the evangelist captured the fancy of the throng through an interpreter. She asserted it was one of her proudest moments to be able to stand before her Chinese converts and call them "brothers and sisters." She was rewarded with enthusiastic shouting and singing in Chinese.

The evangelist said she would sail tomorrow to resume her round-the-world voyage.

3 Burned to Death In Tenement Fire

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Two women and a boy were burned to death here today when fire swept the three upper floors of a six-story tenement. Six persons were carried to safety by firemen.

DOAK'S MOTHER DIES AT 86

BRISTOL, Va., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Doak, 86, mother of Secretary of Labor William N. Doak and member of a pioneer southwest Virginia family, died last night, the victim of pneumonia.

Mrs. Doak was a member of the Dutton family that settled in the southwestern section of the state in 1740. Her husband, Sergt. C. D. Doak, of the Army of Northern Virginia, was with Lee at Appomattox and likewise was a descendant of Virginia pioneers.

She saw her son rise from a small job on the Norfolk and Western Railway to high office in the railway brotherhoods and finally to the councils of the President.

Insull Holds 1930 Results Satisfactory

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Samuel Insull told stockholders of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., that results of 1930 have been satisfactory and the people have got over their panicky feeling toward the prices of securities and commodities.

Insull said from the point of view of world economics we must be satisfied with business that can be developed within our own borders, and ours is a relatively undeveloped country.

LONE GUNMAN ROBS TRAIN

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Seven passengers lounging in the observation car of the south-bound New York-New Orleans Crescent Limited as it speeded through Georgia last night were held up and robbed of approximately $300 by a lone gunman, who escaped in an exchange of shots with a flagman.

The robbery occurred between Newnan and Moreland, Ga., at 7:20 p. m. M. Pierce, a Pullman porter, kept the robber out of the dining car, where the steward had more than $1,000 in his cash account, by crawling on hands and knees to lock the forward door of the observation car.

The bandit dropped off the platform as he brought the train to a halt by pulling the emergency stop cord.

NO. 5 OF A SERIES OF ADVERTISEMENTS ON THE STORY OF OLIVER TWIST

Original George Cruikshank Illustration through Courtesy of Houghton Mifflin Company

"Help!" cried Oliver, struggling in the man's powerful grasp

After Charley and the Dodger ran away, leaving him to be captured, Oliver was taken to the home of Mr. Brownlow, the victim of the theft. Here he was nursed through his illness and treated kindly. Oliver thought he was through with Fagin and his gang. But they, fearing he would betray them to the police, scoured the whole city. And one day, while Oliver was returning some books for his benefactor, Bill Sikes and Nancy seized him, pretending he had run away from home. The crowd paid no attention to his protests. So he was dragged, crying for help, back to Fagin's den, where his clothes and money were taken from him and he was once more imprisoned and subjected to abuse and hard work.

Have you tried the new and better loaf . . . HALLER'S OLIVER TWIST?

If you want a real treat, stop the Haller Man on your street today and get a loaf of Haller's Oliver Twist. You never tasted bread like this before! Its delicious flavor is the result of laboratory-tested ingredients and a better bake. The "twist" method of handling eliminates air-holes and gives it a wonderfully smooth, even texture. Working Wives Defended by One of Their Number

Is Missie Working Wife just a Frivolous Floss with no ideas beyond the latest in fur coats and dates with the boss?

Is she taking the bread out of babies' mouths and making a sap out of her husband?

Elnora answered those questions with a loud, resounding "yes." According to her, married ladies who refused to stay at home are a blot on civilization. And well I admit that plenty of people agree with her.

And was Peggy one of them? Not so's you could notice it! If you want to get in on something good listen to this:

A Working Wife

"Dear Miss Martin:

"So all Working Wives are frivolous, and do not help their husbands, do they? Well, as I am sitting here at my desk I can't remember the name of the married person who envied you on this subject. BUT WHOEVER SHE IS SHE GIVES ME A PAIN!

"I have been a wife for seven years. And a working wife at that. And I have never been out with a boss or even thought of going out with one. Nor do I have a fur coat. And I hardly think you could call me frivolous.

"In the first place, when I married my husband he was a young fellow just starting out. His salary was small and, as I hadn't been willing and ready to help, we probably wouldn't have been married yet. Or, according to the person who envies you, one of those drawn-out engagements you hear about probably would be the result. Instead, to the happy companionship we've had these seven years—but that just shows how little she knows.

Has Responsibilities

"To get back to brass tacks, Fred has the same position he had when we married, and has worked up in it now so that he gets a good salary. We have a nice little home, a moderately priced car, all paid for, and moderately good clothes. And through it all I have taken care of my mother, who is blind, and has had to have several operations. These things could not possibly have been done had we tried to struggle along on my husband's salary while I, a capable business woman, sat home engaged in the 'woman's' occupation of darning his socks. I do that too—after hours. And I keep the house going besides, very seldom calling in [illegible]

Self-Respect Remains

[illegible] self-respect [illegible] me [illegible] I'm [illegible] because I've been [illegible] my part in [illegible] and [illegible] I'm [illegible] and building up [illegible] amounts to something worth while.

"Seems to me that if anyone should kick on this working business it should be the wives who are carrying two jobs . . . and I'm right here to tell you that I'm not. I'm happy. And our meals don't come out of cans, either.

"PEGGY."

I guess that's telling 'em, huh? And now that you've read it, what's your comeback? Are you still convinced that Papa must have a Cleopatra Mama waiting for him to bring home the bacon in order to remain a self-respecting Sir Man?

My guess is that there are some gents affected this way . . . and others who don't need any such boost to keep 'em in working order.

What do you think? What-ever it is, let's have it!

Road to Success Often Hindered by Temporary Conditions, Says Fay King

THOSE WHO DEVOTE THEIR SPARE TIME TO STUDY, ARE BOUND TO IMPROVE AND ADVANCE
FAY KING

A lot of folks are always lamenting the fact that they cannot accomplish things they hope to because they are hemmed in by limitations.

Yet if they will trouble to trace to the beginnings of those who have reached the goals they set out for, they will find that those who achieved success in their chosen field were often forced to start toward that goal hindered by many temporary conditions.

They had to make time for study, improvement and practice. Often they did not even confide their hopes and ambitions, but worked toward their goal in silence.

There is always room for improvement even in the work you are doing and are satisfied to do.

To wish to improve—is being successful.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

Madge Is Elated as Noel and Mary Patch Up Quarrel

May I go over to see Noel?" Mary repeated when I did not answer her because I was mentally repeating her dictum: "Nothing's worth a quarrel with the one you love best in the world"; then she caught her lower lip between her teeth and her face was suddenly scarlet.

Oh, I forgot!" she exclaimed. "A girl who's being shadowed by private detectives hired by her future father-in-law must fade Caesar's wife to a fare-you-well. No, I won't dash over alone. But will you come with me?"

She laughed as she rattled off her little speech. But there was bitterness beneath the laughter. I was at a loss what to say to her and was grateful for the sudden ringing of the bell, an impetuous ring which I thought I identified.

"I don't believe you'll have to go over," I whispered with a smile as I went to the door.

Noel almost dashed past me as I opened it, evidently "remembering his manners" with an effort.

"I've been waiting ever since you left," he explained hurriedly, and I knew that while he was looking dutifully at me, his words were for Mary. "I asked the telephone operator to ring me as soon as you came upstairs, and then I rushed right over. May I speak to Mary?"

Of course," I said, and he started impetuously toward her, both hands held out. Mary met him half way, and I discreetly turned my back but I could not help hearing disjointed fragments—"I'm sorry, Noel." "Do not sweetheart." "I was a beast. I didn't mean a word of it." "Of course, you're going to love it. And—I'll dance if it kills me."

Mary's laugh tinkled, but there was tenderness in its mirth.

"It won't kill you, poor darling," she said. "You'll be the life of the party, won't he, Auntie Madge?"

I guessed that she had deliberately included me in the discussion to lessen the emotional tenseness with which Noel had invested the colloquy. It did not take a Sherlockian brain to deduce that Noel had let his jealous imagination dwell on Mary as the center of all masculine attention during the party, until he had lost control of his temper and sulkily declined to dance.

"I never have been able to determine just what being the life of the party includes," I said smiling, but I am sure that whatever it is you can be it if you choose. And I'm so glad you're going to dance. Nothing so absolutely spoils a party as a young man refusing to dance and looking bored or sullen while the rest are frolicking. Now, if you two will please go into the far corner of the living-room you'll be out of my way and I'll be out of yours. I've some telephoning to do. Well, have luncheon not later than one for I must be in the dining-room at two to oversee the decorations. I want your help then, Mary, but I'm going to send you to bed about three, so you will have a good long nap before the party, Noel. I hope you'll be tractable and lie down immediately after luncheon. You're still a bit of an invalid, you know, and we don't want to tire you out."

"I'll do whatever you say, Mrs. Graham," Noel said, and Mary turned to me with flashing eyes.

"What about you, taking a nap, Auntie Madge? You've been going longer than anybody. Of course you will have to see to the decorations at two, and the Lord only knows how long they will take, but what's the matter with snatching forty or even thirty winks before luncheon? Noel and I will mount guard in this room and we won't let anybody cross your threshold. We'll also answer all telephones, but we won't summon you unless it's actually imperative. Come now, what do you say? Please say yes. I'm awfully worried about you."

"Of course, I'll say 'yes,'" I said, smiling down at her. "I've only three telephone messages on my mind, the first of which I shall attend to at once. The others I shall leave with you, while I snatch a nap before luncheon."

"Oh! Spiffy! spiffy!" Mary chanted and whirled the chair from before the telephone stand. "Can I get your number?"

"I'm afraid not," I told her. "I'm going to talk to Mr. Vertzen, and I don't want either of you to be in evidence."

"I should hope not," Mary said quickly. "Let's scuttle, Noel."

She seized his hand and fairly ran with him to the extreme corner of the living room where easy chairs were drawn up to the low window with its view of the distant river. I wished fervently that I could join them, for I disliked telephoning my employer, especially because of the warm personal note he had sounded during our discussions of the party.

But there was no warmth—instead a surprising frigidity in the tones which came to me when the operator had summoned Mr. Vertzen to the phone.

"Mrs. Graham?" I confess I am astonished. I thought you had decided to dispense with my services altogether."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Adults Not Immune to Paralysis.

Those who remember the infantile paralysis epidemic of 1916 are naturally alarmed when they hear rumors that this dread disease is once more prevalent. Official figures show, however, that the number of cases so far this year, although greater than for the corresponding period last year, is not abnormally large.

Dr. Copeland.

Every year in June or July cases of this disease become more numerous, continuing to increase in frequency until the latter part of September or early October. From that time on it subsides rapidly and remains at a low level until the next Summer.

What makes the disease especially feared by the parents of young children is the fact that it is so often followed by deformity. There is comfort in knowing that the actual number of cases in proportion to the population is small.

Infantile paralysis does not attack children only. The name would suggest this. It is more common among children, and more fatal among the younger children, but it attacks adults, too.

It is an inflammation of the spinal cord which may go to the extent of destroying nerve cells. When this happens it is likely to cause paralysis, although this complication does not always follow.

The epidemic of 1916 had the effect of stimulating research into the cause and treatment of infantile paralysis. In consequence today the chances of complete recovery are much better than ever before.

If the disease is recognized early enough, the use of serum from the blood of persons who have recovered often proves beneficial. In any event, it is essential for effective treatment that every case should receive prompt diagnosis and care.

To restore crippled limbs and usefulness and prevent permanent deformity after an attack of this disease, a careful system of exercising must be pursued. Ordinarily this work is best done in the patient's own home by the parents. Trained supervision is necessary, of course, as too early or too strenuous efforts may do more harm than good. But the patience and loving care of members of the child's family are invaluable in carrying on the routine. It is remarkable what good results, even in cases of long standing, may be obtained from patient manipulation and exercise of affected muscles.

It seems to be well demonstrated that the disease is spread by people rather than things. Children should be kept away from persons who are in contact with patients, as well as from the patients themselves.

Answers to Health Queries.

DORIS Q.—What are among the first symptoms of chicken-pox, and is there any way in which small children may be made immune?

A.—The presence of small red blisters on the skin is the outstanding symptom at the onset of the attack. No. In most instances the disease is apt to be slight and of short duration.

* * *

Mrs. H. C. Q.—What causes me to lack energy and to be depressed in spirits all the time? I am troubled with headaches and my hands are usually cold.

2. My little girl, who is 8 years old, is cross-eyed. Can this be remedied?

A.—You may be troubled with low blood pressure.

2.—In every case of this kind a thorough examination must be made to determine the extent of the trouble and the degree of vision. In some instances proper fitting glasses will relieve the condition, but most times an operation is necessary. Consult a competent eye specialist and have him advise you concerning the child.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Discrimination in Extending Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. While attending school last summer I met a young man who has since written to me twice. I have taken a fancy to him and I would like to invite him to visit my home sometime. Would that be considered proper, or should I wait for him to ask me if he may?

2. I met a young man at a party a week ago and asked him to call me on the telephone. Should I have done so? Or do "we women" have to let the men take the initiative in everything? MISS F.

1. Let's suppose you are using the word "visit" to mean "call" and that is a correct use of the word. I see no reason why you should not ask this young man to call on you. That's what our homes are for . . . for us to extend their hospitality to our friends. And it makes no difference in this case whether our friends are women or men . . . we should make them feel that we want to have them come to see us at our homes.

If by the word "visit" a stay over the week-end, say, then the invitation is still correct, but in this case it should be given by your mother or whoever is the hostess in your home.

Any well-bred young man or young woman would expect to receive such an invitation from the hostess of the home.

2. "We women" don't always have to leave the taking-of-the-initiative to the men—as I have set forth in my first answer. We must use our judgment . . . sound social judgment . . . about this, as we must about all things that pertain to human relationships. That's what makes it so thrilling!

Now in my judgment, it would be charming . . . because 'hospitable and gracious . . . to extend the first invitation, the one to come to see you. But the suggestion to telephone you seems—well, rather ill-placed. It seems to me that the man himself should ask for this privilege. Somehow it seems more a bid for attention than an offer of hospitality. Don't you agree?

The Place of Fruit Salad on the Menu

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to serve a fruit salad on a lettuce leaf as a dessert? READER.

This cannot be properly classified as a dessert. But if the rest of the meal has been of a rather heavy type, and if the luncheon or dinner is a very informal one, the salad course and the dessert course may be combined in this way. Especially if the course is dressed up a bit with interesting accessories, such as attractive biscuits or crackers and interesting kinds of cheese.

If you wish to serve the fruit last, and wish to omit the salad course, a more interesting way—at least a more "dessert-y" way—is to serve a compote of fruit, either fresh fruits or stewed fruits served with delicious juices.

And, if you serve the fruit salad, don't make the lettuce leaf singular. Choose from the head of lettuce the small, white inner leaves, and serve the fruit on a few of the choicest of these crisp leaves.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Sitting on the edge of a chair is an ugly pose. It creates an attitude that is without grace or tranquillity, throws the body out of balance. The lower part of the torso and the shoulder blades should touch the chair-back. The spinal column should have an inward curve at the waistline that holds abdominal muscles taut and which elevates the chest. Sit pretty, girls; sit pretty.

Blackheads are caused by congestion of the sebaceous glands. Instead of throwing off their oily secretions, exudations bank up, stretching the walls of the pores, and catching atmospheric dust. The oily plugs will gradually dissolve if every night when the skin is still moist after the facial bathing a mixture of equal parts of boric acid and baking soda is patted onto the skin surface.

Constipation is sometimes the cause of swollen tissue under the eyes. Lack of sleep will create them as well, also the need of fresh air and exercise. Temporary relief is found in bathing the eyes first with hot water, then with cold, and resting the eyes for 15 minutes under compresses of absorbent cotton that have been dipped in witch hazel.

Moles are usually harmless, specialists can remove them with the X-ray, and by other scientific means that are safe. If a mole suddenly begins to enlarge and the edges about it are broken and white it may prove a source of danger, in which event a medical man specializing in blemishes of the skin should be consulted. Warts that grow quickly and show a pale, broken line between the growth and the skin proper call for professional attention.

Household Hints

When packing dresses in trunks or suitcases it's always wise to place tissue paper in the sleeves and between the folds to prevent creases.

Malted ice cream may be used to advantage by the clever cook who adds powdered sugar and beats the mixture into a frothy, delicious cake icing. Another simple icing for little cakes is made by adding powdered sugar to strawberry juice and beating until smooth.

When a long-handled broom becomes worn out, instead of throwing it away cut down the straws even, tie a piece of felt, carpet or flannel cloth around the head and make a good floor polisher (an old felt hat can also be used for this purpose). It will also keep linoleum in good condition. Foot marks can be rubbed off at any time without stooping.

When cutting off buttons from old garments, string them in sets, or run them on a large safety-pin, and they will be ready for use again.

Old stocking tops make good dusters when sewed together; also good polishing cloths for oiling and rubbing down floors or furniture. Several old stocking tops cut in strips and dipped in paraffin oil make fine dustless mops for hardwood floors or furniture.

In this season of sneezes and sniffles, the ordinary handkerchief is a prolific source of infection, but have you seen the new hemstitched tissue handkerchiefs? so inexpensive they can be discarded after using, but not a bit like the old-style paper affair. They come in pastel shades and their soft texture is a real relief to the suffering nose.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, February 18

The astral forces for this day operate to bring lively and interesting conditions, with much stirring about, change and fresh opportunities for advancement and growth. It is a time for pushing for favors and toward the goal of the ambitions, but with restraint and sagacity. A tendency to rash and impetuous moves would be detrimental. Also it is suggested that precaution be exercised against fraud and duplicity as well as subtle dangers.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for an active and eventful year, with fresh opportunities for advancement and prosperity, but they are enjoined to be on guard against duplicity, fraud and secret machinations and also to refrain from impetuous actions and words. Good judgment and calm methods should make for gratifying success and happy fruitions.

A child born on this day may be well equipped for a successful and progressive career, but should be schooled in calm behavior and self-restraint, as well as to be alert for subtle enmities.

Buc Pilot Optimistic.
Confidence in Phillips.
Rates Thevenow at Top.
New Ball Changes Play.
'Bama Regrets Slight.
Bostwick Cleaning Up.

ENS SEES PIRATES SURE CONTENDERS

JEWEL ENS is too old a bird in baseball to make any pennant cracks in February, but though he did not go so far as to file any flag claims for his 1931 Pittsburgh outfit, the Pirate skipper was fairly oozing optimism when he blew into town from West Palm Beach yesterday preparatory to starting with the Buccaneer advance guard next Thursday morning for the Paso Robles training camp. He believes he has a contender, at least, and doesn't care who knows it.

Jewel Ens

Ens admits that he would have felt that way about his club even if he had no further guarantee of new strength this season than the assurance of Lloyd Waner's presence in center field from the start of the race. Even before he went South for the winter, Jewel contended that the Bucs had lost a sufficient number of games in center field last spring to knock them out of the pennant, and that all they needed to put them in the fight for the 1931 muslin was to have the younger Waner in good health and on the job steadily.

BUT ENS THINKS he sees additional ground for confidence now. He finds it in the catching department. He declares any doubt that may have existed as to the strength of the Pirates in that important branch has been swept away by the acquisition of Eddie Phillips from the Athletics. Jewel has the assurance of good judges that Phillips is the real stuff as a backstop and he is confident Eddie will bolster up the one part of the Rover crew that needed bracing.

"Our catching was the only item in doubt, and now everything is rosy in that department," said the boss of the Bucs. "I am told that Phillips just can't miss in our league. Men who ought to know assure me that he has everything that goes to make a first-class catcher, and that he never would have been allowed to get away from Detroit but for an injury he suffered while with that club.

"TWO OF THE men I have consulted about Phillips are Dan Howley, manager of the Reds, and Heinie Manush, Washington outfielder, both of whom are in a position to know something about him.

"Both pronounce him a fine catcher, who can't fail to help us. Howley in particular is wild about Phillips, and says he will be greatly surprised if the new backstop doesn't prove a find for us and play a big part in putting our club in the race."

THE PICAROON PILOT is equally hopeful about some of the other new additions to the crew. An improved defense is the main reason for his optimism and in his opinion the main factor in producing that improved defense will be Tommy Thevenow at shortstop. Ens says he has long considered Thevenow the best fielding shortstop in the National League and he is confident that Tommy's ability in that respect will win many a game that otherwise would go into the defeat column. Jewel thinks Claude Willoughby also will prove serviceable and says he has also received good reports of Maurice Mealy, the young catcher from Wichita. Ens might not be averse to adding an experienced infielder to his forces, but in a general sense he is well satisfied with the situation and ready to go.

Jack Slattery

IN THE OPINION of Jack Slattery, now a scout for the Braves, the slower ball this year is going to mean new position play for the outfielders and possibly some slighter switches by the infielders. He says the outfielders can afford to play in closer.

Slattery predicts that more runners will be thrown out trying to score from second base on hits or from third on caught flies than has been the case in many years. He thinks the infielders may play nearer to the plate, but not much.

THOUGH THE LATEST Tournament of Roses football game between Alabama and Washington State is ancient history as the sports calendar goes, they're still fussing on the coast about an incident in connection with it that did not break into the public prints at the time.

It seems that when the "Star Spangled Banner" was played at the Rose Bowl that day, the members of the Alabama team failed to stand at attention and though the greater part of the crowd concluded that the players had done it unwittingly and promptly forgot the oversight a deal of comment was stirred up in some quarters.

IT DEVELOPS THAT Rev. H. H. Hocker, of Compton, wrote a letter about it to President George Denny, of the University of Alabama. He has received the following reply: "My Dear Mr. Hocker: I am deeply grateful for your kind letter. Of course, all of us felt a sense of humiliation in view of the situation you bring to our attention. We have already taken steps to make clear this sense of regret. Thanking you warmly for your letter, and with every good wish for you in the New Year P. S.—I am convinced that in no section of our great country is there a greater respect for and loyalty to the flag than in this southeastern section."

AS A GENERAL rule, any hopes that may exist for an American victory in the Grand National Steeplechase are based wholly and solely upon the previous showings of a horse entered from this country, but in this year's running of the famous event at Aintree, England, those same Yankee hopes will be pinned instead on a jockey.

G. H. (Pete) Bostwick is the rider in question. He's only 21 years old and a midget in stature, standing only 5 feet 2 inches in height and weighing a mere 109 pounds, but the way he has been tearing things loose on the English turf makes him the outstanding steeplechase jockey of the year thus far.

THOUGH THE STEEPLECHASE season is still young in England, this mite of a jockey has scored five times aboard jumpers from his own stable, and once astride Victor Emanuel's Nagle II, a prominent entry for the Grand National. His latest victory was registered last Friday on his own Sir Crispen in the two-mile Roehampton Handicap hurdle race at Hurst Park.

G. H. Bostwick

This was Bostwick's third straight win on that horse in as many starts. But it appears not to matter a great deal what horse Bostwick rides. He generally wins anyhow. He is slated to ride Bangle in the Grand National on March 27, and his friends are even predicting that he'll be first in that, too.

PETE'S FEATS OF horsemanship may be surprising to staid turfdom in England, but not so here in America, where experts have long rated him as the greatest amateur jockey the United States has known since the days of Harry Stone. This 21-year-old cousin of the famous polo ace, Tommy Hitchcock, has millions, but they mean only money to buy more and faster horses. Though young in years he is a veteran of the saddle. He has been riding since he was 7, having appeared in numerous horse shows almost before he could get his legs across his mount. Six years ago he added polo and riding to hounds to his repertoire, and last summer his rare riding ability earned him a place on America's international polo squad. He has remarkable arms and shoulders, prime requisites of a real jockey, ideal hands and what horsemen call a perfect seat astride a thoroughbred. He quit college because he saw "no use sitting in school when one can sit on a horse and get somewhere."

Having gotten the Bethany-Westminster headliner safely out of the way, with the honors draped tastefully about the shoulders of the Titans, attention roves tonight from the banks of Buffalo Creek, where the Bisons and Titans indulged in a mad scramble last night, to Beaver Falls, where Duquesne and Geneva clash in a return battle.

Three weeks ago Geneva sent its cool and calculating Covenanters, then in the throes of an enjoyable comeback, here to the city and secured a decisive triumph over the Duke arms. Tonight, Geneva hopes to repeat its victory before home town fans.

DUKES LOSE McGEEVER

The Dukes, who clicked like nobody's business last week against Catholic U., and then stumbled and staggered through to a meager win over Georgetown, must win this one tonight. Two losses to Geneva will put an effective kibosh on the record of the Dukes for the season, whether they win all their remaining games or not.

The Dukes are in a rather tough spot, for they'll have to combat tonight minus the services of Bunk McGeever, the hefty center. Bunk is ill with the flu and will be out of action for some time. Tonight, Coach Davies will start Ben Pawlina in his place.

Otherwise, both lineups will be as they have been to date.

Titans Win

Westminster had to play good basketball last night to beat the Bethany Bisons in their cheese-box gym in Bethany. The Titans played very good basketball, exhibited a lot of fight and consistency on the attack to win by a 31-29 score.

Paced by Harry Brownlee, who was the ace of the Titan entourage, despite his being outscored by a teammate, Douglass, the United Presbyterians came from away in the rear to hold the Bisons even at the half and then went on to establish an early lead in the second period, which they held to the finish.

Brownlee played a whale of a floor game, scored three field goals and five out of six fouls and outplayed the highly touted Telfair, rangy center of the Buffalo Creekians.

It looked for a time as though Bethany, which had won nine in a row without suffering a defeat previous to last night, was going to make a Buffalo holiday out of the evening. Led by the veteran marksman, Mal Rush, the Bisons sped away to 15-3 lead. This advantage was steadily whittled away, however, by Brownlee's steady scoring, and finally, he dumped a field goal to put the teams all even at the half.

BASS WINNER IN MIXUP

In the second round, Taylor went down and claimed a foul on a left to the body. Referee Leo Houck, instead of allowing the claim or counting out Taylor, called in a doctor, who said he could find no traces of a low blow, whereupon Houck declared Bass the winner by a knockout, not a technical knockout, although he didn't count him out.

The crowd jeered this belated ruling and Wiener then hopped into the breach and ordered the men to box five exhibition rounds, to have no bearing on the outcome, which was to stand as a knockout. This they did and battled along on even terms.

After it was all over, Wiener, while okaying the knockout decision, said the punch that sent Taylor to the floor was low.

Referee Houck had nothing to say. Taylor's comment was: "So this is Philadelphia!" (It was his first appearance in a bout here). Bass denied he had struck low, and Dr. A. Baron, of the commission, was insistent Taylor had not been fouled.

Just another fight night in Philadelphia, with everything going dead wrong.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE NATURAL WOODEN BRIDGE—This unique tree-trunk bridge, located near Awosting, Greenwood Lake, N. J., was formed when the tree was only a sapling. The top branches were bent over the creek and buried in the ground, with the result that a second rooting took place. One of the outgrowing branches now has formed the main trunk of the tree.

TOMORROW: WHAT WE KNOW OF SUN AND EARTH.

ENS EXPECTS CLOSE RACE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Manager Jewel Ens of the Pirates shares the belief of this writer which is that the coming race of the National League will be another five-cornered affair.

Charley Wood

"It looks like a free-for-all among the Cardinals, Cubs, Giants, Robins and Pirates," said Ens today in looking ahead. The same five clubs furnished the competition last summer, the Redbirds winning out after one of the hottest races in the history of the game.

Ens naturally is eager to steer his ship away from the waters that engulfed it last year. The epidemic of sickness and accidents militated against the Freebooters to a serious extent.

Jewel is not worried over the report on Charley Woods, who is said to be suffering from influenza. The account of Wood's illness was published a few days ago, but the player had not written the club concerning the attack so that Owner Dreyfuss and Manager Ens are convinced his ailment is not of any consequence.

The pilot of the team was saddened today when he learned that Vice President Sam Dreyfuss would not be able to accompany the first squad to Paso Robles as a result of an attack of intestinal influenza which confines him to his home.

The younger member of the Pirate directorate has been in charge of the advance parties since the Buccos selected California for their training ground. He had intended to be in charge of Thursday's departing squad, but the malady which seized him some time ago reached such a stage as to cause his physicians to advise him to remain at home. It

Have to hand it to the Mid-Atlantic League for gameness in blowing itself to four extra franchises and rounding out a 12-club circuit in these times, when most of the other minor leagues are wondering whether they should continue at the old stand and take a chance of doing the usual pop-up on July Fourth or just simply fold up and die now and save themselves a lot of trouble . . . . That Elks' football game for charity on the Coast could have used some of the publicity in advance that it is getting now . . . . Honus Wagner denies he is a member of the Greater Pittsburgh Baseball Commission . . . . Mickey Duris Wins Over Paris Cangey

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Twice flooring his opponent for counts of nine, Mickey Duris, Johnstown fighter, pounded out a 10-round decision over Paris Cangey, New Castle, here last night. Cangey was upset in the fifth and final rounds.

SOCCER CONFAB TONIGHT

By TOM LIRKS.

The Pittsburgh Central Soccer League will hold a meeting at 813 Liberty avenue at 8 o'clock tonight. Important business is to be transacted.

Next Saturday afternoon, the West Penn semi-final game, featuring Cecil and Dunlevy, will be played at the Bridgeville Speedway. This is the third attempt the committee has made to stage the affair, so let us hope that this one is successful.

CLEVELAND AGAIN

Next Sunday, Morgan again will board the rattlers for the Forest City. This time the Donnelli clan will tangle with Slavia, classed as the greatest club in Ohio, in a second round game of the National challenge cup.

Last Sunday was the first break Morgan has received this season at the gate. A large crowd watched the Pennsylvanians put the skids under the Shamrocks for the second time this season.

Manager Mangus stated after the game that he had a long talk with one of the National officials at the game, and it seems to be the opinion that Morgan's trip to Cleveland for the replay was because of advice from a Pittsburgh source.

TOUGH FOE

Slavia will be a tough opponent for Morgan. This team has been meeting the best professional teams in the West, and in the last round, defeated the Bruells, who represented the West in the grand final of the cup last year.

However, if Buff Donnelli gets his shooting boots working, Slavia will run into a peck of trouble.

LOCAL SKATERS MEET DETROIT AT GARDEN

By CARL W. SHATTO

The Yellow Jackets can't decide whether they should feel optimistic when they square off against the Detroit Olympics in an International League hockey game at Duquesne Garden tonight.

Frederickson

The members of the local ice squad favoring optimism can advance the following reasons why they should present a brow free of wrinkles and a pleasant front:

1—The Jackets have defeated the Olympics five times in as many attempts this season.

2—In recent battles the locals downed Cleveland and London, teams generally regarded as stronger than Detroit.

Pittsburgh puckmen who have elected to hold out for a pessimistic view also are armed with some fine material. They can sigh deeply and fearfully because:

1—Frank Frederickson, who performed at center for the Pittsburgh National Leaguers for a couple of seasons and who managed the local Pirates last year, now is the pivot on the Olympics' front line.

2—Frederickson has no little assistance in the business of giving the Detroiters a stronger punch. Sammy McAdam and Ernie Kenny, former Pacific Coast League aces, have transferred from the New York Rangers to the Olympics since the last time the Michiganders were opposed by Pittsburgh.

TO PLAY, THOUGH ILL

3—Goalie Albie Cox, a flu victim, is running a temperature of about 100. He intends to play tonight despite his affliction.

4—Roy D. Schooley, president and manager of the Pittsburgh club, is "on the ropes" and running a high fever as the result of an attack of flu, and may not be able to direct his team tonight. Schooley disobeyed his physician's orders in attending last Saturday night's fray, and the excitement attending the Jackets' thrilling overtime victory upset his nervous system and permitted the flu to get a firm hold.

5—The law of averages favors Detroit. Although the Jackets have beaten 'em every time out, they are the only club to turn the trick. The Olympics downed Cleveland's champs Sunday, and they can't see why Pittsburgh shouldn't be added to a list of victims that includes every club in the circuit except the Schooley icemen.

The pessimists appear to have a big edge in the debate, but appearances sometimes are deceiving. Goalie Cox, weak and groggy, was running a temperature of 100 or more while in action against Cleveland last Tuesday, and against London last Thursday and Saturday. In each game he

SPORT SHORTS

KANSAS CITY.—(AP.)—Jumping Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame gridiron star, began his career as a professional wrestler here last night by defeating Don De Lonzo, billed as the French heavyweight champion.

PALM BEACH, Fla.—(AP.)—Diana Fishwick started an invasion of the United States by British women golfers here yesterday by scoring a 78 to tie for the medal in the Florida women's championship. Mrs. Stuart Hanley, of Detroit, made a similar score.

NEW YORK.—(AP.)—The football rules, except in one relatively unimportant particular, will remain the same this year. The change was to remove the arbitrary award of point after touchdown, making the penalty for an offside the same as if the foul had been committed during any other scrimmage. Under the new rule, if the defending team infringes the rules, it will be penalized half the distance to the goal line and the point tried over. If the attacking team is at fault, it will be penalized the usual five yards for offside play and again try the point from the 7-yard line.

ST. LOUIS.—(AP.)—Burleigh Grimes and Jess Haines, veteran aces of the St. Louis Cardinal pitching staff, left last night for Hot Springs, Ark., to spend three weeks rounding for the 1931 pennant campaign. They will join the Cards in Florida the second week in March.

LONDON.—(AP.)—England's hopes of repeating its 1929 triumph over the United States in the Ryder Cup matches at Columbus, O., June 26 and 27, were weakened yesterday when the Professional Golf Association definitely barred Henry Cotton from competition. The action was the result of the player's demands he be permitted to travel separate from the Ryder Cup team and compete in matches in the United States.

CINCINNATI.—(AP.)—Eppa Rixey, one of the National League ancients, has signed a contract to pitch for the Cincinnati Reds this season. It will mark the twentieth year that Rixey has pitched in the big leagues. Rixey went direct from the University of Virginia to the Philadelphia Nationals in 1912.

CHICAGO.—(AP.)—William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, is "reasonably certain" the Schmeling-Stribling fight will be held in Soldier Field, Chicago, June 19. He made this statement yesterday before leaving for New York, adding that a conference Thursday might settle the question.

NEW YORK.—(AP.)—The Brooklyn Robins have announced the signing of Jimmy Johnston as coach for the 1931 season. Johnston broke into professional baseball with Kewanee of the Central Association in 1908 as an outfielder. He was picked up by the Chicago Americans in 1911, but never played with them. After further sessions with Oakland, of the Pacific Coast League, he was signed by Brooklyn in 1916. He played the outfield and every position in the infield for the Robins until the end of the 1925 season, when he was traded to the Boston Braves. He played the infield with Atlanta, of the Southern Association, last year.

SOUTH PASSERS OUT TO STOP ALLDERDICE

GAMES TODAY.
SECTION I.
Westinghouse at Schenley
Peabody at Connelley
Allderdice at South.
SECTION II.
Vocational at South Hills
Oliver at Carrick
Perry at Langley

There is only one feature game on the City League scholastic basketball card today, but it is one of the most important of the entire season. The contest involves Westinghouse and Schenley in Section I, and in the event the Bellefielders win and South defeats Allderdice a tie will result for the league lead between South and the Brushtonites and Schenley will wind up just half a game behind the deadlocked leaders.

In the first round Westinghouse defeated Schenley with comparative ease at Westinghouse. Schenley has not lost a game since and has shown unmistakable signs of great strength by crushing Fifth Avenue, always a difficult team to subdue.

TIE MAY RESULT

Were it not for the Schenley-South second clash, booked for February 2, the closing date of the league race, the chances are very strong that the campaign would finish in a three-way tie. As it is, the game between the Bellefielders and Washabaughmen may decide the sectional title.

Other contests in the league today bring together Peabody and Connelly at Connelly and Allderdice and Fifth at Fifth in Section I and Vocational at South Hills; Oliver at Carrick and Langley at Perry in Section II.

In the W. P. I. A. L. the most hectic action is promised in Section X, where Greensburg, which led the chase until last week with an unsullied slate, suddenly finds itself jammed up in a tie with Scottdale. Tonight Greensburg takes on Norwin at home while Scottdale must defeat the formidable Jeannette entry.

AMBRIDGE UNBEATEN

Moe Rubenstein's crack Ambridge High team, unbeaten and with the title cinched in Section II, plays Ray Bucher's scrappy Leetsdale team at Leetsdale. New Castle, out in front in Section III, meets Ellwood City.

Swissvale and Wilkinsburg, battling for the honors in Section XI, continue to prepare for their second clash, scheduled for next week, by taking on Oakmont and Etna, respectively.

Section I.
Arnold at Parnassus
Tarentum at Freeport
Har-Brack at New Kensington
Section II.
Bellevue at Sewickley
Ambridge at Leetsdale
Ben Avon at Avalon
Section III.
Evans City at Zelienople

LOCAL PASSERS IN BIG GAMES

By JULIUS LEVIN

Tuesday usually the most popular night of the week for basketball, will not lack first-class attractions tonight, judging from the number of important battles on the program. County League fans will get their last chance to see Fintex and the Duquesne Lafayettes in action before the playoffs tonight when those teams clash at Duquesne. Fintex won the first half title and the Lafayettes the second.

St. Michaels plays at the North Side Buicks and the Ray E. Schneiders at the Knickerbockers in the two West Penn League contests, while the Tri-County League winds up its schedule with a battle at Duquesne. Swissvale being the attraction. Monessen won both halves of this race and a playoff series will not be necessary.

St. James will be the attraction of St. Henry's in the Catholic Lyceum League, while the Pittsburghers play at B. & O. in the Greater Pittsburgh League.

Two good independent games also are listed for tonight. The Goldenson Vanities go after their thirty-sixth straight victory when they invade Butler to meet the Y. W. C. A. passers, while the smooth-working Young Men's Hebrew Association quintet opposes the Charleroi Merchants of the Allegheny County League at Charleroi.

JACKETS PLAY OLYMPICS

performed brilliantly and it seems that the higher his temperature the hotter is his exhibition in the nets.

OLYMPIC EDGE SMALL

Schooley quit a sick bed to direct the Jackets Saturday, and he is so wrapped up in his team's fortunes that he is likely to do it again. And three or four Pittsburgh goals are likely to throw the law of averages for a few substantial loss.

This reduces the Detroit edge to its new stars . . . Frederickson, McAdams, Kenny and Goldsworthy. Local fans undoubtedly will give Frederickson and his mates a warm welcome. The locals stonewall defense is likely to go local fans one better and give Frederickson and his mates a hot welcome, and of the two the welcome extended by the Jacket defense is likely to prove the more convincing.

Tonight's game will mark the Olympics' last appearance of the season here. The Detroiters are popular because they make up in fighting what they lack in hockey skill. They helped to provide some of the best fist fights seen here this season.

President Schooley today announced that Rightwing Charley LaRoche and Defenseman Roger Smith have been recalled from Niagara Falls and that Joe Matte has been returned to the Falls farm. LaRoche probably will team up with McGuire and Halliday.

TO SHOOT THE WORKS

The Jackets are certain to shoot the works tonight, for by winning they can capture fourth place (a play-off berth) or advance to within a half-game of third place. Cleveland's fourth-placers a game ahead of Pittsburgh, meet London's third-placers a game and a half ahead of Pittsburgh, at London tonight. The crowd which will watch the Jackets attempt to cash in on their golden opportunity to gain in the league race is likely to be of capacity proportions. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh.		London.
Cox	G	Verne
Fraser	G	Kenn
Lowe	F	Hoffmeyer
Goodwin	F	Frederickson
Knights	W	Steele
Grey	W	McAdam

SCHAAF STOPS DANIELS

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—A one-round knockout over Dick Daniels of Minneapolis was the records today to Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight. Acting Referee Chuck Hughes sent down under-dog's head lolling for the count of nine. Daniels got up at a count of nine. Daniels tore into Schaaf, driving him somewhat on the Boston fighter came back with his right and Daniels went down to take the count of 10. Jack Sharkey refereed the semi-final.

W.P.I.A.L. to Plan Eliminations Saturday

Representatives of sectional champions and prospective champions of the W. P. I. A. L. will meet in the Fort Pitt Hotel Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, for the purpose of formulating plans for the annual championship elimination tournament.

Sectional winners will be divided into brackets and the draw made for the tournament. Provisions also will be made for any play-off games necessary to decide sectional winners.

EASTON FIGHTS P. I. A. A. RULE, QUITS LOOP

EASTON, Pa., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Rebelling against what has been termed the tyranny of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association in attempting to enforce unreasonable, unfair and undemocratic demands on its members, the Easton school board, in session here last night, directed the withdrawal of Easton High School from the association.

This is the second step taken by the Easton school authorities who have steadfastly denied the authority of the P. I. A. A. to say who the local board cannot employ. The first was taken on January 5, last, when James B. (Pat) Reilly was unanimously re-elected head football coach for 1931.

Reilly is not a full time, certified teacher, as required by the terms of a recently enacted amendment, the retroactive feature of which would have ripped Reilly out of office not later than September 1, next.

At a recent meeting of the board of control of the P. I. A. A., held at Harrisburg, interpretations were placed on the rules that gave the organization a strangle hold on Easton.

Reserving the right to be the sole judges of who shall or shall not be placed on the Easton school board payroll and refusing to subscribe to the theory that might makes for right, the school board last night directed Elton E. Stone, principal, to forward a communication to the proper officials, tendering the resignation of Easton High, effective on June 30, next.

DUKES BATTLE GENEVA FIVE

lead cost the West Virginians the ball game. In the second half, except for a brief moment early in the period when Bethany was ahead by 18-17, the Titans were out in front, and at one time boasted a seven-point margin.

Douglass was the heavy scorer of the second period. He dropped in four goals from the court and five out of six attempts at the charity line. Ted Blaner substituted for Capt. Phil Rice when the latter was ejected from the ball game on the four personal foul rule, came through in splendid fashion, obtaining the ball from the backboard time after time as the Bisons besieged the hoop with countless shots.

Flading, usually a steady player, had a poor night, being off on his passing and scoring both. Time after time he zipped the ball into the crowd instead of the hands of a waiting player.

As a result of the fracas, the rivals are tied for the lead in the Conference. The lineup:

Westminster—31		Bethany—29
Rush	F	Douglass
Lackey	F	Kocheran
Fleitelf	C	Brownlee
Flading	G	Rice
Jenkins	G	Fisher

Score by periods:

Westminster	15	16—31
Bethany	15	14—29

Substitutes—Bethany, Dupke, Pollard, George; Westminster, Blaner. Field goals—Rush 4, Telfair 2, Flading, Pollard, Douglass 4, Kocheran, Brownlee 3, Rice, Fouls—Rush 2 out of 4, Lackey 0 out of 3, Telfair 6 out of 8, Flading 2 out of 4, Pollard 1 out of 1, Douglass 6 out of 7, Kocheran 0 out of 3, Brownlee 5 out of 6, Rice 1 out of 1, Fisher 1 out of 2. Team fouls—Westminster 13 out of 19, Bethany 11 out of 20. Time of periods—20 minutes. Referee—Cal Bolster. Umpire—Zipper Brickley.

TARTANS LEAVE

Carnegie Tech's Tartans pull out of town tonight for a three-game invasion of the East. Tomorrow night they'll play the Army at West Point. Thursday they meet St. John's College at Brooklyn and after resting Friday, move to Philadelphia Saturday for a tussle with Temple University's Owls.

Wash-Jeff resumes its swing through the eastern sector of the college battlefront today, playing Temple. Thiel and Allegheny clash in a return battle in Meadville, with the Methodists out to avenge the lacing they received in Greenville last week.

Little Joe Savoldi Quits Notre Dame

Big Joe, it will be remembered, left Notre Dame before the close of the last football season when it became known that he had been secretly married. Little Joe, however, is leaving school for no marital reason, but simply at the request of his brother who now is living in Los Angeles between wrestling matches.

SPRING DRILL OFF

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Feb. 17.—There will be no spring football practice at Westminster College this year, athletic officials announce. The Titans have not held spring drills since 1926, when D. V. (Dike) Beede took over the reigns as grid coach.

HOOT GIBSON SIGNS

Walter (Hoot) Gibson, outfielder of the Homewood-Brushton Club last season, and a veteran of many other sandlot outfits in the district, has signed a contract to play for Elmira in the New York-Pennsylvania League this season.

The local college boys are right up to their necks in boxing. With Carnegie Tech and Duquesne supporting mitt teams, the University of Pittsburgh also has fallen in line and plans to get a team ready for a dual meet to be held with the H. T. Little Club of Homestead, within a couple of weeks, to be followed by meets with Tech, Duquesne and West Virginia University if matters work out all right.

Joe Orsini, of Clairton, former local amateur star, and more recently a professional, who played on the Slippery Rock Teachers' College football team last fall, after having made his mark at Clairton High School, is the coach of the Panther mittmen. Joe has transferred to Pitt, where he is a student in the physical education department and also will act as an instructor in boxing and coach of the varsity team. Joe always was a clever performer with his dukes and should do very well in his new position. He gave his squad its first workout in the Trees gym late yesterday. John Luch and Francis Seigel, of the football squad, are among the candidates. The former is a heavyweight and the latter a middleweight.

Between Rounds

An amateur boxing show will be held in the Homestead Library gymnasium tonight to raise funds to send the Library swimming team to New York during the summer. Paul Monar and Alex Regdon, Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U. junior champions, are among the boxers who will appear.

The League of Ross Heirs will stage an amateur show in the Homewood A. C. gymnasium tomorrow night to raise funds to carry on their claims to the Ross estate.

Johnny Jadich and Ray Miller have been matched to box in Detroit Friday night. Jack Adams, of St. Louis, has been signed to take the place of Frankie Sinms against Benny Touchstone at Ypsilanti, Mich., tomorrow night. Billy Bulley, the Michigan Buzzsaw, who recently did some boxing around here, meets Frankie Kolb in the semi-final. Touchstone boxes George Panks at the Moose Temple here Friday night of next week.

Joe Sekyra boxes Billy Jones on Thursday night and Danny Devlin meets Jimmy Smith on Friday in bouts in Philadelphia rings.

The Jimmy Belmont-Joe Trippe fight has caught on in McKeesport, where Promoter Jim McGirr will stage it Thursday night, and it looks as if it will be the best crowd producer of the year for Gemini Jim.

Two southpaws are on the Moose Temple card Friday night, but not—thank goodness!—against each other. They are Mose Butch, who meets Freddie Hill, of Detroit, in the semi-final, and Joey Spiegel, who engages Jackie Murray in the opener. Ted Yarosz and Tiger Joe Randall do a repeat in the 10-round windup.

COAN BEATS RAY CONGER

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Brilliant, dazzling, like a comet streaking across the sky to astonish the world, a Philadelphia boy named Carl Coan encompassed the downfall of Ray Conger, king of the milers, in Madison Square Garden, last night.

Coan, a third-year student at Penn, covered the mile in 4 minutes and 13 seconds.

Carrying his burst of speed all the way to the tape, Coan completed the fourth fastest indoor mile ever run, and the fastest indoor mile since Lloyd Hahn's 4:12 1-5 in 1927. The 4:12 record races of Paavo Nurmi, the Finn, and Joey Ray, the American, in 1925, are the only others that excelled Coan's downright bewildering performance.

St. Vincent's Wins Overtime Battle

Carney, St. Vincent center, tied the score in the final seconds of the game with a one-handed side court shot, 18-18. The lineup:

St. Vincent—28.		Indiana—23.
Gegutere	F	Steele
Bodner	F	Studebaker
Carney	C	Davis
Crean	G	(C) Guthrie
Westfall (C)	G	Fee

Substitutes—St. Vincent: Flauto, Lenkyel, Indiana: Leech, Sheriff. Field goals—Genovese 3, Bodner 4, Carney 2, Crean 3, Davis 4, Studebaker 5. Free throws—St. Vincent 4 out of 9; Indiana, 5 out of 7. Referee—Stahl, of Pitt.

Herb Kopf Made Columbia Coach

Building Up Big Fights

By IKE DORGAN,
The Man Behind Tex Rickard's Fistic Ballyhoos.

CHAPTER XXXII.

I hung around New Orleans for a day or two after Dempsey had polished off foxy Carl Morris, and, at Jack Kearns' suggestion, dropped out to the race track. Jack had a big killing coming off. A good thing, and I had better save all of my dimes and quarters and get aboard a live one, was the way Kearns put it.

Jack Kearns.

Kearns had bet his and Dempsey's end of the Morris fight on this good thing.

"What race does this comet start in?" I asked, fingering some of what was left of the century that Morris had given me out of pity.

Well, one race followed another, and, without looking at my program or really knowing what race it was, I bet $20 on a horse called Wadsworth Lass. The skate was 20 to 1.

I was a pretty happy young man as I wended my way back to the paddock after the race. There I espied Dempsey, Kearns and company standing by the fence. Dempsey's face was a mile long and I wondered what it was all about. Perhaps he was thinking of his end of the purse that was going on the good thing.

"GOOD THING" FAILS

"When does that snail of yours start?" I asked Jack.

"Ike, my good fellow, the snail just started, and, true to snail form, ran a deep last. We're sunk," was the reply.

"You mean to tell me that it ran in this race just finished?"

"I mean just that. The good thing finished last, and we're headed for the river. Lucky thing for us, though, Doc bought our railroad tickets back to New York this morning."

"What horse was it?"

"The favorite, as it turned out. It opened at 10 to 1 and by the time Doc got our money down it was the favorite," said Dempsey.

"Well, I'm sorry to say that I wasn't with you boys on the good thing. I just dropped in here to get it and find that the races are over. If there is anything I can do in the way of financial aid, I'll be around here tomorrow to gather in $400," I told Dempsey.

"That's a lot of money, Ike, and maybe old Doc will wish to hobnob with you tomorrow. I know I'm going to be your best little pal until we get out of town," said Dempsey with a grin.

TITLE BOUT LOOMS

Dominick Tortorich, who had promoted the fight between Dempsey and Morris, was hot after a title bout between Dempsey and Willard. Lands, New Orleans, hadn't had a heavyweight championship since the night Jim Corbett belted old John L. Sullivan all over the place, and the time, according to Dominick, certainly was ripe.

He asked me my opinion about guaranteeing Willard.

"I know he will want a lot of money," said Tortorich. "He's the fellow I'll have to attract. If I can sign the champion, the rest will be easy, because Dempsey, Fulton or even Harry Wills would jump out of their skins to get the chance if they really intended to go places.

"I'm willing to guarantee Willard $100,000 for his end," said Tortorich.

"Don't be a sucker. Offer him $75,000 and then go up if you have to. He'll take $75,000. He's never heard of such money in his life and I happen to know that he'd break his arm getting to a fountain pen to sign on the dotted line. Try him with $75,000."

STEAMING UP TEX

I came back to New York with the party. Kearns insisted that he had the world champion right in his lap. The only thing that stood between Dempsey and the title was big Willard, and he'd lick him in a round or two if ever they met. All of this Kearns sang into my ear constantly and I began to believe it. Indeed, Dempsey looked mighty good in the two fights I had seen. No mistaking his action. It was perfect and he loved to fight.

Once in New York, I hunted up Rickard. He'd get an earful now for fair. I was sold on Dempsey and wanted to let off steam.

Tex had moved from the Waldorf Astoria to the Biltmore. We talked over the possibility of putting on a Willard and Dempsey fight.

"You'd better grab it now, Tex. This fellow Tortorich is all het up over the idea of getting it and he has sent Willard an offer," I warned Tex.

"Well, I don't care what you say. It's a bum time to try to put it on. This war business will kill it as dead as a doornail."

"That doesn't make any difference in New Orleans. Those fellows haven't heard of the war yet, and they're all set to get it. If you don't want Dominick Tortorich grabbing your fire, you'd better get busy."

"All right. You see Dempsey and Kearns. Find out if they'll fight and what they want. Wire Willard to meet me at the Blackstone in Chicago. I'll jump right out."

DEMPSEY DELIGHTED

The wheels were moving. Tex Rickard was on the scent again. He was as keen as an Indian on the warpath.

I met Kearns and Dempsey in Newark. They were showing there in burlesque. Kearns said there would be no trouble about signing.

"Rickard will give you $25,000 for your end—not a cent more," I said.

Dempsey and I shook hands on my prediction. I never knew a youngster to be so happy. He danced and almost knocked Doc Kearns through a painted lagoon that was acting as a back drop on the stage.

W. & J. LOSES TO TEMPLE IN PHILLY

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Held scoreless from the field in the first half, during which it was outscored 14 to 5, City College, of New York, staged a sensational rally in the second period of its game with the University of Pittsburgh to nose out the Panthers, 18 to 16, here last night.

A small crowd watched the Lavenders top the Panthers. The only other teams to beat Pitt this winter were Indiana, Creighton and Western Reserve in the Mid-West. For City College it was the tenth win in 14 games this season.

City College's victory had a touch of the dramatic to it, for Nat Holman, Lavender coach, was absent from the bench during the first half and most of the second period. He came in with his team trailing at 16-11. He made one substitution and, as if inspired by their mentor's presence, the players began to speed up their play and the magnificent rally which eventually gave them their two-point win resulted.

Pitt outplayed City College by so wide a margin in the first half that the Panthers seemed to have the game all sewed up. But C. C. N. Y. reversed things in the second half and then Pitt trailed with the Lavender setting the pace. The lineup:

C. C. of N. Y.—18.		Pitt.—16.
Trupin	F	W. Kowalis
Dan Isaacs	F	M. Cohen
De Phillips	C	Albright
Spahn	G	Smith
Robinowitz	G	Baker

Substitutes—S. Kowalis, Lawrey, Artzer, Heft, Wishnewitz. Field goals—Cohen, Lawry, Smith 3, Artzer 3, Trupin, Davidoff, De Phillips 3, Wishnewitz. Foul goals—Pitt, 2. C. C. of N. Y., 8. Referee—Murray.

PRESIDENTS BOW

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Temple University encountered meager resistance last night as Washington and Jefferson fell the twelfth straight victim of the Owl sharpshooters, 39-27. The score at half-time was Temple 20, W. & J. 12. The lineup:

Temple—39.		Wash. Jeff.—27.
Joy	F	Joy
Reynolds	F	Hamilton
Gudd	C	Martin
O'Brien	G	McNeil
Beron	G	Johnson

Substitutes—W. & J.: Schaffner. Field goals—Fitch 3, Gudd 6, O'Brien 2, Beron 3, Joy 2, Hamilton 3, Martin, Johnson 5. Fouls—Temple 11, W. & J. 5. Referees—Kelly and Reegan.

JOE DUNDEE VICTOR

THRIFTY HABITS HELD OUT AS REAL CURE

Thought of Increasing Public Funds Outlay Held Prosperity Check

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The fiery Philip Snowden, Socialist chancellor of the exchequer in Great Britain, has emerged as one of the outstanding personalities of our times.

His latest achievement, paradoxically enough, since he belongs to a party of reform, is to urge a temporary moratorium against otherwise desirable schemes which might entail an increase in governmental expenditures, and hence in taxes on industry.

Mr. Rukeyser.

It pithy words, Mr. Snowden, Socialist leader, articulates the cry which has been groping for expression in the hearts of American business leaders.

Snowden insisted:

"Schemes involving heavy expenditures, however desirable, will have to wait until prosperity returns."

In chatting with me about this subject, the president of a leading American corporation observed that he thought prosperity had been retarded by the thought that it could be restored through increasing expenditures of public funds. This executive said that the real cure lies in the cultivation of habits of thrift and industry, rather than pursuing the policy of borrowing and spending.

There is much sense in Snowden's position, but we should not run into the fallacy of seeking to conduct our affairs on the basis of a single aphorism.

In our own country we could virtually avert the threatened Treasury deficit by suspending sinking fund payments on the war debts until normal business had been restored. A flexible policy of sinking fund payments, which would help to stabilize the business cycle.

Dollar Diversification Important Factor

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE PURPOSE OF all fixed investment trusts is to give the individual investor wide diversification of his holdings. If the trust does not attain this purpose it is not justifying its existence and the investor is wasting the extra charge he is paying for the organization and operation of the trust.

While all fixed trusts achieve a measure of diversification, this goal is more nearly reached in some than in others. There are many kinds of diversification and students of investment theory are not altogether in agreement about the relative importance of each. This makes it impossible to make any definite formula for perfect diversification, but the angles of the problem can be discussed in general terms so that the individual investor can decide for himself what combination of diversification features he considers most desirable.

Types of Diversification

THE MERE FACT that an investment fund is spread over 20, 30 or 40 companies does not give complete diversification. It gives diversification of management but, if all those companies should happen to be automobile manufacturers, they would be subject to the same general conditions, would all be prosperous at the same time or all lose money at the same time. Both management and fixed trusts specializing in single industries have been formed, but their appeal is confined to the individual who wishes to gamble on the belief that a particular industry is about to have a period of phenomenal growth.

This establishes the fact that the ideal fixed trust should have diversification by industries. Part of the funds should be allocated to rails, part to utilities and part to industrials. The exact divisions to be made between these groups is a matter of opinion upon which experts are not likely to agree. Subdivisions of these general groups should also be made. Under the industrials it might be desirable to work out a division between steels, motors, oils and other classifications. It might be found desirable to omit a particular group because of its uncertain prospects. But particular emphasis should not be given to any special group.

Geography to Be Considered

In efforts to spread funds as widely as possible, the plan would be defeated if all the companies were located in a single district even though a wide range of industries might be covered. A crop failure or some other condition might cast a blight on the rails, utilities and distribution organizations of a single section of the country. To guard against this, holdings should not be confined to any particular territory even though the companies of a single district may have outstanding records.

The last phase to be considered is dollar diversification. While it would not be practical to put exactly the same amount of cash in each company selected for the portfolio it would be a desirable goal to come as near to an even distribution between companies as possible. The purchase of the same number of shares in each company does not achieve this end. If the stock of one company sells for $50 a share, and that of another for $200 a share, it will be necessary to purchase four times as many shares of the first as of the second in order to achieve dollar diversification.

Dollar Diversification Lost

The portfolios of some fixed trusts contain the same number of shares of each of the specified companies. While this simplifies accounting for the trustee, it causes wide variations between the investments in individual companies. With a large number of stocks, a certain latitude can be allowed in this respect without seriously endangering proper diversification, but some of the fixed trusts appear to have put too much money in a few stocks, merely to simplify accounting by keeping the number of shares in each company equal.

CRUDE OUTPUT OFF IN 1930

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Final figures of crude oil production will show approximately 898,000,000 barrels for 1930, a decline of 109,000,000 barrels, or about 11 per cent from 1929 output, the Bureau of Mines reports, in a preliminary survey.

Stocks of crude petroleum December 31, 1930, were given as 512,797,000 barrels, a decline of 20,000,000 barrels from the previous year's figure, nearly all of which occurred in the area east of California. The 1930 drop in stocks was the first since 1926.

TULSA, Feb. 17.—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States for the week ended February 14 amounted to 2,130,258 barrels, an increase of 22,594 barrels over the previous week, according to Oil and Gas Journal.

NOTES FROM DIRECTORS' REPORT

In a year in which all classes of business have encountered many difficulties, the Company has made gratifying progress. New policies paid for show an increase of $51,227,652.32, both the ordinary and group departments making substantial gains.

Total assurances in force show an increase of $462,464,542.58. This gain represents a very high rate of persistency, indicating the high value placed by our policyholders on their contracts with the Company in a period of extreme financial pressure.

The total payments to policyholders and beneficiaries since organization . . . equal the total assurances in force in the Company's fiftieth year (ten years ago).

In a year of almost unprecedented business depression the outstanding quality of the investments has been strikingly shown. The actual cash dividends received on the total common stocks held by the Company were $969,103.84 in excess of the dividends payable on those identical shares in 1929. : : : Even on the basis of the low prices at the close of the year our common stock holdings show a substantial excess of market value over cost.

Profits to policyholders entitled to participate during the ensuing year will be again allotted on the scale at present in operation.

Many a successful man has spent his life without learning the art of living. In the process of managing a business and his own personal affairs, he has overlooked the importance of recreation, and, in many cases, has no interests outside of his business. Much of the time of a successful man is taken up with the routine of handling the securities in which he has invested his funds. The Mellon National Bank is equipped to accept such securities for permanent safe keeping, collect dividends, interest and principal when due or called for redemption, furnish sound advice for the reinvestment of funds so collected, and relieve the owner of many burdensome and time-consuming details. The fee for this service is surprisingly small.

STOCK MARKET TAKES TURN DOWNWARD

List Fluctuates Widely Before Heading Lower Definitely—Sales Heavy

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.) Despite a smoke screen of bullish activity in the fast-moving issues, the stock market encountered substantial liquidation today, and after mid-day the trend turned unmistakably downward.

The market fluctuated widely during the morning, and several issues were pushed up 4 to 7 points, but the so-called pivotal shares were heavily sold a point or two above yesterday's final levels and by noon had slid off to show losses of a point or two. In the meantime the Bond Market crept lower under moderate selling pressure as bankers interpreted the progress of the soldier bonus compromise measure as foreshadowing a large volume of government financing.

The rebound about of the list resulted in a heavy turnover, but it took higher prices to bring out any large volume of selling. Offerings lightened when prices dipped under yesterday's final quotations. The selling appeared to be a combination of profit taking bear selling and liquidation which had been deferred for better prices.

In conservative quarters, the highly professional character of the recent advance has been regarded with some disfavor. Bullish activity has been most conspicuous in issues most easily moved in several cases seemingly irrespective of earnings propects of the corporations represented. Furthermore there has been a feeling that the quiet barksliding of late last week had been insufficient to entrench the market at a higher level, and that the bull campaign was getting out of hand.

Nevertheless, brokerage house opinion remained mildly optimistic in the main anticipating some extension of the rally after a technical reaction. While business reports do not provide any conclusive proof that March and April will bring the expected business upturn, sentiment among business executives has improved markedly with the growing conviction that the depression has at least touched rock bottom. A business survey just finished for the private information of the directors of a large investment company indicates this improved sentiment as one of the most marked developments.

Credit conditions maintained the firmer tendency which appeared at the start of the week. Call money was unavailable under the official rate of 1½ per cent. The slack in the money market appeared to have been partly taken up by payment for the latest issue of Treasury bills, and regular mid-month settlements.

New York Awards Short-Term Loan

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Comptroller Berry of the City of New York has arranged a short-term loan of $15,000,000 at 1⅞ per cent. Award was made in equal amounts to J. P. Morgan & Co., Chase National Bank and National City Bank.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Despite upturns in Liverpool quotations, grains here averaged lower early today. Additional moisture in domestic winter wheat territory tended further to dispel drought fears, and acted as more than a counterbalance for reports of decreasing European wheat stocks and reduction of estimates of the Argentine exportable surplus. Opening ⅜ cents off to ⅞ to ¼ up, wheat later scored slight general gains, but soon sagged. Corn started at ⅛ decline to ¼ advance, and afterward rose all around but then receded.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 10 to 14 points. May contracts sold up to 11.25, or even with the previous high point of the movement, while October advanced to 11.79, making a new high for the present upturn. The market was within 3 or 4 points of these figures at the end of the first half hour.

Reports that the final estimate of the Indian crop placed the yield at 4,856,000 bales may have been partly responsible for the firmness of Liverpool and the market here held very steady late in the morning with a fair volume of business. May sold up to 11.27c and October to 11.97c, or about 13 to 15 points net higher. Prices were within a point or two of the best at midday.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 17.—Cotton—Spot quiet; prices barely steady; American strict good middling 6.66, good middling 6.51, strict middling 6.06, middling 5.96, strict low middling 5.76, low middling 5.46, strict good ordinary 4.91, good ordinary 4.51. Sales 4,000 bales, including 2,600 American. Receipts 6,000, American 1,300. Futures closed firm. March 5.88, May 5.98, July 6.08, October 6.20, December 6.29, January 6.31.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—A succession of rallies and declines kept the Curb Market's course irregular today. Operations for the advance in the early dealings brought a sprinkling of new highs, but the gains served as a cover for rather extensive profit-taking and the list lost its buoyancy.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Forbes

Yes, Ours Is a Business Man's Civilization

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

WHETHER CIVILIZATION in America advances or recedes will depend chiefly on our business men.

They have become the most potent, the most powerful, the most determining class. Their influence on the lives, on the wellbeing, of the people is now greater than that of our statesmen and politicians, our preachers, our poets, our scholars or any other members of the intelligentsia.

WILL H. HAYS, guide, philosopher and friend of that amazing modern industry which now enters so vitally into the daily life of this and other nations, brought up this subject while chatting the other day. It was evident that he had given the matter much thought. When I suggested that he could say something which would interest readers of this column, he dug up the following, which he evolved some time ago.

"This has been called a business man's civilization. The man who first used that phrase did not mean to confer a compliment. He had some vague notion that, because America has taken advantage of its natural resources and translated them into comforts, there is something fundamentally wrong with our lives. He had some vague idea that because America has become a dominant factor in the world's trade, we have turned our backs on those things which we all agree give men lasting satisfaction. He wanted us to believe that because a man has money in the bank, sends his children to good schools, gives them food to eat, and works an hour overtime to get a new account, he is a suspicious character.

"Never was there a falser philosophy, never was there a sneer more akin to a compliment.

"THE FOUNDERS of this republic were all business men. Because they were business men, and not doctrinnaires unaccustomed to subjecting their theories to the test of reality, they established that form of government best adopted of all ever established to meet the practical needs of men in the practical world of affairs.

"George Washington was the richest man in the colonies—planter, real estate dealer, engineer—and his first thought after his retirement from the presidency was the economic development of the West. The first bill signed by him as President was one which stated in its preamble that its aim was the development of manufactures and the expansion of commerce.

"Alexander Hamilton was a great business man—one who in this day would be the most sought-after corporation counsel in New York City. Benjamin Franklin was a business man whose maxims have as profoundly affected succeeding generations of Americans as have his political doctrines. Thomas Jefferson's construction of the national road and his purchase of the Louisiana Territory—the greatest real estate bargain in history — illustrate that he was far more than a political doctrinnaire.

"OUR WHOLE American civilization stands as a monument to business enterprises, and the development of this continent during the last century—a miracle of progress without example in history—has been a triumph of commercial enterprise. Let the cynic decry business enterprise. Let him assail commercial development. He can afford to do so because it does not necessitate his giving up the benefits to humanity which flow from it.

"We measure our progress in America not by the sum of our possessions, but by the number of those who are able to enjoy them, by the number of our little insurance policies, our savings bank accounts, our homes owned by those who live in them, our number of owners of motor cars and radios, our attendance at places of amusement, our numbers of owners of corporation securities which make millions partners.

"IT IS THE BUSINESS man in the congregation who supports the church; and there are a quarter-of-a-million churches open in this country. Millions of dollars annually go to universities and to the actual support of young people in our schools. Thirty years ago less than 6 per cent of the children between 14 and 17 years of age were in high schools. Today, when we are richer, more than 40 per cent of those children are enrolled in schools.

"It was the business man, working hand in hand with the scientist, who took the phonograph into the smallest home and gave happiness to thousands. It was the business man and the scientist who brought the motion picture within the reach of all.

Mary Lou Anxious for Job When Relatives Leave

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Mary Lou Thurston, beautiful orphan girl of the "home" type, lives with her aunt and uncle, Clara and Howard Sanderson. The former is private secretary to a publisher and the latter an engineer. Mary Lou looks after Billy, their small son. Larry Mitchell, young newspaper reporter, is Mary Lou's pal. Mary Lou is happy, but vitally restless. Larry appears on the scene, rescues Billy from peril in traffic, makes a date with Mary Lou for the next day and dashes off in his pursuit of news. Sanderson gets a chance to go to the Orient on a big engineering project and take his wife as secretary of the expedition. What Mary Lou will do is a problem and she is to stay temporarily with Grandma Jennings, Clara's mother. Larry is eager to marry Mary Lou and take care of her, but Mary Lou refuses his offer. The Sandersons and Mary Lou go to Grandma Jennings' home for dinner and to make arrangements for the journey.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IV.

After dinner—which Adelaide enjoyed heartily, not coming to the table, however, but served on an ample tray—the Sandersons and Mary Lou stayed for another hour or so, sitting sedately in the living room, a hodge-podge of good and bad furniture, of mixed periods, after the dishes were washed and dried. And presently they left for their train, walking to the station for the good of their health, after so lavish a meal. Billy, who had been told merely that his mother and father had to go away for a time and that he would soon come to stay with Gram, Aunt Adelaide and the cat, was perfectly happy.

Clara was happy for him that he "took it that way," as she said, but mother-like she naturally could not forbear a little pang of jealousy that her boy seemed so indifferent to her departure. "Not," she added hastily, "that I want him to grieve."

"He's very little," Mary Lou excused him, "and he doesn't realize. I expect that after you do go, he'll go through some bad times and be awfully homesick for you, Clara." She refrained from adding what she further believed, knowing Billy, which was that he would soon forget, soon adapt himself. Children were like that, she thought, and even some adults. Not all grownups, however, possessed such a happy faculty, she pondered heavily.

Furnishings Sold

The rest of the remaining time flew, or so it seemed to Mary Lou. The house was cleaned, things were stored, some were sold to friends and neighbors. Mary Lou and Billy raced along Shore Road one Saturday afternoon while the Sandersons went shopping for clothing suitable to the tropics. Billy serene and unconscious. Mary Lou with an increasingly sore heart. And presently the day had come for Clara and Howard to bid their little boy goodby and to take him out to Oakdale. Mary Lou stayed home that day, wandering about the empty house, a house which seemed the ghost of itself.

She would spend the night of the Sandersons' departure next door, with a friendly neighbor, for tomorrow morning the last piece of furniture, beds, dressers and a chair or two would be gone.

Relatives Leave

Larry came over that evening, before the Sandersons' return, gazed soberly upon the emptiness, the strapped and locked trunks, the bulging and battered bags, gazed earnestly upon Mary Lou's pallor and "listened," as he said, to her extraordinary silence—a remarkable feat — and then dragged her out to dinner, dusty as she was, her trunk and her little belongings having already been expressed to Oakdale.

"You'll seem so far off," she told him, over coffee. "I'll miss you."

"Not necessary. Oakdale's only an hour or so away. You can't get rid of me as easily as that," he told her gayly, "and I'm trailing that job for you, Mary Lou. Trust your Uncle Larry!"

"Find me a job as companion," Mary Lou told him, trying to laugh, "you know—genteel and quiet! That's me! I can read aloud, Larry, and I think I can fetch footstools and carry trays and pull down window shades, for I've had quite a course of Aunt Adelaide, you know."

Larry had never met that plump and ailing lady, but Mary Lou had given him a full description. He laughed and then sobered abruptly.

"Joking aside," said Larry, "if we could get you a job like that it would be great."

"Cheer up," ordered Larry, fiercely, "or I'll make you marry me and then, woman, you'll have your hands full!"

Clara and Howard returned from Oakdale late that evening and Clara's eyes were red while her tall, lean husband was much subdued. The next morning, early, Mary Lou went with them to the boat. Larry managed to be there and others of their friends, including several past business associates. They were sailing by way of England where they were to join the rest of the party which was going out to India on the construction work.

The pier was exciting and Mary Lou was smitten with nostalgia, as always, for far places and strange sights, for the feel of a ship's deck under her eager feet, for the sound of the waves, for the vast expanse of changing color and perpetual motion which is the sea. But, presently, it was all over, and the ship had pulled slowly away and there was Clara, waving frantically, with Howard beside her, and Mary Lou, despite the presence of Larry beside her—and he was holding her hand tightly, a fact of which she was unconscious—despite the hundreds of strangers there, milling about, waving, calling farewells, felt very much alone, very forlorn, as if she were the only person left in an altered and suddenly inimical world.

Larry took her to a hasty luncheon, for he had to get back to the office, and tried to cheer her up over a lavish outlay of broiled chicken, but her appetite had failed her and she was glad, somehow, to go back, by subway, to the empty echoing house, there to wait for the last moving van, to turn the key in the lock and to surrender it to the agent of the owner. By the time this was all done, it was evening, and she went next door to the kindly woman who had offered to take her in and, refusing supper, went straight to bed in that terribly strange room.

Health and youth and tears, shed quietly into a pillow, soon plunged her fathoms deep into sleep, and when she woke to streaming morning sunlight, somehow things didn't seem as bad. It was over, she had no more home, she might as well face it. Anyway, she'd see Billy, that endearing rascal, today; she could make herself useful to Grandma Jennings and she would try and listen with what patience she could muster to the never-ending tale of Aunt Adelaide's aches and pains. And, too, Larry would come out to see her, while surely, surely adventure waited, just around this particularly difficult corner!

Youth is elastic and Mary Lou had enough vitality for 10 girls. She ate enough breakfast for two, anyway, being very hungry, to her great astonishment, and, after bidding Mrs. Davis goodby, set out for the station and Oakdale with a small handbag and a large stock of regained optimism.

The first few days passed off quietly enough. There was some special canning to be done, Aunt Adelaide had taken to her bed for one of her periodical rest cures, despite the fact that for years she had never done anything save rest, while Billy had to be adjusted to the new school and the new mode of living. And Mary Lou had her hands full, writing out a diet list for the little boy and pinning it up in the kitchen, certain as she was that Grandmother Jennings would feed him pickles on the sly if not severely discouraged.

Anxious for Job

She walked a lot when she was free and let the cold, frosty November wind blow some of the cobwebs from her brain. And on the first Saturday she went to town for lunch and a motion picture with Larry and also, recklessly, from her small store, bought herself a new hat. "There's nothing as good for the blues," said Mary Lou, "as a new hat, even when you can't afford it! Especially when you can't afford it!"

"But," she told Larry, "I'll have to have that job soon. I can pay a little—not much—to Gram; she doesn't want to take that, bless her. But Adelaide's a big expense. Larry, I wish you could see that woman eat! It is amazing! And I can't trespass long on their hospitality. I'd like to get settled, somewhere, if the space is only two by four. I haven't unpacked in Oakdale; there isn't room even for the few things I have: my books and pictures, the possessions I've always had with me at Clara's and love so much and miss so much. I—I just must get settled. Of course I can stay at Gram's or get a room in the village—which would be cheaper than living in New York and I'd be near Billy."

Larry Sees Chance

"I am fairly intelligent after all. Clara asked her old employer—Mr. Fiske—if I couldn't get in the publishing house as a reader or something. But there wasn't an opening, then. Still, if you came across something like that, Larry, it would be wonderful. Nothing with typing and such. Not until I've had a chance to go to night school and learn, for that's what I intend to do, you see, as soon as I find some sort of paying position. But I have enough sense to read manuscripts, I hope, and to know what is good and what is bad and what is impossible. Larry, how about my being a reporter?" she asked, on a sudden inspiration, her blue eyes shining.

"Oh, God forbid!" replied Larry devoutly. "Hold everything, girl, and don't give up the ship! Uncle Larry will provide."

Three days later, in the middle of the afternoon, when he was supposed to be somewhere else, Larry arrived in Oakdale and found Mary Lou doing her simple washing in the lean-to laundry. He dragged her from her tubs, with her hands covered with soap, and waved a newspaper in her face.

"A job," cried Larry, "and it looks like a corker. Companion to some rich invalid or other and oodles of salary and a swell residence. Cease your laundering, my lass, and listen to me! For tomorrow you must apply and be quick about it."

He dragged her, still soapy, out of the laundry and into the living room. They were quite alone, as Mrs. Jennings was upstairs with Adelaide, and Billy was playing next door.

DAILY TRUE STORY—The Operator

"You are two minutes late," Mrs. Kellogg said, getting up to turn the switchboard over to Connie.

"You better keep an eye on Connie," she said, sourly. "She's getting so thick with Ishman that he doesn't dare fire her—you know what that means."

"Yeah?" said Jack, but after Mrs. Kellogg had gone out he worried a whole lot.

Jack Hanlon had an idea he owned Connie. He had an idea that they were sort of unofficially engaged and that some day when he got good and ready he would marry her. Meanwhile he felt that she had no right to so much as smile at any other man.

Hanlon Gets Jealous

When Jack went out for his dinner hour he strolled around to the Gatehurst Apartments and went in the side entrance where he could watch the switch-board and see Connie. Perhaps Mr. Ishman would be hanging over her. He hoped so, for then he would go up and tell Connie where she got off. It never occurred to Jack that Connie wouldn't obey his slightest wish. He felt that she was madly and eternally in love with him.

Mr. Ishman wasn't there.

But just then Mr. Peter Walling came in. Mr. Walling had his bachelor quarters in one of the three penthouses atop the building. He was young, good-looking and mild-mannered.

"Hello, there," he said to Connie.

"Hello."

Jack Hanlon became instantly jealous, not that the mere word "hello" meant anything. It was the way Mr. Walling smiled at her and the way her blue eyes twinkled at him and the way her little red mouth quirked up into a pixie-like smile.

"Trouble ahead?" Mr. Walling asked.

"Plenty this afternoon. She called and she had her mother with her. She wouldn't believe that you were out."

"And then?"

"She went up. When she came back she asked when you would return, so I said, 'Was he really out?'"

Mr. Walling laughed.

"Gee, she got sore. She asked when you would be in and I told her you would be gone some days."

"Oh, but it wasn't exactly a fib, Mr. Walling. You will be gone some days. Don't you see? Some days you are here and some days you are gone."

"I don't know how I could get along without you, Connie," Mr. Walling said.

Connie blushed and wished she had the courage to hint that he didn't have to get along without her.

"Well, I am out tonight to everyone, until midnight. I expect a caller then, you know."

"I'll see to that," Connie promised.

Mr. Walling went up in his private elevator and Jack sauntered over to the switchboard.

"'Lo, Jack," Connie said.

"Kind of friendly with that Walling guy, aren't you?" he asked severely.

"Sure—friendly with everyone, Jack—even you."

"Don't stall, you know how we stand. And how about this guy Ishman? What's he to you?"

"Good as engaged? I'm better than engaged, Jack. I'm not answerable to anyone except myself."

"I might have, and as for a ring—I got plenty."

Falls in Love

"Who gives you rings—and why?" Jack demanded.

"Everyone, because they want me to connect them with someone."

"Don't be sore, Jack. Why can't we be friends?"

"I'll be around with a ring, and perhaps that will help you to remember that you belong to me and to cut out flirting with every guy you see."

She hated to have Jack Hanlon act like that. They'd been good friends since they were kids. Her aunt and his mother were great cronies, and for some years she had heard little at home except talk about the time when she would marry Jack and settle down.

And Connie had expected this to happen until she got the place as 6-to-12 switchboard girl at the Gatehurst Apartments and became acquainted with Peter Walling. Only Connie was sensible. She realized that she was just a little switchboard girl and Peter Walling was—Mr. Peter Stuyvesant Walling and he had all sorts of Junior League girls chasing him and the fond and hopeful mammas of many debutantes were after him.

Vara Loring was a dashing widow, very dashing indeed. Vara might be 20, as she claimed, and Connie knew that she was, with another decade tucked on. Vara was after Peter tooth and nail. She pestered the life out of him. She even got into his apartment on various excuses that fooled his Jap boy, and waited for him.

This particular night Bart Mellon telephoned and Connie got it. She had been introduced to him. He was Peter's best chum.

"Please tell Peter that I can't make the midnight appointment—father's coming in on the midnight," he said.

Before she could telephone up to Peter the Widow Loring telephoned.

"Tell Peter I will be up to see him at 12:15," she ordered.

"Sorry, he has a midnight appointment, Mrs. Loring," Connie answered.

Connie Consents

"You little liar. I just got on a crossed wire and heard that appointment broken — connect me with Peter!"

Usually the way the Jap boy talked gave Connie a laugh, but this time she was provoked. She called Oscar, the emergency elevator, switchboard, porter and doorman boy, and put him on and she didn't see either Jack Hanlon or the widow Loring come in. She went up in the private elevator and they saw her go.

Oscar was made to telephone up two messages, that Mrs. Loring was coming up and also a Mr. Hanlon—the latter to make plenty of trouble if Peter didn't keep away from Connie.

The Jap boy repeated the message.

"Connie, you dear," Peter said, getting into his coat, "we can sneak over to Betty's pent house—that's my sister, there's a place where I short cut down to her terrace. Are you game?"

"Sure," Connie agreed.

"What I tell 'em?" the Jap boy asked.

"Sister will put you up and we'll be married tomorrow," Peter said, "if you'll have me."

THE BUNGLE FAMILY

Owner vs. Owner

By Tuthill

ROUGHLY DIVIDING A $10,000 BILL FOUND IN AN OLD VALISE INTENSIFIED THE PROBLEM OF OWNERSHIP AS EVERYBODY TRIED TO BE PATIENT WHILE LOUDLY INSISTING THAT THERE WAS NO REASON FOR DISAGREEING.
REALLY DARLING, IT'S SO UTTERLY SIMPLE. YOU'VE ADMITTED THAT NIMROD PICKED THE BILL OUT OF THE VALISE, HAVEN'T YOU?
YES DEAR, AND YOU'VE ADMITTED THAT GEORGE SAW THE BILL FIRST, HAVEN'T YOU?
LISTEN NIMROD, DON'T THINK I BLAME YOU SIMPLY BECAUSE YOU CAN'T SEE THIS THING CLEARLY. YOU MEAN WELL BUT YOU'RE A VERY SLOW THINKER, AND-WAIT, LET ME FINISH! AND PROVE-
GEORGE, ONCE MORE LET ME ASK YOU THE VERY SAME QUESTION YOU ASKED ME WHEN I WANTED TO KNOW HOW YOU FIGURED I WAS WRONG. HERE'S THE QUESTION: DOES OR DOES NOT TWO AND TWO MAKE FOUR? ANSWER, YES OR NO!
BUT DARLING, NIMROD OPENED THE VALISE.
AFTER BORROWING IT FROM GEORGE, HONEY.
LISTEN NIMROD. LET'S GET DOWN TO FUNDAMENTALS. THE MONEY WAS IN THE VALISE. FINE! WHERE DID YOU GET THE VALISE? FROM WHO?
WELL, AND WHERE DID YOU GET IT? WHERE? ANSWER THAT!
IT SEEMS SO SILLY DARLING, TO ARGUE SO LONG ABOUT SUCH A SIMPLE PROBLEM.
THAT DEAR, IS EXACTLY WHAT I SAID RIGHT AT THE START.
YOU ADMIT THE VALISE WAS FOUND IN MY CAR. YOU ADMIT THE CAR BELONGS TO ME!
IT WAS FOUND IN YOUR CAR AFTER MY ACCIDENT. YOU ADMIT THE ACCIDENT WAS MINE, DON'T YOU? WAIT, ANSWER YES OR NO!

Demand for Open Inquiry

Councilman Garland's Motion Reflects Public Feeling On the Charges Against Succop.

Since Council had asked Mayor Kline to investigate the charge that Director Succop of the Department of Supplies showed improper favoritism in awarding contracts, it is perhaps questionable if it should launch an investigation of its own before it hears from the Mayor. That slight excuse may be offered for the action of the Council yesterday in voting down Councilman Garland's motion calling for an open public inquiry into the charges.

Councilman Anderson used strong words in supporting the motion, but they were no stronger than what the people generally are saying about the scandal.

The public suspicious of the Mayor's investigation because it was conducted secretly, and because the Mayor himself shares responsibility for the irregularities laid to Succop, has felt that Council should have undertaken the inquisition itself. Councilman Garland's motion reflected that feeling.

While punctilious courtesy makes it necessary, perhaps, to await the Mayor's report before acting, Council will be branded as pusillanimous if it leaves everything to Kline in this matter. It is Council's duty to supervise the administration of the municipal government. It will be neglectful of its duty if it continues to ignore the Department of Supplies scandal.

Pointed Questions

Straightforward Answers to Gov. Pinchot's Utilities Queries Will Prove Illuminating.

Gov. Pinchot has adopted a shrewd policy in reference to the Senate investigation of the public utilities.

If, as he believes, the investigating committee plans to "white-wash" the utilities and the Public Service Commission, he has made the task, by his pointed questions, just a little more awkward than it would otherwise have been.

The query in regard to Pittsburgh's 25-cent bus fare is in itself sufficient to clarify the utilities situation. If the Senators make an honest inquiry into the reasons why Pittsburghers must pay a quarter for a ride that costs only 10 or 15 cents elsewhere, they will find that the Public Service Commission has been readier to protect the corporations than to protect the people.

Straightforward answers, if they can be obtained, to Gov. Pinchot's 11 questions will prove that some of the utilities companies, through the subservience of the Public Service Commission, are falling far short of their duty to provide good service at fair rates.

Another New Terminal

Assurance That Trunk Line Project Is Not Nullified by Sale of P. & W. Va. Bridge Is Gratifying.

The satisfaction with which the sale of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad bridge and tunnel to the county was greeted was tempered somewhat by the thought that it killed the plan for another trunk line through Pittsburgh.

Those who remembered the ambitious project of Joseph Ramsey, who built the tunnel and bridge, were no doubt saddened just a little by the feeling that his dream was to come to naught. He had planned to link the Pittsburgh and West Virginia (then the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal) with the Western Maryland, Wheeling and Lake Erie, Wabash and other Gould lines into a transcontinental system.

It is gratifying, therefore, to learn that the dream may yet be realized. An executive of the P. & W. Va. assures the public that the plan for the incorporation of the road into a fifth trunk line system has not been affected by the sale of the tunnel, and that the company will build a new terminal at a cost of $1,000,000 near West Liberty avenue.

Let us hope that Joseph Ramsey's other dream of a new air line railroad across Pennsylvania, now being promoted by L. F. Loree, will also be realized.

Disgusting!

Requests to See Irene Schroeder Executed Are Unworthy of Civilized People.

Rockview Penitentiary officials are receiving many requests for permission to witness the execution of Irene Schroeder, who, unless the Pardon Board intervenes, will die in the electric chair next week for killing a policeman.

Among the hundreds of applicants (Heaven save the mark!) is a minister, who says he thinks it would be educational to see the woman electrocuted.

It would be regrettable if there were such eagerness to witness the execution of a man. That so many desire to see the agony of a woman and a mother is repulsive—unworthy of civilized people.

Fortunately the law does not permit the granting of the requests.

A Hard Fight

What a fight she made to get out of the clutches of the dope slavery, poor, pretty, little Alma Rubens with the warm heart and the light laugh, and the great liquid melting eyes, that won for her so quickly a favored place in the sun.

Secrecy—fear of detection, trembling distrust, of everyone who looked at her a second too long, and always at every turn someone offering her the dope, again.

Once a federal narcotic agent, once a doctor who pretended to help her, to a "cure," once a poor fellow slave of the drug—again and again—in the theater, in the hotels, in the street, in gay restaurants, on board a de luxe ocean liner, in the Pullman cars of transcontinental trains.

Behind the drawn curtain of the cubicle of the beauty shop, in the dull heat of the Turkish bath—always and all ways there was dope grinning at her like a lost soul, trying to drag her down to perdition.

A dozen times she thought she had won the fight and a dozen times she was dragged down into the abyss again.

Read that story of the fight of Alma Rubens for decent health, and clean sanity, and call those who make a determined fight against the drug ring—fanatics—if you dare.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The He-Man Code

We all know just what things a he-man scorns as womanish or effeminate and what things he regards as properly masculine; but only Mr. Einstein or Mr. Riley could figure out WHY.

Before the men who faced the cannon and flew the army planes adopted it, the wrist-watch was a byword and a hissing and its male wearer an object of derision among his kind. Just why a watch worn at the end of a fancy chain strung across the waistcoat should be more manly than a watch strapped around the wrist, was never quite apparent. It was the IDEA of the thing!

* * *

By the same token, it is effeminate for a man to have his hair marcelled or perfume his handkerchief—put perfectly in order for him to wear a pretty posey in his button hole and fancy clocks on his socks.

* * *

He brags of how he can clean and cook a fish or rustle bacon and eggs on a fishing trip—but blushes if he is caught getting the breakfast in a delft blue kitchen.

* * *

It is manly for him to wash the car or the dog—but he'd wither with shame to be caught scrubbing the front piazza steps.

* * *

It is quite all right to be seen leading the wife's silly, little Pekinese on a leash; but he writhes at the thought of pushing the baby carriage through the streets.

* * *

It is quite regular to keep the hands and wrists warm in fur-lined gloves—but slightly weak-minded to keep the ankles warm in cloth spats.

* * *

YOU see how it is!

I am not denying that there are lots and lots of 100 per cent he-men who DO wash the dishes, get the breakfast, and push the perambulator. The world is full of them. But it takes all the bravery and self-sacrifice of a big nature to do these things for the little woman.

* * *

Every age has its He-man's Code. And, no doubt in the stone age the cave-dweller who did not give his wife her daily beating, was considered a softie and a mollycoddle. On the other hand, in the day of Sir Walter Raleigh, the bravest knights and warriors wore puffed sleeves, lace ruffles and long vampish earrings.

* * *

The little boy, who protested that he would rather "go to bed raw" than wear his sister's nightie, had the he-man idea. It's born IN them!

LODGE'S PARADOXICAL MIND

By Archibald Henderson

Sir Oliver Lodge enjoys a reputation in two different fields of study, which are apparently mutually antipathetic. Absorption in one seems almost a denial of the other. He is one of the world's leaders in psychical research and at the same time he is a brilliant thinker and hard-headed scientist. If to many he seems gullible and unscientific in his pre-occupation with subjects associated with nebulous field of psychical research, to his own colleagues in science he is recognized as an able research worker and investigator in the field of physical research.

In the matter of psychical research, Sir Oliver Lodge has been outspoken in his views and resolute in championing scientific investigation of all the strange and puzzling phenomena associated with it.

He has written extensively on the subject—for years has been head of the Society for Psychical Research. In 1920, he delivered a series of lectures in this country, outlining his theories regarding communication between the living and the dead. Few scientists would go so far as he does in the assertion that telepathy or thought-transmission has been demonstrated with scientific thoroughness.

As a scientist, Sir Oliver Lodge is widely recognized as a vigorous thinker, redoubtable dialectician and able writer. He has written many papers and books and delivered many addresses before scientific bodies. His chief contributions have been in the field of physics, in especial of electricity and wireless transmission.

Since the announcement by Einstein of his theory of relativity, and throughout the course of the development of that theory, which tended to make the concept of the ether of very slight importance, Lodge has stood forth as the most vigorous champion of the quintessential role of the ether in all physical phenomena or the medium for the transmission of light, power and energy.

Oliver Joseph Lodge, born at Penkhull, Staffordshire, England, on June 12, 1851, was the son of a potter.

After seven years of work under his father, he was recognized by his parent as of superior intellect and sent to University College, where he became demonstrator in physics. After receiving the bachelor of science and doctor of science degrees, he was elected assistant professor of physics at Liverpool University College. The Rumford medal was awarded him for his researches, and eventually he was promoted to the chair of physics at Liverpool University. He afterwards went to Birmingham University, of which he became principal in 1900.

Sir Oliver Lodge is credited with having invented the first wireless set, and to have made important contributions to the subjects of the ether, electro-magnetism and wireless transmission.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Discouraged?

If you could only do something interesting—

Feel like that? Yes, I know. I've felt like that, too. Desperate feeling. Keep it up long enough and you'll be jibbering, hammering empty air with frantic fists.

Once when I was in the midst of it, I found something that helped. Two verses from an old book—

"In the beginning God created the heaven and earth. And the earth was without form and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters."

God—

In the beginning—

God facing darkness that was without form and void. God moving through darkness without light . . . through chaos without form. God laboring, to make a heaven and earth. And even though he was God, laboring without light. Laboring, waiting, struggling, in the dark. Moving over the troubled waters.

Was He sometimes troubled Himself?

In the end it was finished and He saw that it was very good." But what of those aeons before the night held stars, or the earth rose, green and sweet, above the waters?

Did He sometimes, while He waited, wonder if it would all be worthwhile? Is the small, discouraged cry, in your heart and mine, the echo of His vast, divine discontent as He labored there in the darkness?

I wonder. I know so little about the ways of gods. But this I do know—

There never yet was a great deed that did not know its prelude of darkness and void. There never yet was a great soul that did not serve time under starless skies, by empty waters, in silence and loneliness—wondering what it was all about. Wondering, yet working on—

And this I also know. As surely as there was night, so surely came the morn. As surely as there was void, so surely was something born of that void. And none of that serving was ever lost. It all had meaning . . . in the end. Each slightest thought, each smallest gesture . . . each disjointed, despairing hope, came to its certain harvest.

Discouraged?

Feel that your life isn't getting anywhere? Ready to quit? Don't, my dear. The days are not meaningless. The night does have an end. Go on!

Go on groping, fumbling, building in the dark. Never mind if you can't understand. Never mind if you can't see a purpose or a pattern to it all. There is a purpose. It is making a pattern. For weal or woe, every gesture, every thought, every hope, is weaving into a pattern. Nothing will be lost. Rejoice in that. Be warned by it, too. Presently, where there was only void there will be earth . . . that earth which you are making now, in its beauty or ugliness. Presently, where there was only darkness, there will be stars . . . those stars that you are lighting now, to burn darkly or gloriously.

Go on . . . as even God Himself had to go on—until the dawn.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Antique Shop

We cross the threshold to another world
Where all is dim and strange,
It mocks at haste and change.

The ancient clock that wearily ticks on,
This faded chair and stool,
The andirons that once graced the heart of home,
A mirror's placid pool.

All these have stored-up treasure to recall,
To muse and dream upon;
They hear past laughter and the echoed songs
Of singers long since gone.

By devious ways they come together here
To rest awhile at last,
Of many a secret past.

Text For Today

The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms.—Deuteronomy, xxxiii:27.

(The text for today is suggested by the Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor, Mt. Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church, North Side.)

No More 'Divine Right'

Says the ex-Kaiser's Son.

The ex-Kaiser, until his abdication, believed that he ruled by "divine right." Perhaps he still believes it. He never was backward about proclaiming it, and few Germans had the temerity to dispute it. The doctrine that the Emperor and the nobility were superior to the common people was almost an article of faith throughout the empire.

EX-KAISER WILHELM.

Now, 13 years after the Kaiser fled ignominiously to Holland, his fourth son, Prince August Wilhelm, of Prussia, says in a public speech:

"Nobility of birth is not decisive any longer. Nobility of character, thought and action is the first factor of the new State."

Complaining of the presumption of many aristocratic families "who evidently do not notice the deep gulf dividing the German people," the Prince continues:

"Those who cannot find the way to this coming State should not be surprised if some day the new State steps over them to accomplish its task."

PRINCE AUGUST WILHELM.

Had young August Wilhelm said that before 1918 he would have been banished to a dungeon or a lunatic asylum by his imperial father. But in 1931 it is his father who is banished and the son who wins applause from his countrymen by his democratic utterances.

Times change, and ideas change with them.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Sem, celebrated Parisian caricaturist, has been a winter visitor to New York, following the trek of his author friend, Paul Morand. At 66, Sem is one of the figures to Americans visiting the French capital. Yet he speaks no English.

Where Americans group—on the Cambon side of the Ritz, Harry's bar, Zelli's, Chez Florence, Louigi's or where-not—Sem usually drops in. He is known by no other name. If he has another not even intimates know it. His drawings are a national talent, like jazz in America.

In a manner, his caricatures suggest the unlovely etchings of Hogarth—raw and searing with realism. He has constantly shot arrows of contempt, although in later years triumphed somewhat over early bitterness. "After all," he philosophized, "one desires friends most of all."

Many cafe fights with those Sem offended enlivened the boulevards. There was that memorable luncheon at Ciro's when Fanny Ward walked over to Sem's table and dashed wine in his face. That day Sem's year book appeared, limning Miss Ward in comic strokes.

His limnings of Paris familiars causes him to retreat to the Brittany countryside annually until the furore dies. Sem had never been to New York or America before, and had no preconceived notions. He refused to read about the metropolis, preferring to form his own opinions.

He came to Paris from Marseilles, a funny little man past 40. His chance was accidental. He took a cartoon to Henri Letellier, publisher of Le Journal and one of the greatest sportsmen in France. He waited awhile, left his drawing and in sudden fright departed.

Letellier happened to glance at it among other things on his desk, rang for a secretary and sent him flying after Sem. The caricaturist was two blocks away. He had decided not to return, but take an afternoon train for Marseilles.

* * *

Two of Sem's American friends have appeared at movie desks in Hollywood—Basil Woon and Jed Kiley. For 10 years they were familiars in that pompous purlieu circling the Place Vendome. Indeed, Hollywood has its "Paris colony," which includes Lois Moran, Dorothy Mackail, Wynn Holcomb, Claire Luce, Tom Barry and Lynn Starling.

Despite the failure of her blackface play, no actress this winter drew such a brilliant first night audience as Ethel Barrymore. The event proved again the power of the Barrymore name. It was, too, probably the only premiere of the season to collect 11 monocle wearers.

* * *

* * *

Effective realism in a Rialto farce. A sudden denouement of a sugar daddy in a courtroom scene. His pallid face slowly colors into apoplectic purple. The trick is performed wearing a high collar against which he chokes himself.

Fugitive romance is sought in odd nooks around New York. In a lonely reach of Central Park the other frosty night a woe-begone young man sat on a bench gazing at the sky. Charles Hanson Towne, somewhat a poet himself passed by. "A beautiful night," he observed.

She was a lithe, exquisite creature with a pantherine walk—you know, the sort in whose hands you feel you would be so much wax—and all eyes turned upon her entrance into the spacious room. There was a jumbled vision of proud shoulders, mocking chin and long lashes. Someone broke the silence with: "You look superb, Anita!" "All right, all right, but what do you do around here to get a drink—sing or dance?" New York!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Even those who have risen above the average and have back of them years of fine training come under the same category?

By accident of birth your family tree may be honorable.

Care and environment in immature years may have helped to advance you to an elevated position.

But what would you have been without these influences?

What difference has nationality to do with it if a fine type of manhood or womanhood is represented?

To be an enemy of any person because of forefathers is an unfair basis for estimation.

If you should go back a few years you might not like the standing of your own family though they be of the nationality you favor.
